Blood Transfusion Helps Cermak

DOCTORS TELL MAYOR'S FIGHT THROUGH CRISES

Marvel at Vitality; Mrs. Gill Worse.

BULLETIN.

Miami, Fla., March 3 (Friday).—(Special.)—A bulletin at 6:30 a. m. stated that Mayor Cermak had spent a comfortable night and was asleep in the oxygen room. At 1:30 his puls was 120, his respiration 28 to 32, and they showed little change later in the night.

Miami, Fla., March 2.—[Special.]—Ten hours after a second blood transfusion had been performed on Mayor Cermak of Chicago his physicians issued a bulletin at 10:30 p. m. tonight which stated they still had "some hope of recovery."

"The condition of Mayor Cermak is unchanged from yesterday," the bulletin read. "He has passed a quiet day, sleeping most of the time. He was given a transfusion of 500 cubic centimeters of blood for its general stimulatin effect, together with the same amount of glucose intravenously.

Shows Some Improvement.

"No temperature reaction resulted from the transfusion and he seemed somewhat improved as a result. Colitis is less severe and the pneumonia appears to be diminishing. No empyema [pus in the pleural cavity] has appeared thus far. While he is still a very sick man, some hope of recovery may be offered."

The mayor's pulse was 116 at that hour and his respiration 30.

The mayor rallied somewhat immediately after the blood transfusion had been given him to support his ebbing strength. Commenting upon his resistance thus far, the doctors stated that he has withstood ailments which would have killed three ordinary men.

Sleeps During Transfusion.

The mayor fell asleep while the transfusion was being performed. He slept for several hours. Just as when the first transfusion was administered last Saturday, he awoke at 4:30 p. m. feeling refreshed and with his facial color restored. He swallowed some lime water and beef broth.

One of the few visitors permitted to see him this evening was Brig. Gen. Abel Davis of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Chicago Title and Trust company. Gen. Davis peered through the isinglass windows of the oxygen room in which the mayor now is lying.

Dr. Frank Jirka held up a bottle of champagne so that the mayor could see it.

"Put some on ice for me," muttered the mayor feebly, according to Dr. Jirka. He smiled faintly at Gen. Davis.

Davis Describes Mayor.

Gen. Davis said the mayor was lying on his back with his hands behind his head.

The mayor's face showed fatigue, Gen. Davis commented, but he did not by any means appear to be a dying man.

Perhaps the greatest improvement resulting from the blood transfusion was the increased quality of the mayor's pulse and respiration. The former well to 114 and the latter to 24, the most encouraging marks in several days.

The hiccoughs which caused uneasiness among the physicians had practically stopped late today, Dr. Jirka said.

The hiccoughs had been characterized as a minor irritation which might have developed into a menace because they weakened the patient.

Vitality Surprises Doctor.

"There is no doubt he has already outlasted enough illnesses to kill three men," commented Dr. Jirka. "But he responds so quickly to such aids as this blood transfusion that we keep hopeful."

Five hundred cubic centimeters, about one pint, of blood were transferred into the veins of the mayor from the body of Virgil Wright, an employe of the Florida Power and Light company. Joseph H. Gill, whose wife was wounded at the same time as was Mayor Cermak, is president of that company. Mrs. Gill suffered a serious relapse today.

While the physicians in attendance continued to issue optimistic bulletins

EDWARD J. TOBIN, COUNTY SCHOOL HEAD, DIES AT 61

Edward J. Tobin, superintendent of Cook county schools for 23 years, died late last night at his home, 11350 Longwood drive, after a long illness of heart disease and nephritis. He was 61 years old.

Three weeks ago Mr. Tobin was taken to a hospital for observation, but was later removed to his home. His condition for several days had been regarded as critical.

Mr. Tobin was a native of Kenosha, Wis., and attended the schools there until he was 16. At 20 he was a teacher in the school of Bremen, Cook county, and two years later began teaching in Chicago grammar schools. In 1904 he was appointed principal of the Healy school.

He was first elected county school superintendent in 1910 and has held the post continuously since then, being reëlected five times. He inaugurated many changes in educational methods which appeared to be radical, but which have since gained general acceptance. He insisted that pupils be taught along practical lines.

Surviving Mr. Tobin are his widow, Belle, whom he married in 1907, and one daughter, Ruth.

BRIDE DEMANDS $48 SHE SPENT ON HONEYMOON

Return of the $48 which she spent on her honeymoon is demanded by Mrs. Mildred Rubin, 1400 Isabella street, Wilmette, in a divorce bill she filed yesterday in the Superior court against Maurice Rubin, 1341 North Western avenue.

Rubin represented that he was the owner of a food shop, but when the wedding day arrived she had to foot the bills, Mrs. Rubin charges. She said she paid $10 to the rabbi who married them, $18 for flowers, $10 for a hotel room, and $10 for a wedding breakfast.

$112 OBTAINED BY RELIEF SWINDLE COSTS HIM $1,000

Rade Ostovich, 49 years old, of Joliet yesterday repaid his debt to the Will County Relief commission, with interest at a high rate. He had been arrested Feb. 10 on a charge of defrauding the commission by accepting money while he, his wife and daughter had $7,500 in the postal savings bank. After pleading guilty before County Judge Ralph C. Austin at Joliet, Ostovich was fined $500 and paid in cash. Then he took another $500 from his hoard and presented it to the relief commission. He had received only $112 from that body.

Japan Swept by Tidal Wave; Hundreds Die

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, March 3 (Friday).—(AP)—The Tokio newspaper Asahi's compilation listed 532 persons killed and 305 missing after an earthquake and tidal wave devastated the northeastern coast of Japan early today.

TOKIO, March 3.—[Friday.]—(AP)—A terrific upheaval of the Pacific ocean bed today hurled against the main island of Japan a vast tidal wave which devastated 300 miles of the northeastern coast and piled up a huge casualty list which, on the basis of meager reports, showed 370 known dead.

Hundreds of persons were missing and the authorities feared that the death total might run into thousands. The navy is rushing ten destroyers and four seaplanes from nearby ports to the stricken area.

The tidal wave struck the northeastern coast of Honshu and reached 200 miles to the north, striking the southern section of the island of Hokkaido. Tokio, situated in southern Honshu, was shaken by the upheaval, but no great damage was caused in the capital.

Terror Grips Seaports.

The wave swirled through scores of terror stricken seaports and villages on the ocean side of the northeastern prefectures.

A destructive earthquake at 2:32 a. m., which shook all eastern Japan and was felt as far south as Osaka, was the prelude to the greater disaster of the tidal wave, which struck the coasts of Iwate, Miyagi, and Aomori prefectures and was variously reported from forty to seventy minutes after the shock and as from four to ten feet high.

All coast towns, from Cape Kinkwazan, east of Sendai, to the island's northern tip, Cape Shiriya, were swept by the wave.

The town of Omoto, on the coast of Iwate, reported more than 100 dead. At Tanohata, near Omoto, there were 13 known dead and 45 missing. At Fudai, in the same vicinity, one person is known to have been killed and many are missing.

Three More Cities Hit.

Several thousand buildings in the fishing ports of the northeast collapsed or were washed away as tidal waves swept upon the cities of Kamaishi, Yamada, and Miyako, on the east coast of the prefecture.

Samushiro beach, known to the United States because it has been the takeoff point for several attempted trans-Pacific flights in recent years, was swept by the seas and thirty persons are missing.

Two villages near Kesennuma in northern Miyagi reported a total of 34 drowned and 20 missing. Cape Erimo, on the island of Hokkaido, reported four dead.

Miyako reported a ten foot tidal wave half an hour after the earthquake. Seismologists placed the epicenter 125 miles southeast of Kinkwazan cape, which is east of Sendai. Communications with the Kinkwazan region were disrupted and it was feared that heavy destruction would be revealed when they were restored.

The coasts of Iwate and Miyagi have been scourged by disastrous tidal waves in the past, the most recent of major proportions being June 15, 1896, when 250 miles of coast were swept and 30,000 persons were drowned.

QUAKE RECORDED HERE.

The violent earthquake which was reported to have killed several hundred persons in Japan was registered yesterday on the seismograph at the University of Chicago. The first waves were recorded at 11:43 a. m. and the second at 11:54 a. m.

READY FOR HIS INAUGURATION ON TOMORROW

Saddened by Death of Walsh.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Franklin Delano Roosevelt came to Washington tonight ready to assume the presidency of the United States and a responsibility more grave than has confronted many Presidents.

His arrival, in a drizzling rain that had started four hours before, was far from the gay, tumultuous welcome he received last November just after his election. The President elect was hurried in a closed car to the Mayflower hotel, where a large crowd had gathered to receive him.

He went at once to the suite prepared for him, and tomorrow he will rise to commence the two day program of pompous ceremony, rites, and customs carried on since the birth of the republic. On Saturday noon he will take the oath of the presidency, administered by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, and that night he will sleep in the White House.

Serious as He Arrives.

Already the seriousness of his task has enveloped the President elect. His entry into the national capital, his departure from his home in New York City, his swift train ride southward—in all these he seemed to those who have watched him these busy months past to show a new solemnity of spirit which was not brought on alone by the sudden death of his intimate friend and adviser, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who was to be the attorney general in the Roosevelt cabinet.

The company of relatives, cabinet members, political associates and friends which Mr. Roosevelt brought with him aboard the special train from New York was not the glad, triumphant host it would have been but for Senator Walsh's tragic death. Saddest of all these folk was the President elect himself, for he has made no secret of it that he had planned to lean most heavily upon the sage counsel of the venerable senator.

Mr. Roosevelt was at a loss to find an immediate successor to the attorney generalship, and it was reliably reported tonight that pending a decision on a permanent appointee he will give the place temporarily to Homer Cummings of Connecticut, former chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Cummings May Act.

Mr. Cummings has been slated for the governorship of the Philippine islands. But Mr. Roosevelt is desirous of having all his cabinet positions filled promptly, so that men of his own selection may be in complete charge of the government, ready for immediate action in the emergencies confronting the administration, so it is considered probable that he will send Mr. Cummings' name in with the other members of his cabinet, as a temporary appointee.

There was a possibility that in deference to Senator Walsh's memory Mr. Roosevelt may delay sending Mr. Cummings' name in until after the senator's funeral is held.

According to the plan as tentatively agreed upon today, the President elect's Republican cousin, Theodore Roosevelt, who by radio campaigned for the reelection of Mr. Hoover, will continue temporarily in charge of the Philippines, being relieved by Mr. Cummings when the attorney generalship has been permanently awarded to another.

Frankfurter Is Mentioned.

Some of the President elect's advisers have revived talk of appointing Prof. Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard Law school to the attorney generalship, and there have been published reports putting forth Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, Arthur Mullen of Nebraska, who was the Roosevelt convention floor leader; Newton D. Baker of Ohio, and others, but none of these, unless it be Prof. Frankfurter, is considered likely to get the post. Mr. Mullen campaigned vigorously for the job before Senator Walsh was definitely agreed upon and to refuse him now may be embarrassing to the President elect, but well informed persons in the Roosevelt official family do not believe Mr. Mullen will be appointed.

Mullen Sees Farley.

Mr. Mullen, in Washington tonight, sought out Mr. Farley and other Roosevelt leaders in an effort to learn whether he may expect the appointment, but, according to reports, he

HORNER SAYS "NO MORATORIUM ON ILLINOIS BANKS"

Detailed news of the banking situation as affecting other states of the Union is to be found on page 25.

After a conference of Chicago, Cook county, and Illinois bankers which convened last night after 9 o'clock and lasted until 3 o'clock this morning on the condition of the banking industry it was decided by Gov. Henry Horner, with whom the bankers conferred, that there will be no moratorium called in Illinois.

The announcement came almost simultaneously with an announcement from Madison, Wis., that a two weeks' holiday in banking will be in effect over the state of Wisconsin beginning this morning.

H. L. Wilson, president of the Du Page County Bankers' federation, also announced that beginning this morning bankers of Du Page county will restrict withdrawals to 5 per cent of deposits. Any new deposits in the 18 Du Page county banks will be 100 per cent liquid, it was declared.

Horner Issues Statement.

Gov. Horner came to Chicago from Springfield early in the evening and immediately went into conference with the Illinois bankers in a room in the Chicago club. The only statement of what occurred in the conference was covered in the official statement of the governor, as follows:

"After a meeting of representatives of the Federal Reserve bank, the Chicago Clearing House association, the Chicago loop banks, and the Illinois Bankers' association, in which the banking situation was considered and discussed at length, I am of the opinion that a bank holiday or moratorium should not at this time be declared by me in Illinois. HENRY HORNER."

Those at Conference.

Among those attending the Horner conference were Philip R. Clark of the City National Bank and Trust company of Chicago, Melvin Traylor and Edward E. Brown of the First National bank, Stanley Field and James Leavell of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, Solomon B. Smith of the Northern Trust company, and a number of representatives of the Illinois Bankers' association.

Although no other statement was made beyond that of Gov. Horner's, it was apparent from the remarks of the bankers when they were coming from the meeting that the condition of the Chicago banks is liquid to the point of handling the Chicago situation and that confidence exists that a few more days will see the end of the national uneasiness.

OXFORD MEN VOW AGAIN NEVER TO FIGHT FOR KING

OXFORD, England, March 2.—(AP)—In an atmosphere tainted by stench bombs and tumultuous with the contemptuous snorts of undergraduates, the Oxford Union, century old debating club for young Britons, tonight emphatically reaffirmed its position of three weeks ago. It rejected by 750 to 138 a motion to expunge from the records its previous motion:

"That this house will in no circumstances fight for its king and country."

Police attempted vainly to maintain some semblance of order in the packed house as orators argued the motion, which drew fire from the London press and from members of the house of commons when it was adopted two weeks ago, 275 to 153.

Randolph Churchill, son of Winston Churchill, member of parliament, was one of the leaders in the fight to expunge the motion. He was greeted with hissing and loud shouts.

NOBILE, ITALIAN FLYER, STRICKEN BY PERITONITIS

MOSCOW, March 3.—(AP)—Physicians at the Kremlin hospital said tonight that Umberto Nobile, who piloted an Italian dirigible to the north pole several years ago, is in a serious condition with peritonitis.

He was taken to the hospital yesterday with appendicitis, but the appendix burst before an operation could be performed. His temperature and pulse were normal, but his general condition was very weak.

Last year Nobile began a three year contract with the soviet government assisting in the design and construction of a fleet of airships. He has divided his time between Moscow and Leningrad.

NATION AWAITS POLICY OF NEW ADMINISTRATION

Change at Helm at Critical Time.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on Back Page)

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Strange events, casting a deepening shadow upon the scene, are ushering the Republican régime out and the Democratic administration in.

With the bank panic spreading through the country, alarm spreading in congress where eleventh hour emergency action is now proposed, and despair spreading among the people, Franklin Delano Roosevelt arrived in the capital tonight to be inaugurated the thirty-second President, accompanied by a retinue of his official retainers and their families.

Prefacing the coming of the new President there was a day of conferences and long distance telephoning in which action to put legislation guaranteeing bank deposits through the expiring Seventy-second congress tomorrow was discussed by Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt, but cast aside as impracticable.

Refuses to Join Hoover.

Mr. Roosevelt, it transpired, had refused to join with President Hoover in asking congress for immediate bank deposit guarantee legislation. It was learned tonight that Mr. Hoover contemplates sending a special message to congress tomorrow recommending federal guarantee of time and savings deposits along the lines of the bill introduced by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.]. Significant in this connection was a visit of Senator Vandenberg to the White House late in the afternoon at the instance of the President.

Measures under consideration tonight in the conferences of Democratic leaders with the President elect include the writing down of deposits to allow tottering banks to continue in business and rushing the Glass banking reform bill to enactment in the house tomorrow.

Makes Decision Today.

After further consideration the President elect is to decide tomorrow morning whether to undertake to rush emergency legislation through this congress before Saturday noon or to call the new congress to meet in extraordinary session next week.

After discussing the critical situation with Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Jesse Jones of the R. F. C. and other Democratic leaders, Mr. Roosevelt held a telephone conversation with William H. Woodin, secretary of the treasury designate, who had been compelled to forego accompanying the President elect to Washington and had remained in New York to attend a meeting of the federal reserve bank of which he was a director. At this meeting the New York reserve bank raised its rediscount rate to steady the financial situation and check withdrawals of gold from the country.

Mr. Roosevelt asked Mr. Woodin to hurry to Washington to assist in the shaping of a program for dealing with the crisis.

Robinson Promises Statement.

When the midnight conference broke up Senator Robinson emerged from the President elect's suite accompanied by Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who is to be secretary of state, Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, and Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.

"All I can say," said Senator Robinson, "is that we have had a conference with the governor at which we discussed various matters, including the bank situation. There is no announcement as to policy to be made at this time, but it is expected that definite statements will be forthcoming in the early future."

Asked if an attempt would be made to put through an emergency bank bill before Saturday noon Senator Hull said no decision had been arrived at. Nor had it been decided, he said, whether to call the new congress into session at once.

The capitol, usually alight with night sessions of the two houses in the closing hours of a congress, was dark, the senate and house having adjourned early in the day as a mark of respect to the memory of Senator Walsh.

The bank panic was claiming the immediate attention of outgoing and incoming administrations as Washington tonight housed the President and President elect. There had been White House conferences on the alarming situation during the day. There had been the announcement that outgoing Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L.

Mills had canceled his projected trip to California and would stand by in Washington for several weeks to aid his successor, William H. Woodin.

There had been the announcement that Mr. Hoover himself would not sail for California on Saturday, but would remain in New York till the next steamer. It was denied that his change of plans was occasioned by the critical developments of the last few days, the White House stating that personal business required Mr. Hoover's attention.

Wants Congress Called.

Democratic leaders were pressing multitudinous counsels upon the President elect. Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, chosen by the Democrats in caucus to be the speaker of the next house, said the situation requires the assembly of the Seventy-third congress at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Roosevelt was represented as convinced that the extraordinary session of the new congress must be called for an earlier date than April, as originally contemplated.

A session beginning not later than March 20 was deemed a foregone conclusion, and some leaders predicted that the threatening aspect of affairs would precipitate an immediate call for a meeting within ten days.

President Hoover, it was learned, had been endeavoring for 48 hours to induce Mr. Roosevelt to join him in action to rush legislation to relieve the banking situation through congress before Saturday noon. The President elect declined to take any hand in the matter before assuming office, and Mr. Hoover is said to have been greatly peeved thereby.

Mr. Hoover's notions of what could be done were imperfectly defined, perhaps as much so in his own mind as in anybody else's. For a time he toyed with a plan under which bank resources in each city would be pooled under control of the clearing house, and bank checks or scrip employed as the medium of exchange.

Proposition Is Rejected.

Government guarantee of bank deposits, however, was the principal scheme under consideration at the White House. It was the formulation of legislation of such character that Mr. Hoover pressed upon Mr. Roosevelt by long distance telephone. Mr. Roosevelt, it appears, asked time to consider the matter. He then telephoned Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who is said to have advised the President elect that such legislation would be unconstitutional. Mr. Roosevelt also consulted B. M. Baruch and other advisers, and finally telephoned Mr. Hoover his rejection of the proposition.

President Hoover called Senator Glass to the White House this afternoon, presumably for a discussion of the deposit guarantee project. The senator entered and departed so secretly that his visit was unknown for hours. He declined to discuss the nature of his interview with the President. Later it became known that the President had broached a plan for a partial guarantee of bank deposits, to which, however, Mr. Glass proved quite as cold.

Split on Program.

The events of the day served to bring to light a split among the Democratic new dealers on the program of legislation dealing with the banking crisis. The house Democrats are demanding that the senate pass the bank deposit guarantee bill passed by the house some time ago. The senate Democrats have blocked this bill and are demanding that the house pass the Glass banking reform bill which the senate passed some weeks ago. The two factions are deadlocked.

Mr. Roosevelt was told tonight that Speaker Garner is blocking the Glass bill, and that if Mr. Roosevelt wants it passed he will have to call Garner off.

Capitol hill now looks more to Mr. Roosevelt than to Mr. Hoover for direction, and it is possible that the President elect will lay down a course of action on emergency legislation tomorrow. Both houses will be in session all day and perhaps all tomorrow night and until the final gavel falls at noon Saturday.

May Write Down Deposits.

Writing down of deposits probably will have to be resorted to in many cases before banks can be thawed out, high officials predicted today, adding that the need for the thawing was urgent. Stockholders of banks also will be called upon to furnish new capital, it was predicted.

Writing down of deposits—the acceptance by depositors in many frozen banks of a partial settlement on their accounts—will be necessary as the "last stages of liquidation," according to the predictions. Under such a plan depositors in banks now operating under restrictions may have to accept any where from 99 to 10 cents on the dollar.

Officials emphasized that such a write-down would not extend to all banks if applied, but only to those which find that their assets are frozen. Banks cannot be expected to absorb all the losses on general liquidation, it was said, and depositors will have to share the fate of their bank. Bankers will be called upon, however, to ease the write-down by putting new capital into their own institutions.

Credit Thawing Urged.

Because large sections of the country are being deprived of credit facilities, thawing out is urgent, federal officials say. They are hopeful that local pressure will force frozen banks to reopen or work out some sort of settlement.

Meanwhile the federal reserve banks are said to be working for an agreement between frozen banks which will allow the clearing of necessary checks. Cashing of checks would not be permitted, but checks for the settlement of accounts would be accepted for deposit and guaranteed under the plan attributed to the federal reserve board.

Reëstablishment of credit machinery is regarded as imperative if the heavy demands for currency are to be stopped. The advance of circulation to new high levels was not interpreted as hoarding, but as the need for cash in sections of the country where bank freezings were preventing the use of credit.

Bank calls for cash and gold shipments abroad have reduced the excess reserves of member banks in New York, the country's most important reservoir of credit, to $12,000,000. A few weeks ago these excess reserves amounted to 400 million dollars in New York.

Raising of the discount rate will help to check one of the drains on excess reserves, the gold withdrawals to foreign countries. Foreigners will now find higher and more attractive interest rates in America and be induced to leave their funds here, it was said.

Mills Reports 1¼ Billion Deficit for First 8 Months

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—With two-thirds of its fiscal year behind it, the federal treasury already has made more than two-thirds of its estimated expenditures and collected far less than two-thirds of its estimated revenues, Secretary of the Treasury Mills revealed today.

If present trends continue the deficit will be larger than the $1,645,000,000 officially estimated for the end of the fiscal year.

Public Debt Exceeds 20 Billion.

The treasury closed the first eight months of its current fiscal year with a deficit of $1,360,279,739 and an outstanding public debt of $20,934,729,209.

Since the end of February the treasury has offered another issue of securities, which brings the total outstanding debt to about $21,009,700,000.

Reduced expenditures, although not yet fulfilling official estimates, have made the deficit smaller thus far in the fiscal year than it was a year ago. It now amounts to $1,360,300,000, compared with $1,781,017,496 on the same date last year.

Expenditures totaled $2,610,482,936 on Feb. 28, compared with $3,115,580,573 last year. If the treasury is to meet its estimates it should have spent only about $2,546,000,000 during the first two thirds of the fiscal year.

Receipts Below Estimate.

Receipts aggregated $1,250,203,197 for the first eight months, compared with $1,334,563,076 for the same period last year. Receipts, if their flow is to be even, should have been about $1,862,000,000 for the first two-thirds of the year.

New excise taxes of the revenue act of 1932 have increased the miscellaneous internal revenue receipts from $345,954,515 to $521,375,435. Other sources of revenue, except war debt payments which were waived last year, have brought in decreased yields.

Reductions in expenditures have been uniform, except for allocations to the sinking fund and to pay interest on the public debt. The steady increase of the debt has forced an increase in the cost of servicing the debt.

CALL FIGHT DEATH MANSLAUGHTER.

A jury at the inquest into the death of Claude Carver, 38 years old, 6223 South Kildare avenue, who was shot Tuesday during a quarrel, yesterday recommended that Joseph Piano, 21 years old, 5729 West 63d place, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter.

SOME ARRIVING TO SEE FARLEY; ROOSEVELT, TOO

Crowds Get Ready for the Big Parade.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—All of a sudden it begins to look like circus day or the eve of an old fashioned world series in the national capital. The hotels are crowded with Americans, come from every quarter of the United States, but principally from the neighboring east and south, to judge by the license tags on the automobiles, to see Franklin D. Roosevelt take over from Herbert Hoover.

Numerous among these citizens, of course, are Democrats of more or less deserving character, eager to establish relations with the government's pay roll and pining for a few intimate words with big, bald Jim Farley, the man who has the right to say "yes" and "no."

Recalls Andy Jackson's Day.

This is supposed to be the greatest and most determined and most candid outpouring of patriots wishing to serve their country that has moved into Washington since Andrew Jackson placed patriotism on a practical basis.

The store fronts are hung over with bunting, some of it pretty straggly and wan, as though it had been hauled out of storage for the occasion instead of being bought fresh-new, which would be a sign of the times. Pennsylvania avenue, along the line of march, is a curious sight, with very substantial grandstands and sections of rickety circus seats alternating in the scene.

On the opposite side of the wide avenue, where the bonus marchers dug in last summer and hung on until the army reluctantly gassed the boys out of town, the hovels have been knocked in these months ago. Now the ugly skeletons of new public edifices, still under construction, support little patches of blue painted knockdown seats, apparently rented from some leaky tent circus company. How the citizens will manage to reach these grandstands which are set on the second floors does not appear to the naked eye, but presumably there are ladders or some of those elevators used for hoisting mortar and tile.

Along the sidewalks, particularly at the hotel entrances and at the Union station, the boys are selling the official programs and souvenir medals.

Business in all lines is brisker in Washington than in any other American city and the capital is the least hurt community of all the present unhappiness.

Prices of Hotels Moderate.

Notwithstanding the temptation to take a good, resounding lick at the holiday trade which will not pass this way again until 1936, the hotelkeepers seem to be retaining their self-control which is a great compliment to their ethics. They have not hoisted their prices, although they might have done so, and the restaurant keepers are generally showing the same restraint.

The official grandstand seats are selling for as much as $7.50 each, this maximum obtaining in the section close to the White House where President Roosevelt will review the parade when the official exercises are over. These are remarkably stout structures, with heavy timbers to hold them up and roofs on them and much more ornate than any I have seen at other parades. For weeks, on and off, the sound of hammer and saw has been audible to Mr. Hoover in his quarters as the stands haltingly took shape along the avenue between strikes of the carpenters.

Might Surprise Others.

The carpenters demanded $11 a day as against $8 bid, which may startle workmen in some localities who have not seen $11 or even $8 in a lump since 1930. But this is Washington and the boys' demand for $11 a day only echoed the policy of the local newspapers which scream murder and persecution whenever a dollar is struck from the local government pay rolls. Every dollar which the local employés do not get is a dollar they do not spend in the stores, and when the stores don't get it they don't spend it for advertising.

It might seem a little indelicate to bang away with the hammers right out in front of a man's house while the end of his tenure is yet some weeks off. But this is an old problem and even in the jailhouses the carpenters have never found any way of driving the nails into the gallows quietly so as not to disturb the guest-of-honor elect. Rubber hammers wouldn't drive the nails and rubber nails would just wabble around, so the departing President just has to listen and like it. In fact, most of them are so tired by that time that they do like it.

Built for Roosevelt.

Up on the hill, on the far side of the capitol, there are about two acres of pine seats set in the plaza where the taxicabs ordinarily prowl for trade. They face the bridge or rostrum or whatever the temporary structure may be called on which Mr. Roosevelt will be sworn into office. And this bridge or rostrum is approached by both a flight of steps and a long, easy ramp with a substantial rail running alongside.

Mr. Roosevelt can't climb stairs, and there will be need for much remodeling in public buildings where elevators are not convenient. This structure at the capitol is festooned with long graceful ropes of native laurel plucked in the neighboring woods and is generally of much more dignified and prosperous appearance than the crumbling stretch along the line of the parade on Pennsylvania avenue, nowadays frequented by poor men looking for working jobs.

The nut type of patriot is not very conspicuous as yet, but undoubtedly will be. Some little boy, prompted and promoted, you may be quite certain, by his papa or his mama, or both, has ridden into town by pony from somewhere in Georgia, carrying spare mounts in a motor van. Just what the little boy and his papa and mama expect to get out of this exploit has not yet been revealed, but there must be an angle somewhere. Little boys do not ride relays of ponies from Georgia to Washington just for the ride. Then there is a hitch-hiker who thumbed his way up from Alabama, as though that were an exploit in these days. They get their names and pictures in the papers. They have lived. Then they vanish and are dead.

Hotels Are Filled.

There were campers in the cabins on the municipal tourist ground tonight and the hotel congestion had backed up customers to hotels as far away as Baltimore. Some of the people were carrying currency for their traveling expenses because, with bank holidays being proclaimed unexpectedly in various states, there is no way of knowing whether it will be possible to cash a check.

I said Washington was beginning to assume a circus day or world series aspect, but I was trying to make myself believe that. There is no hooray in the town, and I remember a world series night here in 1924 when the people whooped and hollered through the streets from sundown till dawn.

The bunting is out, the grand stands are there, but the gayety is not, nor does it seem likely to be. And, aside from the politicians down to see about their mean little rewards for boosting the ticket, there is a great element of thoughtful, hopeful American people come to see a historic event. To many people this ceremony will be a solemn patriotic exercise and an occasion for some little choking up and resolution to see it through. A lot of citizens still take the country seriously.

BODY OF WALSH IN WASHINGTON; MET BY THRONG

Senator to Be Buried at Montana Home.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—The body of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, 73 year old Democrat, who was to have been attorney general in President Roosevelt's cabinet, dressed for burial in the suit in which he was married five days ago, arrived here tonight on a train from Rocky Mount, N. C. A great throng was at the station to pay tribute to the dead senator. Mrs. Walsh, the former Señora Nieves Peres Chaumont de Truffin of Havana, Cuba, accompanied the body.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana colleague of Senator Walsh, and Senator David I. Walsh, in behalf of the senate, met the train on arrival here. Others present were James Roosevelt, son of the President elect, Col. Campbell Hodges, military aid of President Hoover, who represented the White House. The body was taken to the senator's apartment here.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed but relatives said the senator would be buried beside his first wife, the former Elinor McClements of Chicago, at Helena, Mont.

Widow of Rich Merchant.

Mrs. Walsh, the widow of a wealthy Havana business man, was herself the victim of a slight heart attack following the sudden death of her husband from the same cause. She collapsed as she boarded the train for Washington, accompanied by a nurse, Dr. W. B. Kiniaw, a heart specialist, and Capt. Charles Gudger, U. S. N., son-in-law of Senator Walsh. Physicians, however, said her condition gave no cause for alarm. She also collapsed when she greeted the senator's brother, but she soon was revived.

Senator Walsh, like his bride of five days, was a Catholic and rites of the church were administered as the casket containing his body was placed aboard the train by the Rev. Father Dinges of Wilson, N. C., near where the senator died on an Atlantic Coast Line train at 7:10 a. m. today.

Before the train left Rocky Mount the news of the death had spread around the world and telegrams of condolence began pouring in. Among the first to arrive were those of President Hoover, President Elect Roosevelt, and Harry F. Guggenheim, ambassador to Cuba, where Senator Walsh was married last Saturday.

Tells of Senator's Death.

In halting, accented English, Mrs. Walsh told of her husband's death as she waited in a hotel room at Rocky Mount. Awakened by the sunlight coming through the window of the car, she looked at her husband's berth and found it empty.

"I thought he was in the bathroom and I called to him like this: 'Who-o-o, Tom, who-o-o, Tom,' but he did not answer.

"Then I saw him on the floor.

"I tried to pick him up, but I could not lift him. Then I screamed and rang the bell. I lifted his arms. I patted his body all over. I blew in his mouth. I wanted to do something to make him live. Then a doctor came and pushed me away."

Conductor Summons Doctor.

The physician, Dr. Richard J. Costello of Cambridge, Mass., a passenger on the train, had been summoned by Conductor Herbert Weathersbee. He found the senator conscious, but he was dead in a few minutes. The death certificate, signed by Dr. M. A. Pittman of Wilson, N. C., said:

"Cause unknown, possibly coronary thrombosis." The physician expressed the belief that apoplexy or some failure in the blood circulation caused death. Officials were given permission to perform an autopsy by Mrs. Walsh, but they decided none was necessary.

Mr. Walsh had served continuously in the United States senate since his election in 1912, but he first sprang into national prominence as instigator of the Teapot Dome oil scandal investigation in 1924.

Forced Fall Indictment.

Senator Walsh's brilliant talents as a lawyer were recognized by his fellow senators as he delivered scorching attacks on the Harding administration, in committee room and on the senate floor, and he largely was instrumental in forcing the resignation of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, the indictment of Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair in connection with the naval oil reserve leases.

The determination of the senate body that the secrecy surrounding the leases during the early days of the Harding régime should be investigated, and the weeks of inquiry that followed, produced no sensations. But Senator Walsh hammered away, poring over great volumes of records, and was convinced that the leases were not made in the best interests of the government.

The senator stuck to his conviction until he obtained Doheny's sensational testimony that during the negotiations with Fall he had sent the then secretary of the interior $100,000 as a "loan," in a little black bag carried by his son. This was the opening of a flood of sensations, and Senator Walsh became one of the most talked of men in the country.

Prominence in the oil inquiry led friends of Senator Walsh to urge him to run for President in 1924, but he favored William G. McAdoo. He became permanent chairman of the Madison Square Garden convention, perhaps the bitterest in the history of political parties, with religious and racial rows and McAdoo-Smith feud, but he continually warned the convention that he, as chairman, could show no favors. Many times riots were threatened, and Senator Walsh smashed several gavels pounding for order. After John W. Davis had been nominated on the 103d ballot there was almost a stampede for "Walsh for Vice President," but the chairman averted this by declaring the convention adjourned.

Presided Over 1932 Convention.

Senator Walsh's skill as a parliamentarian and presiding officer again was demonstrated at the 1932 Democratic convention at Chicago when the Smith-McAdoo feud reasserted itself, and McAdoo threw the California delegation to Roosevelt, who was nominated when Texas, pledged to McAdoo, also switched to the New York governor. The shaggy browed, mustached chairman threatened many times to clear the galleries as he pounded and shouted for order, which he always restored.

Senator Walsh was born at Two Rivers, Wis., June 12, 1859, and educated at the University of Wisconsin. He taught school for a while before becoming interested in the practice of law, which he began at Redfield, S. D., in 1884. In 1890 he moved to Helena and became interested in politics.

BROTHERS HELD AS ROBBERS.

Michael Trinarco, 21 years old, 826 South Loomis street, and his brother, Rocco, 19 years old, were held to the grand jury yesterday on a charge of trying to rob the Citizens Loan association, 1925 East 79th street. A policeman balked the holdup on Feb. 20.

DEATH OF SENATOR WALSH IS DISCUSSED BY DR. W. A. EVANS

BY DR. W. A. EVANS,
[Editor of "How to Keep Well" in The Chicago Tribune.]

In the sudden death of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the probability is that the elderly bridegroom died from angina pectoris. Medical literature abounds in reports of disaster following the marriage of elderly men with younger women, and in many of these cases the disaster has come under the heading of angina pectoris.

When a man over 70 years of age marries he runs considerable risk. If his heart or his blood vessels are much below par, the strain of the new relations may cause a break somewhere. Particularly is this true if the wife is much younger and more vigorous than her husband.

Adjustment of habits presents some difficulties in persons of about the same age and similar likes and experiences. In the case of an elderly man the strain may be more than he can stand.

In addition, there are physical and emotional relations that may prove to be beyond the safe limits for an old man. I have read at least one article, and that a long one citing numerous cases, on the subject of sudden death in circumstances similar to those of this case.

In each case death, or something less grave but nevertheless serious, resulted from the new relationships and undertakings of the marriage of elderly men.

The report is that Senator Walsh had a systolic blood pressure of 200 or over when he was at Daytona Beach before leaving for Washington. The fact that he had an examination indicates that there was some reason for testing his blood pressure then and there.

Mrs. Walsh is reported as saying that the senator was awakened by a violent pain in his stomach, that he got out of his bed and started toward hers, whereupon he pitched forward on the floor and died instantly.

Angina pectoris usually results from disease of the small arteries which supply blood to the heart muscles. It generally comes on suddenly, occasionally the result of a strain—emotional, physical. Frequently, however, no precipitating cause of attack can be found.

Mrs. Roosevelt Curtails Her Inaugural Social Program

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived here late this evening and announced that mourning for the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh would mute the music of inauguration festivities, so far as she and her family are concerned. The formula by which she cancelled some engagements, kept others, was this:

"I shall cancel all the purely social engagements. I shall try to keep the official ones, especially those which have brought together a number of people from distant places."

Her Revised Program.

According to this formula the revised Roosevelt engagement pad will read like this:

Cancelled: Attendance tomorrow night at the electors dinner, the pre-inauguration concert, and the reception to visiting governors; the White House luncheon Saturday noon, and attendance at the inaugural ball Saturday night.

Kept: Attendance tomorrow afternoon at the reception at the Woman's National Democratic club since the party is the focal point of a national convention of women; the White House tea Saturday afternoon, since that, too, will draw guests from all parts of the country; the White House dinner Saturday evening, since that is to be only for Roosevelt relatives.

In doubt: Attendance tomorrow afternoon at the Congressional club reception.

And added to the program is an event not dreamed of when the original schedule was planned. That is the call of consolation which the President elect and Mrs. Roosevelt will pay tomorrow noon on Tom Walsh's widow.

Accompanied by Sons.

"Out of deference to Senator Walsh," Mrs. Roosevelt explained tonight, "my husband and I want to cancel everything that is possible. But we want to retain those events which have a definite relation to the public. That is why we are receiving after the parade on Saturday. Guests having cards to the luncheon may come to the reception.

"The senator's brother asked to have the reception, and all other events that we possibly could. He said it would have been his brother's wish."

Fatigued, but not the least bit fidgety, Mrs. Roosevelt arrived at the Mayflower hotel about 10 o'clock this evening in the automobile with her husband and three of her sons, Jimmy, John, and Franklin Jr. On her lap was Meggie, the shaggy little Scottish terrier who wags her tail as often as possible to show her mistress her appreciation of being taken down in such style while the other dogs traveled in trucks.

Greeted by Crowd.

Mrs. Roosevelt waited until the first elevator had taken her husband and the boys up to their suite. Then she and Mary, her maid, and, of course, Meggie followed. A smallish black straw hat, a silver fox fur, a trim black tailored suit—these were the fashion items the crowd noted as it craned its neck. O, yes, and a lovely orchid, tied with a knot of velvet.

Flowers, fruit, a wondrous candy basket awaited her. Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, whose husband is Mrs. Roosevelt's cousin, was there to greet her. Then she waved a hand at the newspaper men and women, tied Meggie to a chair, and rushed away to "speak to my husband a moment."

Presently she was back to give specific information about the revised program.

Huey Long Pays Her Visit.

In the middle of the interview the door burst open, in stalked a man in brown suit, reddish hair over his forehead, bright red carnation in his lapel.

"I beg your pardon, I beg your pardon," he shouted; started to retreat.

Then he came forward. "Say," he suggested, "I just kinda like to hear the ladies interview you," and Huey Long strode into the circle, promptly took over the interview and began to recollect:

"Why, Mrs. Roosevelt, do you remember the first time I met you?"

"I certainly do."

"Sure, I remember. I was next to you at a dinner; hadn't had time to get duded up, wore an old blue shirt and I said to you, do you remember, huh? I said to you that you kinda reminded me of Mrs. Coolidge."

There was a pause. Nobody said a word; then everybody laughed a little. The Kingfish said goodnight and closed the door.

Meggie began to wag her tail.

Will Be Sunday

The R. O. T. C. unit of the University of Chicago will present its first annual mounted circus Sunday afternoon in the 124th field artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. The events on the program include a polo game, jumping contests, a mounted tug of war, and mounted wrestling. Cadet Captain Thomas Andrews is in charge of the arrangements.

DEMOCRATS HERE HALT "OFFICIAL" INAUGURAL PLANS

Taking mild alarm over the day's reports of Mayor Cermak's condition, leaders of the Cook county Democratic central committee announced yesterday that there would be no "official" attendance on their part at the Washington ceremonies tomorrow.

Chairman P. A. Nash issued a statement saying that the special train over the Baltimore and Ohio at 2 o'clock this afternoon is not an "official" train, and announcing that he and a number of his associates, because of Mayor Cermak's condition, would not leave Chicago at this time.

Gov. Horner, other state officials, and a large number of local leaders expect to leave for Washington on the 2 o'clock special and on the 1:40 o'clock "Whealan special" over the same road.

Two members of the new cabinet left Chicago for the capital during the day. One was a Chicagoan, Harold L. Ickes, who will become secretary of the interior. The other was Henry A. Wallace of Des Moines, slated to be secretary of agriculture.

Saloon Owner Injured by Explosion of Bomb

Joseph Azukes, owner of a saloon at 3301 Auburn avenue, was slightly injured last night when a bomb was set off in front of his place. His right hand was cut by glass flying from a window shattered by the bomb.

RAINEY CHOSEN SPEAKER, 166-112 BY DEMOCRATS

Byrns of Tennessee Goes In as Floor Leader.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—In the person of Henry T. Rainey, Illinois tonight had its second speaker of the house in the history of the United States congress.

The 72 year old representative, with his shock of cotton-white hair, his curve-stem pipe, and his flowing black tie, was chosen late today by the Democratic members of the next congress as their nominee. And since they will outnumber the Republicans almost two to one when the 73d congress convenes, the nomination is a passport to the speakership.

Ballot Behind Closed Doors.

The first ballot cast behind the closed doors of the Democratic caucus gave the farmer-lawyer from Carrollton, Ill., 166 votes, to 112 for his nearest rival, John McDuffie of Alabama, candidate of southern representatives. John E. Rankin of Mississippi, exponent of radical fiscal and economic policies, polled but 20 votes. William B. Bankhead, father of the glamorous Tallulah, garnered one vote.

As a result, Illinois is to have a companion son to stand beside "Uncle Joe" Cannon, whose jutting cigar and autocratic gavel adorned the speaker's office from 1903 to 1911.

It was in 1903, the year a Republican caucus and Republican house elevated Uncle Joe to the speaker's dais, that Henry Thomas Rainey first came to congress. He came with an A. B. and a master's degree from Amherst, a law degree from Northwestern. He has been in congress ever since, with the exception of two years, when he was defeated in the Harding landslide.

Training as Floor Leader.

It was not the sort of learning he got in college, however, that resulted in Mr. Rainey's promotion today from the post of majority floor leader which he has held since the Democrats came into control of the house in December, 1931.

An old fashioned political swap turned the trick, with Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, powerful chairman of the powerful appropriations committee, relinquishing his doubtful chances as dark horse candidate for the speakership for the more certain chance as floor leader on the Rainey ticket.

A 151 to 140 victory over Representative Bankhead for the floor leadership proved that Mr. Byrns' choice of chances was a wise one.

In addition to the Byrns adherents, who thus threw their strength in with the midwesterners, the Rainey vote was swelled by Ohio representatives, who followed the lead of Representative Robert Crosser of Ohio, who also had offered himself as a candidate but who withdrew in favor of the Illinoisan.

And to clinch the vote the 29 Tammany representatives, ever watchful of the buttered side of the bread, abandoned their strategic loyalty to Thomas H. Cullen of Brooklyn and with Mr. Cullen at their head marched into the Rainey camp. Mr. Cullen, it is reported, is to be rewarded with the brand new post of assistant floor leader.

Representative Rainey is known among his colleagues as an agrarian radical whom growing responsibility has tamed somewhat—but not entirely. He is considered an expert on tariff matters.

NOTABLES FILL WASHINGTON FOR ROOSEVELT FETE

Two Regimes Meet at Various Parties.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—The capital is getting ready for a new deal, the thirty-second since George Washington shuffled the deck.

Many of the new face cards already were in town when New Dealer Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived here late this evening. He brought with him his wife, his mother, two of his sons, John and Franklin Jr., several of his cabinet and a number of other officials. His daughter, Anna Dall, and her two youngsters "Sisty" and "Buzy" had come earlier in the evening so that the children could get to bed before all the excitement began. Only, of course, the excitement began early today.

Just walk into the lobby of the Mayflower hotel, home for the Roosevelts until they move over to the White House.

Young Roosevelts Greeted.

Young Jimmy, the President elect's eldest son, grabs his slim, bright-eyed wife, Betty, by the arm and steers her through a handshaking crowd. They almost bump into William Gibbs McAdoo, angular Californian, who changed the tide for Jimmy's father at the Chicago convention. Frank Hague, the boss of New Jersey, strolls by moodily mouthing his cane.

Mrs. George Bass, Chicago's premier lady of politics, who was an original Roosevelt rooter (and who, it is rumored, will receive a timely reward), holds court over by the palms. That man in the brown suit, the fawn colored waistcoat, the tan spats, is, of course, our own James Hamilton Lewis, Illinois senator.

The large, lumbering man he's talking to, the man with the daub of hair falling always into his eye, is Arthur Mullen, the Nebraska lawyer who may be the new attorney general.

Regret Death of Walsh.

Everywhere sadness meets gladness as news of the sudden death of Thomas Walsh cuts sharply into the gayety. Mrs. Bass remembers when Tom was a handsome young lawyer in Two Rivers, Wis., and she was an adoring youngster in grammar school.

Tall, stunning Daisy (Mrs. J. Borden) Harriman walks down the corridor. Ruth Bryan Owen walks up to her. The two women clasp hands silently. Tears stand in the eyes of both. Lame Duck Ruth, by the way, is referred to everywhere these days as "a comer even when she's going," for the talk is persistent that she will have the refusal of the diplomatic post in Denmark.

"And if she does go there," a woman remarked at the Democratic luncheon which Emily Newell Blair gave this noon, "there won't be any more melancholy Danes left in Denmark."

More Women in Politics.

This luncheon, in honor of Mary Dewson, New York woman who did so much for the Roosevelt campaign, was an illustrious affair. Ex-Gov. Nellie Taylor Ross, fetching in a gray outfit, sat opposite Kathryn O'Loughlin McCarty, the new lady legislator from Kansas. She's the one who married the man who led the opposition.

In another room of the same hotel there is another luncheon. The Republican women are giving farewells and a silver vase of flowers to Dolly Gann. Out of this good G. O. P. gathering comes Mrs. Jacob Bauer, Illinois national committeewoman, chic in a suit of red, with the right kind of black hat.

In a few cases the guests of the two luncheons seem misplaced. For instance, Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, writer, and wife of New Hampshire's Republican Senator Keyes, goes to the Democratic luncheon; while Mrs. Sol Bloom, spouse of the New York Democrat who ran the Washington bicentennial, attends the Republican fiesta. But the whole pattern of the town is twisted during these transition days.

Building Place for Roosevelt.

Mr. Hoover, from his window in the White House, can look out and see the workmen erecting the reviewing stand from which Mr. Roosevelt is going to watch the parade Saturday. The ceiling of the stand will be adorned with wall paper, which is pretty elegant for a three hour occupancy.

Up at the capitol Speaker Garner, looking as if his stiffly starched wing collar were uncomfortable, is beaming as he hugs the ten year old girl at his side. The girl is Genevieve Garner, "my boy Tully's daughter." The Tully Garners and Genevieve arrived here this morning from Uvalde, Tex.

Every incoming train disgorges a celebrity. The town is filled with governors and state societies are fluttering about the home town big shots to entice them to parties and receptions in their homes. Two of the cabinet ministers—three already are residents, Hull, Swanson, and Roper—arrived on the Roosevelt special.

The arrivals were James J. Farley, postmaster general, and George Dern, secretary of war.

Mrs. Lewis Gives Reception.

Late this afternoon Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis held an at-home and the place was jammed with tenants of "Who's Who"; the Italian ambassador tarried to meet the Republican Mrs. Baur, and just missed her. The Democratic Mrs. Bass had a cup of tea with Mrs. Jesse Metcalf, wife of the G. O. P. senator from Rhode Island. Mrs. Warren Barbour, whose husband is a Republican senator from New Jersey, chatted with Ruth D. Kalthoff, daughter of Representative William A. Dieterich, who day after tomorroy will be the new senator from Illinois. Mrs. Kalthoff is pretty. Quite a singer, too.

This evening the official inaugural ceremonies start with a free concert over at the Pan-American Union. Chief Yowlache, a Cherokee Indian, is going to sing. They say his golden headdress cost $5,000. Meanwhile, the braves from Tammany hall are assembling to attend the Democratic reception in honor of Mr. Roosevelt.

MORGENTHAU TO LIQUIDATE FARM BOARD HOLDINGS

Plans to Regroup Various Financing Units.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Immediately after his arrival at the capital tonight President Elect Roosevelt announced that he would appoint Henry Morgenthau Jr. of New York as chairman of the federal farm board and charge him with the duty of consolidating the various duplicative federal farm credit agencies and of liquidating the board's stabilization holdings in wheat and cotton.

The appointment of Mr. Morgenthau, who has been commissioner of conservation of New York state under both Mr. Roosevelt's terms as governor and who has been the President elect's right bower in farm matters during and since his campaign, had been forecast several days ago.

Form New Credit Agency.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement, made through his press secretary, Stephen T. Early, took notice of the resignation of James C. Stone as chairman of the farm board and then made known the President elect's purpose to regroup the farm financing bodies, which now are seven in number.

When the new credit agency has been formed under the leadership of Mr. Morgenthau its activities will embrace, Mr. Roosevelt said, not only such functions of the farm board as it sees desirable to retain, including the financing of farm cooperatives, but also those of the federal loan banks, the intermediate credit banks, the production loans of the department of agriculture and the emergency loan activities of the regional agricultural credit corporation under the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

More Efficient Methods.

The President elect declared the wheat and cotton holdings of the federal farm board would be liquidated under Mr. Morgenthau's direction as far as possible.

Under Mr. Roosevelt's plan, as it will be worked out by Mr. Morgenthau, it is hoped to bring more efficient methods to work to save the farmers from the threat of mortgage foreclosures and to provide a more workable system of attempting to increase the prices of farm products.

It is expected that the Roosevelt program in the new congress will call for the adoption of the domestic allotment plan, to be applied probably to wheat and cotton, the control of the scheme being placed under Mr. Morgenthau's direction.

ROOSEVELT NOW IN WASHINGTON FOR INAUGURAL

Party Is Saddened by Walsh's Death.

was informed no decision has been reached.

The death of Senator Walsh has revived efforts by Illinois Democratic leaders to place Bruce Campbell of East St. Louis as the attorney general, but the presence of Harold L. Ickes of Chicago in the cabinet as secretary of the interior is believed to mitigate against Mr. Campbell's chances.

Other names mentioned as possibilities for the post are Swagar Sherley of Kentucky, former Senator James Reed of Missouri, Huston Thompson of Denver, former trade commission chairman; Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, and Walter F. George of Georgia, and Guy A. Thompson, St. Louis lawyer.

"Death Is Grievous Loss."

"The death of Senator Walsh is a grievous loss not only to the whole country, and to the incoming administration, in which he was to play so prominent and important a part, but in deep measure to myself personally," said Mr. Roosevelt. "He was one of my closest and most trusted friends and one on whose calm judgment I could always rely. While properly to fill his place in my cabinet will be difficult, to fill his place in the circle of my friends will be impossible."

Immediately after his arrival at the Mayflower hotel President Elect Roosevelt received a senatorial committee making arrangements for Senator Walsh's funeral. He told them he and Mrs. Roosevelt would call on Mrs. Walsh tomorrow.

Several members of the committee went to the depot late tonight when Senator Walsh's body arrived and offered any possible assistance to Mrs. Walsh. Funeral plans are expected to be announced tomorrow.

Mother Accompanies Him.

Among those who accompanied President Elect Roosevelt to Washington tonight were his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, very proud, quite serene; his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, taking matters most calmly, and his eldest son, James, and the latter's wife. The President elect's daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, with her two young children, came by an earlier train so that she might settle the youngsters at the Mayflower hotel in the capital in the early evening.

Mr. Roosevelt's other sons, Franklin Jr., John and Elliot, will arrive by automobile tomorrow.

Two members of the new cabinet also came with their chief. They are former Gov. George H. Dern of Utah, the new secretary of war, and James A. Farley, postmaster general.

Other members of Mr. Roosevelt's official family greeted him in Washington.

Great crowds lined the route traversed by the President elect from the New York house on East 65th street all the way to the Liberty street ferry station. Mr. Roosevelt emerged from his home—probably for the last time in four years at least since he has put the house up for rent—and stood at the top of the short stairway a second while the people who had come to see him leave applauded and cheered.

Policemen Posted About.

Policemen were sprinkled about the vicinity, and secret service men watched carefully. Mr. Roosevelt grasped the special supports by which he descends the stairs, his face all the while most solemn.

Along the several miles to the ferry station traffic had been specially cleared and the cars in the Roosevelt procession sped swiftly by. The people who lined the streets caught barely a fleeting glimpse of the President elect's car, with secret service men riding on both running boards, but they cheered and applauded, nevertheless. Observers sensed a spirit of hope in the faces of the crowds, hope that Mr. Roosevelt might succeed in his tremendous task and deliver them and the nation from the depression.

At the entrance to the ferry station a band of the New York City police department was waiting and when the motorcade came into sight, the band immediately took up the familiar Roosevelt campaign tune: "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Mrs. Roosevelt brought along on the train her little Scotty, Meggs, and gave the fat little dog a walk on the platform before the train started. Aboard the train Mrs. Roosevelt announced that in respect for the late Senator Walsh she had canceled almost all of her planned social activities.

YOUTH SHOT ACCIDENTALLY.

George Benbow 18 years old, 5230 South Kenneth avenue, was accidentally shot in the right leg by Joseph Pierog, 17 year-old, 5157 South Kostner avenue, while the two were playing with a small rifle last evening.

2,000 EXTRA POLICE TO GUARD ROOSEVELT, HOOVER TOMORROW

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—More than 2,000 special police, secret service men, and plain clothes men have been summoned to Washington to aid local authorities guard the outgoing and incoming Presidents during Saturday's inaugural proceedings. New York is to send 600 policemen, Philadelphia, 400, and Baltimore between 400 and 500. And in addition a large number of firemen are to be imported.

Heads of the secret service details in all the large cities of the country have reached Washington ready to aid in the protection of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hoover. It was reported today that at least 400 secret service men will be on duty tomorrow and Saturday.

As a special precaution all the firemen of the District of Columbia have been sworn in as special police officers and given badges so they serve in a dual capacity. Special first aid stations will be maintained every two blocks along the line of march.

Simon Ackerman Clothes come to CHICAGO via THE DAVIS COMPANY

WE are highly pleased that we have been able to effect a tie-up whereby Simon Ackerman Clothes are now presented to the men of Chicago through this store at $30.00.

It was no simple matter to bring this about. It involved considerable sacrifice and revolutionary economies on the part of the manufacturer and ourselves to make such clothing available at $30.00.

Despite our enthusiasm, we hesitate to plunge into comparisons of value. At the same time we feel you ought to know the Simon Ackerman Clothes were formerly retailed over a period of years at an average of $55.00 and as high as $75.00.

This fact is no news to thousands of men who have purchased Simon Ackerman Clothes in Chicago.

We feel certain you will agree that an outstanding value has resulted when you have seen this line. After all, this is clothing that has been produced in true custom tradition. The tailoring is of rare excellence.

The fabrics are real custom fabrics, both in the general character of the patterns and in the superior quality of yarns employed.

Trim and finish are obviously the result of expert workmanship and deliberate attention to detail. Those are the things that count in clothing. Men who have experienced the pleasure of the custom tailor's "touch" in their attire will appreciate this clothing.

We are more than pleased and confident in inviting you to come here and view this exclusive presentation of Simon Ackerman Clothes at $30.00.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengue (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengue by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic balms, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay, made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

HITLER CABINET REVIVES SPIRIT OF KAISER'S DAYS

New Reichstag to Meet at Tomb of King.

Anti-Jewish Pogrom?

LONDON, March 3.—[Friday.]—(AP)—The London Daily Herald said today that plans are completed for an anti-Jewish pogrom in Germany on a scale as terrible as any instance of Jewish persecution in 2,000 years. The paper ascribed its information to a "highest source."

The whole Jewish population of Germany, totaling 600,000, is living under the shadow of a campaign of murder which may be initiated within a few hours and cannot at the most be postponed more than a few days, the Herald said.

Tens of thousands of Jews, the newspaper continued, have been secretly indicted as communists and Marxists and already are marked as victims.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 2.—"In front of the grave of Frederick the Great, our immortal king, in the Potsdam Garrison church, where Prussia's greatness was born and where the new reichstag will convene, we shall begin the work of reconstructing Germany," Chancellor Adolf Hitler said tonight in a speech in the Berlin Sportspalast.

The government's apparent intention to revive the spirit of imperial days was also indicated when Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen with a stroke of the pen abolished the republican colors in Prussia. Under the ruling the imperial banners of black, white, and red will again be flown from public buildings.

Frederick the Great's old church, where the reichstag's first session will be held, is small and is decorated with flags of old imperial regiments. Miniature crowns are carved in the pews.

It is doubtful whether Catholic Centrist and dissident socialist members of the reichstag will agree to meet in the Protestant church.

Hitler Denounces Democracy.

Hitler in his speech denounced not only Marxism, but also democracy.

"The idea of equality leads to the deterioration of the higher values of life and reduces the prospects of the higher ranking nations of the world," he said. "Internationalism does not make for solidarity. In the democratic system of equality personalities are strangled. Individuals always were leaders and created the highest national values. Democracy destroyed values. Each nation must realize that its ablest men are its greatest treasury.

"Germany fell only because it believed in principles of democracy. Our post-war leaders were so inferior that they could justly be called representatives of a democracy. Politicians never did leave their posts more abjectly than did men of the past regime. If they believe in Marxism, why do they not rise? Where are their heroes?"

After describing the miseries of Russia, Hitler maintained that suffering in Germany, while less acute, is due to the same Marxism.

"Child of the People."

"We shall take up the fight against this insanity," he shouted. "I started it fourteen years ago, not because I am for capitalism. I was and am a child of the people. Now that we have the power we will not capitulate suddenly. Germany will be victorious. We want to create the idea of a holy union of peasants, workers, and students—the middle class."

The government's drive to stamp out communism resulted in 3,500 arrests today. Many of the prisoners are said to be left wing republicans. Ernst Thaelmann, leader of the German communist party and its candidate for president at the last election, fled Hamburg today for Copenhagen.

Meanwhile, political disorders continue. Three persons were killed in clashes in Berlin.

Deeply stirred by the burning of the reichstag building on Monday, President Paul von Hindenberg has consented to permit "national organizations like the Steel Helmeters, Nazi storm troopers, Hitler guards and others" to stage demonstrations which he intended to forbid during the reichstag elections next Sunday.

Nazi Troops Mobilize.

Steel Helmet war veterans and Nazi troopers already have begun to concentrate for demonstrations over the week-end. In Thuringia, according to the Telegraph Union, authorities have ordered owners of airplanes and automobiles to keep them in readiness at the expense of the state.

The auxiliary police created by Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussia's minister of interior, will appear in greater force for the first time on Saturday and Sunday to reinforce the regular police. The auxiliary force must not surpass that of the regulars, according to instructions issued today. Fifty per cent of the auxiliaries will be recruited among the storm troopers, 30 per cent among Hitler's guards and 20 per cent among Steel Helmeters.

The Berlin quarters of the Jewish Citizens' Central union were raided by police and storm troopers last night. Replying to charges that documents seized in the raid revealed that it is a "communist aid organization," the union issued a statement today. "The union is an association of German Jews whose task is to combat anti-Semitism," it said. "This fight is carried on with the fullest publicity and is completely legal. We indignantly reject the suggestion of any connection with a movement antagonistic to the state and religion."

Great nervousness is manifest in Jewish circles with groups of rowdies occasionally appearing in the streets inhabited largely by Jews and threatening them.

Reichstag to Meet Over Tomb of Frederick the Great

The Potsdam garrison church, over the tomb of Frederick the Great, where new German reichstag, to be elected on Sunday, will meet on orders of Chancellor Hitler and cabinet.

Safe Pleasant Way TO LOSE FAT

How would you like to lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent hips and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure and also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts which will last you for 4 weeks and cost but a trifle. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you will know the pleasant way to lose unsightly fat and you'll also know that the 6 salts of Kruschen have presented you with glorious health.

To take off fat harmlessly and SAFELY, take Kruschen every morning—don't worry—it's the SAFE way to reduce.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drugstore in the world and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why money back.

RUSSIANS EMIT SQUAWKS OVER GERMAN 'TERROR'

Soviet Press Deplores Ban on Civil Rights.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, March 2.—Bitter protests against the "harsh wave of terrorism" in Germany appeared today in the soviet press. The Moscow Pravda and Isvestia both protested vigorously against the Fascists' treatment of their communist enemies. They accused Chancellor Hitler's Nazis of shedding the blood of workers in the streets of German cities at the same time that cultural Germany is celebrating the anniversaries of Richard Wagner, Wolfgang Goethe and Georg Hegel.

Enraged Fascist bands, reports Pravda, are attacking workers' institutions, cooperatives and bookships. The Kremlin mouthpiece deplores the prohibition of the communist press, attacks on Social Democrats, persecutions of writers and scientists and the suppression of free speech.

Hold Protest Meetings.

Protest meetings are being held in soviet factories and resolutions passed against the Nazi "campaign of white terror."

Isvestia charges the burning of the reichstag building Monday was done by German capitalists to enable the government to take stronger measures against the growing revolutionary activities of the masses. The masses not only threaten uprisings in Germany but also Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, Holland, Switzerland, and England, Isvestia asserted.

Isvestia believes the chief reason for burning the reichstag was to check the rapid growth of the German communist party which now numbers about 7,000,000 members, all sworn to obey Moscow's commands, the paper declared.

Baltic Press Sarcastic.

The Baltic press, republishing Moscow's protests with sardonic comments, inquires whether political tyranny, suppression of free speech and extermination of opponents is not also known in Russia. The Riga "Sevodnja" [Today] states that the Nazis are only inexperienced schoolboys compared with the bolshevik communists and that the disorders in Germany cannot be compared with the reign of terror and murder carried on in Russia for the past fourteen years.

Commenting on a reported secret military agreement between the soviet government and Germany, which partitions Poland and also splits the Baltic states between Berlin and Moscow, the Latvian official army newspaper Latvijas Karavis [the Latvian Warrior] warns the Baltic states that they had better unite forces before it is too late.

"It is a mistake to believe the present campaign against communists in Germany will spoil the close relations between Berlin and Moscow," this paper said.

The secret agreement, the Karavis said, defines the future Soviet-German border as traversing the northern part of Latvia near the Estonian frontier, which would place Latvia under German rule and sacrifice Estonia to bolshevism.

BOY CONFESSES PLOT AGAINST ARMOUR FAMILY

Wallace J. Radavicius, 18 years old, 914 West 18th street, trapped by the police and arrested yesterday, admitted shortly afterward that he was the writer of several extortion letters sent to members of the Armour family.

Recipients of the notes were A. Watson Armour, 209 Lake Shore drive; A. Watson Armour III., and Laurance H. Armour, 395 North Green Bay road, Lake Forest. Each letter demanded a sum ranging from $2,500 to $8,000.

Chief of Police Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest placed a guard last night over the Laurance Armour home. The A. Watson Armours are in Florida and the Lake Forest Armours were reported absent on a trip.

Ex-Medical Student Found Guilty of Illegal Practice

Andre J. Sarrine, 341 West 95th place, at one time a medical student and formerly employed as a hospital orderly, was found guilty yesterday of practicing medicine without a license by a jury in the Municipal court of Judge Frank M. Paden. Hearing on a motion for a new trial was set for March 24.

Meet our new "Budget Line" at $34.50 with two trousers

You'll agree that the new style of double breasted lapels on a single breasted coat we announced earlier this week was a sensation. You'll admit that our famed Deerpath Drape, tailored of Sharkskin, would certainly look well on you. But one thing you may not have thought of is that if you have about $35 to spend for a new suit, the first place to look is at The Store for Men.

For here, at the very source of all style information, comes an announcement you can't afford to overlook. We've developed a brand new line of smart clothing for men and young men that will sell this season at $34.50—and each suit will have two pairs of trousers.

Name your style—choose your own colors—tell us what size you require—perhaps you prefer patterned fabrics as against plain woolens—no matter what specifications you put before us we have the suit you have in mind in this "Budget Line" of ours.

Simple Remedy for Bad Stomach Gives Swift Relief

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet. Safe and Simple Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick or certain relief by following this simple advice.

Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants or "pull down" your system with starvation diets. For within reason most folks may eat what they like if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion.

And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless, inexpensive prescription that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia which any Walgreen Drug Store can supply, should quickly convince you that 90 per cent of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary. Be sure to get Bisurated Magnesia.

DE YOUNG URGES REFORM IN COURT PROCEDURE HERE

Backs Plan for Separate Election of Judges.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Reforms in the administration of justice, particularly the simplification of court procedure and other related subjects which are receiving the attention of bar associations in Illinois and other states, were discussed yesterday by Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Illinois Supreme court.

Separate elections for judges, a proposal which is expected to be presented to the general assembly soon by the Chicago Bar association, is advocated by Justice De Young, and also the abolition of the fee offices remaining in the state system.

Charges Fees Imperil Justice.

"The retention by a public officer of fees paid by litigants as the compensation for official duties performed is incompatible with sound and impartial administration of justice. Fee officers in the judicial department were largely abolished by the present constitution of the state which was adopted in 1870. The plan, however, survives for a few offices and the public officer's financial interest in increasing litigation and consequently his compensation, instances of which still occur, should be removed altogether.

"During recent years there has been a growing insistence that practice and procedure in the courts present a problem which must be solved by the lawyer and the judge and not by the legislator.

"The administration of justice has always been one of the most intricate functions of the state and, as civilization develops, the complexity of the problem increases.

Why Reforms Are Difficult.

"Moreover, it is extremely difficult to obtain the changes and amendments in statutory rules of procedure which professional knowledge and experience suggest, because legislators lack the requisite technical information and are usually occupied with other matters.

"Ancient Egypt held that the first duty of the state was to administer justice. The complexity of modern civilization makes that duty no less imperative in our day. Legal procedure is a means and not an end. It is necessarily subsidiary to the substantive law. The responsibility for the administration of justice rests upon the courts and for the efficient discharge of that responsibility the courts should resume their ancient power to regulate their method of procedure."

Juries Not Judges of Law.

Justice De Young referred to the decision of the Supreme court that juries in this state are not the judges of the law, as "a vindication of the integrity and completeness of the judicial power and an affirmation of judicial responsibility."

"The decision has had two obvious effects," he said. "First, juries are bound to follow the judge's instructions respecting the law, and, second, time is saved in the trial of criminal cases. While the statute which declared that juries were the judges of the law as well as of the facts in criminal cases was followed hours and sometimes days were occupied by able and experienced lawyers in reading law books to impress juries that the respective views of counsel concerning the rules or principles of law governing the case were correct. The result often was that the jurors were confused rather than enlightened.

"Rules of practice and procedure are a means to the end of administering justice under the law. Such rules are necessary, but their simplification will reduce the delays and expenses which are often inseparable from the conduct of a lawsuit."

Newly Elected Officials Sworn In

Judge Takes Oath

Municipal Judge Gibson E. Gorman, who was elected at the aldermanic election Tuesday, took his oath of office yesterday before County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer.

Judge Gorman was elected to serve out the unexpired term of Judge Francis B. Allegretti, who was elected to the Superior court last fall. He is 46 years old and was formerly an assistant corporation counsel.

Judge Gorman is secretary of the 19th ward Democratic organization and his candidacy was sponsored by Thomas D. Nash, Democratic committeeman from that ward. John M. Lee, elected state senator from the 11th district to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Senator Thomas J. Courtney to be state's attorney, took his oath of office with Judge Gorman.

Bandit Climbs 16 Floors; Holds Up Gold Coast Home

A young burglar climbed up sixteen flights on the rear fire escape at 1448 Lake Shore drive last night and entered the apartment of John Richmond Dean, president of the Dean company, manufacturers of veneer and walnut lumber. Surprised in the kitchen by Miss Julia Janis, nurse for the Deans' two small children, he threatened her and was given $5. Then he fled down the fire escape. Mr. and Mrs. Dean were away from home.

3 MINE PICKETS ARE WOUNDED WITH BAYONETS

Springfield, Ill., March 2.—(AP)—Three mine pickets were treated at hospitals for bayonet wounds received tonight in a clash with National Guardsmen patrolling Peabody mines here.

The injured men were Charles Le Master, Tony Matvievich, and George Houston. They were wounded in the hips.

The guardsmen were dispersing the pickets, who were affiliated with the new Progressive Miners' union. No arrests were made.

A bomb exploded early this morning at the home of Charles Mans, a working miner here. Later two unexploded dynamite bombs were found on the back porches of the adjoining homes of Alfred Unchank and Elbert Pennington.

MICHIGAN SCHOOL GIRL FOUND SAFE IN CHICAGO HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Olson, 1211 North La Salle street, who befriended and took in a girl whom they found wandering in the loop last Tuesday, last night found relatives of their charge. The girl, Mildred Erickson, 17 years old, of Holland, Mich., had run away from home last Thursday, arriving in Chicago without funds on Tuesday. The Olsons took her to their home and bought her clothing, and then began to search for friends or relatives. Olson is secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Mildred's aunt, Mrs. Peter Swanson, 33 North Washington circle, Lake Forest, had been notified that the girl might come to Chicago. Mildred is a senior at the Holland High school.

BLOOD INFUSION HELPS CERMAK; FIGHT IS TOLD

about the mayor's condition, they admit privately that they are baffled.

"We can't diagnose this case as it should be analyzed," said one. "Many times we've been about to throw up our hands in despair. The public may be wondering that so many contradictory reports are given out, but the case is so puzzling that we sometimes feel uncertain of just what will be the outcome."

The amazing fight of the mayor against death may be divided into three stages. In the first the mayor was given a fifty-fifty chance to live after a bullet meant for President Elect Roosevelt had pierced his body. For several days reports were issued that his condition was improving.

The second stage began one week after the shooting. Then colitis developed and the mayor began suffering intense pain. Alarm was shown by the specialists. Early last Friday morning his pulse stopped for a full minute. The following day a blood transfusion was performed and he was placed under an oxygen tent.

Then Comes Pneumonia.

The third stage started with the discovery that pneumonia had developed in the right lung. This should have been the beginning of the end, the doctors admit, but the patient's condition today was no worse than last Sunday.

The only thing about which the doctors seem positive is that the mayor will not die suddenly. The opinion expressed a week ago by Dr. E. S. Nichols that if death ensues it will be preceded by a coma seems to prevail among the mayor's physicians.

The second blood transfusion today was not a "desperate measure," according to Dr. Tice.

"It was given him to avoid a desperate situation, but it was not a desperate measure," he said. "It is an aid to him. His heart is holding up and there is no indication of collapse. The transfusion will give him more strength and consequently that much more chance."

Physician Admits Doubts.

Dr. P. B. Welch of Coral Gables, a retired Cook county hospital staff physician who entered the case recently, commented upon the mayor's chances in these words:

"He is holding his own. What does that mean? It means he is either two days nearer death or recovery. No one knows which."

The pneumonia condition in the mayor's right lung remained the same as yesterday. It was reported at that time to be "practically cleared up."

Reports that peritonitis, or inflammation of the lining of the abdominal walls, had developed were emphatically denied by the physicians. The hiccoughs may have been a result of an irritation of the lining of the stomach or may have been caused by other reasons, they said.

"There is, of course, a possibility of peritonitis," Dr. Tice added. "We believed for some time that the colitis was due to blood from the chest or from the liver going into the abdominal cavity. The absorption of this blood could produce peritoneal irritation."

Green's Term as Federal Prosecutor Ends Tomorrow

The term of Dwight H. Green as United States district attorney, under a recess appointment by President Hoover, will expire at noon tomorrow when the senate adjourns. Unless his appointment is confirmed before that time the judges of the United States District court will be faced with the necessity of naming an attorney before the opening of court Monday morning, it was stated yesterday. Under the law a United States attorney must be in attendance before criminal cases may be heard.

INTRODUCES
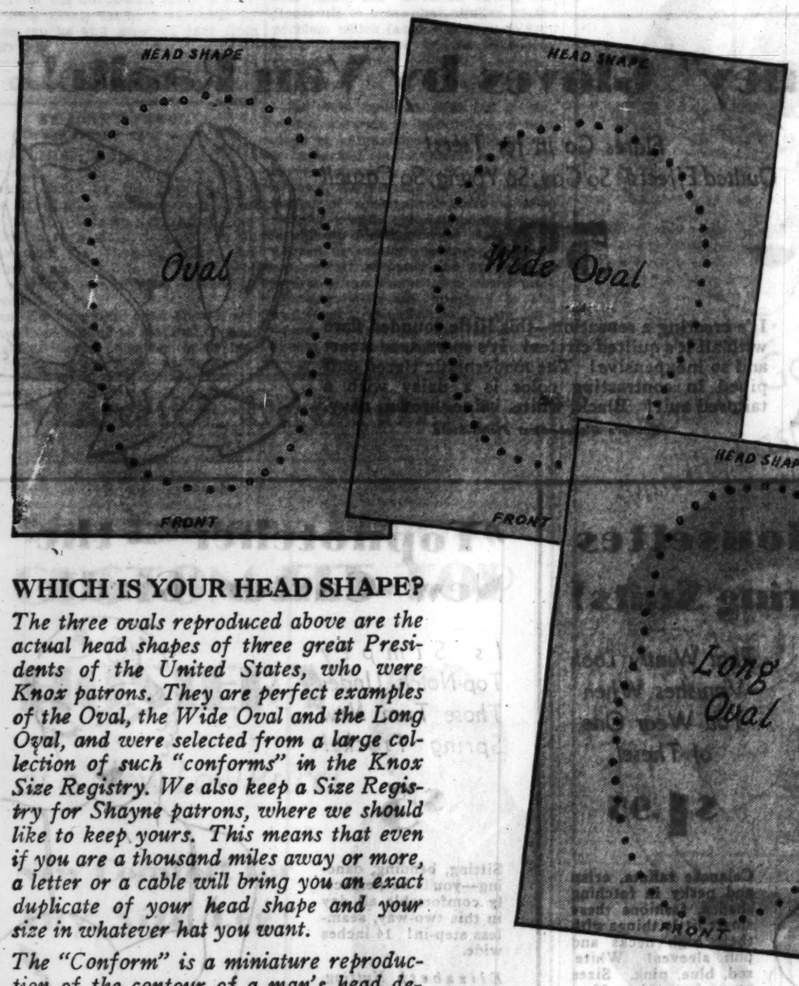
by KNOX

The First Hats made to fit the way your head is made



WHICH IS YOUR HEAD SHAPE?

The three ovals reproduced above are the actual head shapes of three great Presidents of the United States, who were Knox patrons. They are perfect examples of the Oval, the Wide Oval and the Long Oval, and were selected from a large collection of such "conforms" in the Knox Size Registry. We also keep a Size Registry for Shayne patrons, where we should like to keep yours. This means that even if you are a thousand miles away or more, a letter or a cable will bring you an exact duplicate of your head shape and your size in whatever hat you want.

The "Conform" is a miniature reproduction of the contour of a man's head derived from the use of the "Conformateur" and the "Formillion," two ingenious mechanical measuring devices found in The Shayne Store.

NATURE produces three basic head shapes . . . Long Oval, Wide Oval and Oval . . . and this is to announce that KNOX and NATURE are now in business together . . . the tradition in hats is Three Heads Per Hat . . . the new Knox method is Three Hats Per Head . . . your head is OVALIZED for contour as well as sized for fit . . . it conforms the hat to the head instead of the head to the hat . . . under the old system you frequently wore another man's hat . . . under the Knox system you are absolutely sure of getting your own!

. . . but that isn't all . . . In addition to three grand divisions in head shapes, Knox now introduces a sweeping sub-division in hat sizes . . . The new Knox Hats, soft hats, derbies, straws, silk hats and opera hats are sized in SIXTEENTHS as well as eighths, quarters and halves . . . no need to stretch the band and strain the brim . . . no need to iron in the fit and iron out the style . . . no padding, no pulling, no pressure!

. . . moulded in sixteenths instead of mechanized in eighths . . . for, why should a hatter, who thinks nothing of gauging his mechanisms to one-ten-thousandth-of-an-inch, expect men to wear hats one-sixteenth of an inch too big or one-sixteenth of an inch too small?

Knox has literally junked the traditions of an industry to give you that in-between fit that separates an eighth from a headache . . . and whether the industry likes it or not, the limitations of modern styling and the dangers of modern sizing must go! . . . high pressure selling can no longer justify tight pressure hats . . . in fact, this new, exclusive Knox system of "OVALIZED SIXTEENTHS", so essential to style and to fit, is also vital to head comfort and, therefore, to health . . . what you want is a hat that won't interfere with the circulation of the blood . . . and Knox is first to put such hats in circulation! . . . for the present, at least, these revolutionary developments in hat-making reduce all hat labels to two schools . . . your choice today rests between the Obsolete and the Ovalized . . . between a composite oval made for the crowd and one of the three distinctive ovals specified by KNOX and NATURE FOR YOU! . . . and remember! . . .

A Knox Label Inside Means Knox Labor All Through!

The new Knox Soft Hats for Spring are ready for your approval and your comfort, at Shayne's, and are available, now and always, in "OVALIZED SIXTEENTHS."

CHICAGO'S LEADING HATTERS FOR 60 YEARS

UFFERS 4 YEARS FOR DELINQUENTS TO PAY UP TAXES

Treasurer's Plan Involves $220,000,000.

Taxpayers who owe Cook county governments approximately a quarter of a billion dollars in delinquent taxes and penalties will be given an opportunity to clear up their debts on the installment plan over a four year period under a plan announced yesterday by County Treasurer McDonough.

Under this plan, the taxpayer who signs an agreement to pay his delinquent taxes, with full penalties, in four equal annual installments, will be protected against the forfeiture and sale of his property. If the property has already been forfeited and sold for one year's back taxes, it will not be offered at future tax sales.

The plan was evolved by Mr. McDonough and his attorney, Thomas D. Nash, after consultation with County Judge Jarecki, Hayden N. Bell, head of the tax department of the state's attorney's office, and John O. Rees, director of the Sargent committee on public expenditures. All of them approved its provisions.

$220,000,000 Delinquent Taxes.

The county treasurer now has on his books about $220,000,000 in delinquent taxes of the 1928, 1929 and 1930 levies, of which about $165,000,000 are on real estate. In addition, these unpaid bills have accumulated penalties of between 27 and 30 million dollars.

A few weeks ago Judge Jarecki issued a blanket order dismissing the objections to some $130,000,000 in real estate taxes which had been filed in his court. These objections were based upon the alleged failure to assess personal property, the legal basis of the tax strike movement, and their dismissale marked the legal liquidation of that movement.

Next week Judge Jarecki will start the entry of individual orders, under his blanket ruling, against the properties involved. The next step in the legal process of seeking collection of these back taxes will be to offer them for sale at the annual tax sales, beginning May 1.

Will Avoid Tax Sales.

Treasurer McDonough's offer of an installment plan is intended to appeal particularly to those taxpayers whose objections have just been dismissed. If they sign up under his plan they will be able to avoid the sale of their property in May, with the consequent clouding of their titles.

The plan will be put into unofficial operation at once. It will require action by the legislature to ratify it, but this will be concerned principally with giving the treasurer power to withhold the properties involved from the tax sale. Such action may be sought at Springfield at any time before May 1.

"In the past merchants who have had goods to sell evolved the installment payment plan," said Attorney Bell in commenting on the new tax plan. "You could buy anything from a baby to a refrigerator that way. There is no reason why you can't pay taxes the same way. This method will involve a great deal of additional work by the treasurer's staff, but it will be a means of bringing into the collector's hands quickly revenue which otherwise would be spread over collections of a dozen years. The legal difficulty surrounding this action can be surmounted by action of the legislature."

Tells Assessment Cut Plan.

Assessor J. L. Jacobs indicated yesterday that the reduction of the 1932 assessments would be made in a uniform percentage cut from the 1931 assessments.

"If the 1931 assessments are allowed to stand substantially as they are," he said, "without further change than the correction of minor errors, I propose to apply to these assessments a straight, uniform, horizontal percentage reduction. And I propose to make these reduced figures the 1932 assessment.

"Just what the amount of that percentage will be has not yet been determined. I have assembled much data and shall assemble more. The indices on prices of materials and wages, and on land and construction prices as published by federal and local authorities indicate general and country-wide decreases in values, which carried the levels from 11 to 19 per cent lower in 1932 than in 1931.

Values as of April 1, 1931.

"The taxpayer should bear in mind that the assessment and tax bill which he is now receiving is based upon the value of property nearly two years ago, on April 1, 1931. So much has happened since, that it is difficult to recall the conditions of that time, including real estate values which then obtained.

"The total assessment on real estate for 1931 is approximately 25 per cent less than the 1930 assessment total. The taxpayer, on receiving his 1931 tax bill, will perceive that his assessment has been materially reduced, but he will also perceive that his tax rates increased. The higher 1931 rate goes a long way toward offsetting the lower 1931 assessment. The tax bill as a whole and if not analyzed, may disappoint some taxpayers for this reason."

Tribune Pays $109,249 on Its 1931 Real Estate Tax

Half of Bill

Payment by THE TRIBUNE of the first installment of its 1931 real estate taxes yesterday was the largest single collection made during the day by County Treasurer McDonough.

Attorney Willis O. Nance of THE TRIBUNE's law department paid $109,249, half of the total bill, at the office established by the treasurer at 6 North Clark street for receipt of payments involving tax warrants. The payment consisted of a check for $49,259, tax warrants with a face value of $58,000, and a credit for accumulated interest on the warrants of $1,990.

The total payments received during the day by Treasurer McDonough were $1,279,963, of which $1,165,273 was received upon the current 1931 tax bills. Payments of delinquent taxes totaled $15,854 for 1928 taxes, $27,627 for 1929, and $71,209 for 1930.

Retired Blacksmith Killed While Repairing His Auto

Adolph Andreas, 57 years old, 8117 Paxton avenue, a retired blacksmith, was killed by motor fumes in the garage behind his home yesterday, apparently while repairing his automobile. He was the father of Attorney J. Homer Andreas, president of the South Chicago Bar association.

HOLD UP FOUR IN HOME AND OBTAIN $1,500 IN JEWELRY

Three armed men held up William H. Fleming, 7136 Yates avenue, when he reached his home last night and forced him to open the vestibule door and then the door to his apartment. There they herded Fleming, his wife, Muriel, his mother, Mrs. Eva Ledyard, and son, William J., 16 years old, into the bathroom and searched the place, finding jewelry valued at $1,500 and $103 in cash. Fleming, who is in the wholesale paper business, was told not to call the police or make any identifications, by the robbers before they fled.

COUNTY BOARD ADOPTS BUDGET OF $26,900,772

Whealan Casts Deciding Vote on Measure.

The county board yesterday passed the 1933 county budget of $26,900,772 by a vote of 10 to 5. The budget is $248,766 lower than the 1932 budget of $27,149,538.

Advocates of the appropriation measure barely mustered the two-thirds vote needed for passage. President Emmett Whealan cast the deciding vote. The five minority commissioners attacked the budget as illegal because it included $315,000 of overdrafts incurred by county officials in 1932 and declared that its advocates were deluding themselves and the public.

Compare Two Budgets.

The 1933 budget, compared with the 1932, follows:

	1933.	1932.
Corporate fund	$17,844,606	$19,301,740
Bonds and interest	6,612,880	4,786,376
Highway	1,943,286	3,601,414
Employes' pension	500,000	No levy
Totals	$26,900,772	$27,149,538

The budget as passed by the finance committee Wednesday night set the corporate fund at $17,776,213. The committee proposed to balance the corporate fund, which was $246,821 over the estimate of anticipated revenue, by raising the estimate of revenue anticipated from tax penalties.

At the board meeting yesterday the commissioners voted to reconsider this suggestion and passed a resolution to reduce the estimate of the loss and cost of 1931 tax collections from 15 per cent to 12 per cent. It was estimated the 3 per cent reduction would add $315,214 to the estimated revenue against which the county could appropriate in 1933.

Gives County an Excess.

This method of balancing the budget gave the county an excess of $68,393 after deduction of the $246,821. The commissioners immediately voted to increase the mothers' pension fund by $33,000 and provide $35,393 for payment of claims which had previously been disallowed.

Commissioner William Busse registered the first dissenting vote without explaining his vote. Commissioner Grace Fleming said she was voting against the budget, on the advise of her attorney, because of the inclusion of the overdrafts.

"We should balance the budget in fact and not on paper," Commissioner George A. Miller said. "We are now merely fooling the public and ourselves. To balance the budget is not an insurmountable task. I vote no."

Miss Sears Votes No.

"I vote no," said Commissioner Amelia Sears, "because the state's attorney in an opinion held we have no power to charge the overdrafts. I have sympathy for some of the offending department heads; others should be called to time for obstructing and impeding the work of the controller's office by not sending their bills to the office for months at a time."

Commissioner John E. Traeger indorsed the views of Miller and Miss Sears in voting no.

Before adjourning the board passed a resolution deploring the attack on Mayor Cermak by an assassin and expressing hope for his recovery.

DR. EASTMAN WINS PERMANENT STAY AGAINST OUSTER

Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher yesterday overruled objections of attorneys for the state department of education and registration and entered a permanent injunction order restraining officials of the board from revoking the medical license of Dr. Lewis K. Eastman. The physician sought the injunction after he was tried by the medical examiners of the board on charges of unethical conduct.

In his petition Dr. Eastman charged that the medical examiners do not constitute a legal body, and alleged that through a misunderstanding of the rules of evidence they had admitted into testimony the assertions of many witnesses which should have been excluded. He stated that two of the witnesses had confessed to perjury, and said testimony regarding incidents of 10 years ago had been introduced. He asserted that this testimony should have been excluded under the statute of limitations.

Attorneys for the state board stated in a demurrer that Dr. Eastman's trial had been fair. The explained that no decision of the examining board has been returned, but said that the decision would be a valid one when it is given. In entering his order Judge Fisher overruled this demurrer. The board's attorneys announced they would appeal.

Owners Identify Bonds Fished Out of Canal

All except $3,000 of the $9,700 in bonds found by two men who were seeking water fleas in the sanitary canal at Howard avenue and the north shore channel road Wednesday, were identified at police headquarters yesterday. Harold F. Yegge, 500 North Dearborn street; officials of the L. C. Marks cigar making concern, 36 South State street, and the State Life Insurance company, 332 South Michigan avenue, identified $6,700 worth of the bonds as having been stolen from their safes.

JAPANESE ARMY NEARS CAPITAL IN JEHOL DRIVE

Two Columns Less than 75 Miles Away.

BULLETIN.

CHINCHOW, Manchuria, March 3 (Friday).—(AP)—Japan's 16th infantry brigade under Gen. Tadashi Kawahara was reported to have occupied Pingchuan, about 50 miles east of Jehol City today.

CHINCHOW, Manchuria, March 3.—(AP)—Japan's invading army has broken through the strongest Chinese defenses and tonight was less than 75 miles from Jehol City.

The 16th infantry, under Gen. Tadashi Kawahara, poured into Lingyuan this morning, passed through without stopping, captured the town of Ssutaoling, a few miles west, and kept right on to Pekung, on the motor highway which leads to the capital.

Gen. Kunizo Matsuda, commanding the 11th infantry, moved down from the north, having captured Chienping to join Gen. Kennosuke Mogi's 4th cavalry, which was waiting at Chihfeng.

Hoists Japanese Flag.

The cavalry took Chihfeng without a fight, for when they came within sight of the city Shi Wen-hua, the Chinese commander, already had hoisted the flags of Japan and Manchukuo. Apparently he was willing to throw in his lot with Gen. Mogi and join in the final advance against Jehol City.

Dispatches from that capital this evening said two Japanese planes had bombed the new airdrome near the city. All through the previous stages of the advance air raids have preceded the attack of the main force.

Gen. Tang Yu-lin, Chinese governor of Jehol, has given no sign of his intentions. The Japanese still hope he will surrender, and they welcome reports of friction between Tang and Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, commander in chief in North China.

The worst of the fighting in the mountains apparently is over, but there have been skirmishes, some of them heavy, indicating that the broken Chinese forces are worrying the Japanese flank. One such fight was reported east of Chihfeng and others on the line of march from Lingyuan.

Part of the advancing army is moving west along fairly good roads by motor trucks and armored cars from Lingyuan.

CHINA RUSHES TROOPS

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 3 [Friday].—As a result of the critical situation brought about by the practical collapse of Chinese resistance in Jehol province the Chinese government has decided to rush six divisions to north China from the Yangtze valley. According to an authoritative report here this morning one division already is en route.

Gen. Ho Ying-chin, chief of staff and second in command to Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, virtual dictator of China, left Shanghai last night for Nanking. It is reported that he is proceeding to Peiping at once.

China to Continue Resistance.

There is also an unconfirmed report that Marshal Chiang will reach Nanking today and that T. V. Soong, acting head of the executive yuan [council], is also scheduled to proceed to Peiping.

Dr. C. C. Wu, former minister to the United States, who was appointed chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the national government yesterday, in an interview with THE TRIBUNE correspondent today declared:

"The situation narrows down to whether China and the world generally can stand the strain of another year of warfare. China is determined to continue resistance, confidently believing that another twelve months' strain is certain to result in bankruptcy for Japan, culminating in a devastating revolution and overthrowing the ruling military clique."

However, Dr. Wu admitted that the strain of another year's battering by Japanese military machine also is likely to prove disastrous to China, but declared that China has no choice except to continue the struggle.

Dr. Wu is intensely interested in the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration's reactions to the far eastern crisis. He said that the situation facing Mr. Roosevelt is somewhat similar to the problem which faced Woodrow Wilson as a consequence of the European struggle.

Fears for U. S. Interests.

Dr. Wu declared that he is convinced America is determined to keep clear of entanglements likely to lead to American involvement in the far eastern struggle. Dr. Wu said:

"But, despite the obvious determination of American leaders to keep clear of oriental entanglements, no one is able to forecast what is likely to happen as vitally affecting America's commercial, shipping and financial interests in the Pacific area, not to mention her territorial interests in Hawaii, Guam, the Philippines, and elsewhere. Nations are not always free agents, but frequently are victims of circumstances, hence it is impossible to forecast future eventualities, even if the struggle here continues indefinitely."

Chinese League Group Quits.

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 2.—(AP)—Dr. W. W. Yen, head of the Chinese delegation to the Chinese delegation to the league of nations; Dr. Wellington Koo, and Quo Tai-chi, his colleagues, submitted their resignations today in a telegram to Nanking.

In their view, they informed the government, the center of the dispute between China and Japan has shifted from Geneva to Jehol. They recommended that the firmest resistance be offered against the invasion of that province.

POLICE FIRE ON BOETTCHER CASE GANG SUSPECTS

Find Father Paid $60,000 —Bills Listed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Denver, Colo., March 2.—[Special.]—Hundreds of weary policemen pushed their search tonight for the abductors of Charles Boettcher II. The kidnapers had released their captive last night after collecting $60,000 ransom from his multi-millionaire father, Claude K. Boettcher.

It appeared today the extortionists have escaped the police, who circled the city shortly before the younger Boettcher was to be released.

The search was pressed tonight, however, in north Colorado and south central Wyoming. Policemen engaged in a gun fight near Greeley, Colo., with men fleeing in an automobile similar to that used by the kidnapers.

After one of the suspects was believed to be wounded the chase was pressed into Wyoming, but those pursued escaped near Cheyenne early this morning. An airplane was used in the hunt today.

Boettcher, who is 31, is the heir to one of the largest fortunes in the entire west. He was secluded in his home tonight with his wife, from whom he was taken February 12 and held more than sixteen days.

Held in Wyoming?

"I think the kidnapers took me into Wyoming," Boettcher said today, "but I can't be sure as my eyes were taped before we had driven a block.

"By whom I was held I cannot say. I believe I was confined in the basement of a house about eighteen hours fast driving away from Denver.

"The first I knew I was going to be released was the night the kidnapers told me we were going back to Denver. They said negotiations had been completed, but did not tell me what the arrangements were.

"Thank God its over."

Boettcher was released in a residential district and from a nearby drug store he telephoned to his father. A short time later he was home asleep, exhausted, but physically unharmed.

He's Tired and Nervous.

Boettcher talked to THE TRIBUNE correspondent immediately after rising at noon today. He appeared tired and nervous. He wore a silken bathrobe. His eyes were swollen from the tape.

Police said today Claude G. Boettcher had absolute proof of the authenticity of the many typewritten notes he believed came from the abductors. All had on them an X, at the end of the written matter and this enabled Boettcher to sort out the genuine notes from the scores of "crank" letters he received.

It was understood here today that the $60,000 ransom was paid in twenty dollar bills. A record of their serial numbers was kept.

JAPAN TO SEND ENVOY OF 'GOOD-WILL' TO U. S.; TO EXPLAIN POLICIES

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, March 2.—Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, former ambassador to the United States, in view of the development at Geneva, will visit the United States in May to promote in an unofficial capacity a more favorable impression of Japan's policies.

Viscount Ishii, who is president of the League of Nations association in this country, described Japan's break with the league as "definite but not necessarily permanent," though he said the question of Japan's renewal of relations lay entirely in the future.

A continuation of Geneva's attitude regarding boycotts, he asserted, would make it impossible for Japan ever to reënter league councils.

"The real cause of all the present troubles in the far east is anti-foreign agitation inflamed by the Red elements rampant in China, with on central government to suppress illicit movements," he said.

LEAGUE TO APPLY CHACO ARMS BAN IF U. S. WILL, TOO

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, March 2.—Members of the league of nations' council unanimously approved tonight the terms of a declaration drawn up by its committee on Latin-American conflicts for a world-wide embargo on arms shipments to Bolivia and Paraguay, foes in the Gran Chaco dispute. This is subject to acceptance by the governments before a formal adoption.

In contrast with the Manchurian case, where Great Britain declared a similar embargo regardless of others, the British tonight joined in a provision making application of the Chaco embargo depend on acceptance by certain states, notably the United States.

It was discovered today that the league, since neither combatant nation had invoked the covenant, lacked a legal basis for an embargo. To supply one the committee will itself invoke article XI, and request the council to meet soon under this article.

WARRANT OUT FOR EX-CLERK.

Maurice J. Cline, 30 years old, a former clerk in the Municipal court probation department, accused of assault with a revolver by Walter Pinyestak, a restaurant owner, failed to appear yesterday before Judge Frank M. Padden and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

FRENCH PREMIER PLANS TRIP TO LONDON ON DEBTS

PARIS, March 2.—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier, eager to get first-hand information of the British attitude on current international problems, including war debts, is considering a trip to London this month.

He has not definitely decided upon the date for the trip, but it will probably be about March 15.

Now that the premier has obtained passage of the government's financial proposals, the danger of his overthrow is slight and he is expected to devote more time to the pressing problems of foreign relations.

ABORTION of Colds

(with lemon juice)

Do you sometimes get colds that hang-on for days? That's because the remedy used does not drive the cold symptoms from your system. Try cold abortion and you'll find these stubborn colds broken up and gone within a few hours. To abort a cold, squeeze two full-sized lemons in a glass of very hot water, to be taken preferably at bedtime. Two hours before, start taking a tablet of Pape's Cold Compound each hour. After the third tablet take the lemon juice and hot water without sugar, and go to bed, well-covered. Sound sleep will follow, and the cold will be aborted by morning. The lemon juice treatment never fails, but you must have the Cold Compound to clear the head, dry the nasal passages, and allay any fever. Any druggist has Pape's Cold Compound; it is perfectly safe, and a tablet will check a cold at any time.

OLD RIVER PORTS HAIL NEW ERA OF WATERWAY TRADE

Crowds Greet Tribune's Boat on Tour.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pearl, Ill., March 2.—Old ports along the Illinois river are looking forward to a revival of the trade of the steamboating days, now that the Illinois waterway is opened, with barges and tugs taking the place of the old stern wheeler packets for the movement of freight.

At the same time, the river towns are predicting that once the beauties of the river for pleasure and recreation purposes become known the old style steamboat may find profitable passenger traffic in plying as far north as Brandon road at Joliet. A week on the river is one of the greatest rest cures known, and the ports are looking for a growing movement of small pleasure craft. Fishing and duck hunting is getting better than ever.

At Beardstown, home of Senator Elect William H. Dieterich, citizens came down to the dock and visited THE TRIBUNE'S boat, Sea King, which is making a pioneer trip over the newly completed Illinois waterway. The craft remained at Beardstown for an hour.

Passes Barge Tows.

The shipping season started yesterday, March 2, and this morning on the run from Havana to Beardstown, the Sea King, the first over the new waterway, passed two tows. The Mary Ellen, a sternwheeler, went by shoving a barge upstream, and shortly afterwards the General Ashburn of the Federal Barge line passed, throwing water from its stern as it shoved two great steel barges on its first upstream trip this season to the Peoria terminal. At Havana a federal barge was being loaded with Mason county corn for Liverpool via New Orleans.

Self-propelled barges, barge tows, power boats and other types of craft that will ply in a nine foot channel are the vessels that will use the new Illinois waterway. Among some the idea still seems to prevail that lake vessels are going to sail down river from Lake Michigan—a reminiscense of the speeches at Springfield a generation ago "ocean liners sailing past the yellow corn fields of Illinois."

From Joliet to Beardstown, the talk has been that river ports are now thrown open to lakes to gulf navigation.

New Port of 243,000.

A new lake port comprising some 22 Illinois cities with a population of 243,000 in effect is now thrown open to commerce by the opening of the waterway. It sets communities with an aggregate of more than a quarter million people on the shores of the "inland Mediterranean" for all practical purposes. This new lake port, it has been pointed out during the Sea King's voyage, equals the size of some of the important old ports, both on the lakes and seaboard.

The port between Joliet and Beardstown with its combined population of 243,000, is two-fifths the size of Milwaukee with its 578,000, or of Buffalo with 573,000. It is almost one-third the size of Boston, and half the size of New Orleans, the great port of the south.

The following towns passed by the Sea King constitutes a new lake port: Joliet, 42,993 population; Rockdale, 1,701; Morris, 5,568; Seneca, 1,120; Marseilles, 4,292; Ottawa, 15,094; Utica, 1,520; La Salle, 13,149; Peru, 9,121; Spring Valley, 5,270; Hennepin, 377; Henry, 1,658; Lacon, 1,548; Chillicothe, 1,978; Rome, 220; Mossville, 162; Peoria Heights, 3,279; Averyville, 3,815; Peoria, 104,699; Pekin, 16,129; Havana, 3,451; Beardstown, 6,344.

Bigger Than 5 Gulf Ports.

The size of this combined port in the 22 Illinois cities is larges than five important gulf ports combined—Tampa, Pensacola, Mobile, Biloxi, and Gulfport, which together have 226,000 population. It is as large as the Florida ports of Jacksonville and Miami, which, combined, have 239,000. It is larger in population than any port on the Atlantic seaboard south of Baltimore or north of Boston.

Among the citizens of Beardstown who came down to the boat during its stay at the dock were L. G. Shaeffer, editor of the Illinoisan Star; G. O. Baujan, merchant; Tom Brennan, grocer; Cyril Ratcliffe, E. E. Schultz, Vern Von Fossen, W. M. Langdon, Carl Ed, John White, Mrs. L. R. Fosgate, Mrs. C. F. Schroeder, Minnie Fisher, Mrs. H. W. Welch, and Marguerite Dieckhaus.

Important Fishing Stream.

The Illinois river is rated as one of the most important streams of its size in the production of fresh water fish. Havana is still the fish center along the river. Carp and buffalo are the chief commercial fish and most of the Illinois river fish is shipped to Chicago and New York.

The Illinois bottoms are still regarded as the best game fishing grounds of the state, also the best hunting grounds for wild fowl. The bass fishing was injured by the drainage of lakes and sloughs to make farms to produce crops to increase the food surplus, and the carp has raised havoc with the bass, but the region is still a great fishing area.

Cabins and shacks dot the river banks in the Havana-Beardstown area, most of them built on stilts to keep them above flood waters.

River Water Is Clearer.

C. A. [McKey] Gillen, of Havana, director of a dredge company, who came down to the Sea King with other visitors as the craft was tied up at Havana last night, declares that the river has vastly improved since the Chicago sewage disposal plants have been extended. The clearing of the water has been commented upon all the way down the waterway. The Gillen family, pioneers in the water transportation field, sailed in the river packets. Now the third generation sees river traffic developed by barges, self propelled or pushed.

"The waterways," said Mr. Gillen, "have gone through an evolution just as land transportation has. We hope that Canadian waterway treaty is killed, for our new waterway won't be much use without sufficient water."

Beardstown in former years was wont to get its greatest publicity in flood years, when the water rose in the business section and the hotel lobby had four feet of water. A long concrete retaining wall has been built to guard the town against future inundation. Fish shacks and docks give the river bank a piscatorial atmosphere.

At La Grange lock, the Sea King passed the towboat Harold Grant pushing a corn barge—the third tow met during the morning.

Railroad Built 90 Years Ago.

Meredosia, a few miles down stream, lies at one of the most beautiful spots on the lower river. This town was the terminal of the famous Northern Cross railroad, built by the state 90 years ago, when railroads were something new. It was the only railroad completed under the internal improvement act of 1837, under which the state of Illinois undertook to build about 1,340 miles of railroad and improve every navigable stream.

The Meredosia-Springfield road, 58 miles long, was completed in 1842. It cost about a million dollars, and in 1847 it was sold by the state at auction for $21,100 to Nicholas H. Ridgely of Springfield. It now forms part of the Wabash system.

The Illinois in its lower channel has low water banks thickly overgrown with trees and brush, and the bottoms are jungles of trees and climbing vines. Rushes and water grasses grow high, and wild fowl are abundant. The river itself, a broad stream, widens out at places into sloughs and lakes, such as Liverpool lake, Quiver lake, and Muscooten bay, and at spots the water expanse is so wide that it looks almost like flood time.

Hamlets Along the River.

Below Meredosia sleepy hamlets are strung along the river—Naples, Valley City, Florence, Montezuma, Bedford, and Pearl. At Naples an ancient red brick building on the bank appears to date back to old steamboating days. There is a grain elevator on the bank, with pipes hanging over the water for barge traffic.

At Kampsville is another lock. In the 230 miles from the Illinois river mouth at Grafton, where it flows into the Mississippi, up to the Utica dam at Starved Rock, where the new Illinois waterway begins, there are only two locks—Kampsville and La Grange. These are at dams which were put in to control river levels, and in high water some boats sail over the dam.

A few miles above Florence the river swings close to the hills and the right bank becomes more rugged.

STERN WHEELER OPENS BARGE ERA ON WATERWAY

U. S. Boat Is Welcomed to Chicago.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

As unpretentiously as many another pioneer, the government sternwheeler Gouverneur made history yesterday on the Chicago river. Barring a scream from the siren of a passing fireboat, and three long blasts and one short one from a fussy little tug at Adams street—the harbor salute—the first vessel to travel upriver through the newly completed Illinois waterway tied up last night without a flourish at the Michigan avenue bridge.

No demonstration had been expected or planned, because the fanfare of the formal opening is to take place in June. Officials from Washington will be here then, and there will be all the clamor and color of an expansive fête. But the arrival yesterday in Chicago of the Gouverneur, a blue and white United States engineer's department towboat, marked the actual opening of a river barge traffic expected to total between seven and ten million dollars yearly in normal times. The Gouverneur began its upstream trip at St. Louis, starting yesterday's lap at Lockport.

City Crowds Shout Welcome.

From behind the traffic barriers of Chicago's thirty-two bridges as the tugboat passed, autoists and pedestrians waved and shouted as the ship passed through the river yesterday. From scores of windows of skyscrapers bordering the river office workers waved hands and handkerchiefs.

The nearest thing to a real demonstration was provided by a large group of school children on the south end of the Market street bridge, who cheered loudly as the boat passed. But the suspicion lingered with passengers and crew that it was the Mississippi river atmosphere of the big paddle wheel, rather than the historic occasion, that inspired their enthusiasm.

Just east of the Damen avenue bridge the Gouverneur tied up for a short time to take aboard some passengers, half a dozen girls and a few men from the offices of the engineering department in the 333 North Michigan building.

Then it chugged upstream with Capt. Martin Houston and most of his guests grouped around the huge wheel in the glass inclosed pilot house, surveying the scene unfolding before them with vast interest. Bridge after bridge responded to the three blasts of the signal by making way for the boat. Some lifted majestically at angles, some swung aside, and the Pennsylvania trestlework was raised like an elevator, to permit clearance. As the boat neared the loop the passengers went up on deck despite the stiff breezes, to watch the progress until the Wrigley building was reached.

The Gouverneur carries a crew of eight. Three waterway engineers joined the boat at Lockport for the trip into Chicago. They were Lieut. D. A. D. Ogden of the Chicago area, Capt. H. H. Pohl of the Peoria area, and E. H. Beechley of the Joliet area.

The first boat to make the northern trip through the waterway wintered at St. Louis and left there Feb. 3, stopping frequently on the route. At Ottawa it was tied up for three days because of the severe weather. Two days ago the completion of the Dresden Island lock and dam, the final unit of the stretch between Lockport and Starved Rock, was opened, permitting the Gouverneur to pass through and on to the mouth of the Chicago river.

At Morris the two record making boats, THE TRIBUNE'S Sea King, making the initial trip downstream, and the Gouverneur halted to exchange salutations, before the little motor boat resumed its voyage toward the south and the government boat moved on northward.

Back to Joliet Today.

The Gouverneur will start back this morning to Joliet, its permanent station. There it will be used in sweeping the channel and in placing buoys and in other maintenance work. Its 250 horsepower Diesel engine is not sufficient to permit its being used for pushing a train of barges, freight laden, as will craft of its type having 700 to 2,000 horsepower.

One of these barge trains, with a load of grain, is expected from St. Louis in about ten days, Lieut. Ogden reported.

BAYER SPEED! BAYER

The quickest relief for a headache is two tablets of Bayer Aspirin. You've heard doctors say this. If you have tried it, you know! The tablet bearing the Bayer cross dissolves very rapidly and brings rapid relief. There is no known medicine that works quite like Bayer Aspirin for the awful head and face pains of neuralgia. There is nothing with quite the same effectiveness in relieving the pains of rheumatism.

But a more important advantage to the tablets of Bayer manufacture is their absolute safety. Their purity and uniformity are tested thirty-six times! Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart, does not upset the stomach, does not have any ill effect; you could take it every day without harm. . . .

Time counts when you're in pain—and safety is always important. Stick to genuine Bayer Aspirin!

And Bayer means Safe!

ORLANDO SCOTT INDICTED BY U. S. IN WAR RISK QUIZ

Psychiatrist Is Accused of Perjury.

Dr. Orlando F. Scott, physician and psychiatrist, was indicted on two charges of perjury yesterday by the federal grand jury. The indictment was returned before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, who set the bond at $2,500 on each charge. It was alleged that Dr. Scott testified falsely in two war insurance cases.

DR. ORLANDO F. SCOTT.

Richard Birdwell, Negro veteran, in whose case Dr. Scott testified, was also indicted on a charge of perjury. His bond was set at $1,000. The maximum punishment on each charge of perjury is 5 years' imprisonment and a fine of $2,000.

Cites Negro for Contempt.

The indictments resulted from an investigation conducted by District Attorney Dwight Green and agents of the bureau of investigation. Twenty witnesses testified before the grand jury. The inquiry was begun at the direction of Federal Judge John P. Barnes, who last Jan. 10 halted the hearing of Birdwell's suit, in which the Negro sought to collect $5,000 from the government for alleged war disabilities. Judge Barnes directed a verdict for the government and cited Birdwell for contempt. He said the suit bore traces of perjury.

Dr. Scott, who has testified as an expert medical witness in scores of celebrated trials in Chicago, appeared in behalf of Birdwell and testified that the Negro was suffering from tuberculosis. This diagnosis was contradicted by government physicians.

Lawyers Aid Government.

Birdwell was represented in his suit by Attorney Edward H. S. Martin, law partner of State Senator James J. Barbour. Both Mr. Martin and Senator Barbour signed immunity waivers and testified before the grand jury.

In its investigation of Dr. Scott's testimony in the Birdwell case, the grand jury also considered the connection of the physician as expert witness in another war risk insurance case under investigation, that of George Green. The second charge of perjury against Dr. Scott was the result of thi investigation.

AGED MAN IS DROWNED.

Clay City, Ill., March 2.—(AP)—Arthur W. Rochey, 75, was drowned in a slough of the Little Wabash river here late yesterday. A dog was watching the body when it was found by a searching party. Rochey apparently had struggled out of deep water and had fallen face downward in shallow water.

1 KILLED, 5 HURT AS AUTOS CRASH ON SOUTH SIDE

William H. Coyne, 22 years old, 6502 Harvard avenue, was killed and five other persons were injured, two of them critically, early this morning when a small coupe and a sedan collided and overturned at 71st street and Normal avenue. One of the seriously injured is Miss Caroline Webster, 19 years old, 6359 Stewart avenue. She was found unconscious under the overturned coupe.

The other person seriously hurt is Matthew Hickey, 65 years old, 7542 Champlain avenue, a retired policeman, driver of the sedan. The others injured are Clark Payne, 22 years old, 9812 Charles street, who was riding with Hickey, and Edmund Ross, 23 years old, 7215 Harvard avenue, and Eugene Ogle, 20 years old, 310 West 65th street, who were in the coupe with Coyne. Ross was the driver.

The death of Coyne raised the county motor fatality toll to 134 since Jan. 1.

WIDOW IS FREED IN GHOST TRIAL OVER BOMBING

Demonstration Staged by Friends After Verdict.

Mrs. Ella Hopkins, 53 years old, a widow, and Dr. Lester J. Offner, charged with conspiracy to bomb the filling station of William Lambert at 5758 Higgins road, were found not guilty by a jury in Judge Thomas J. Lynch's court late last night.

The conclusion of the "ghost" trial, as it had come to be known, was marked by a loud demonstration of friends of the widow and doctor, who had waited five hours for the jury's verdict.

Paid Only for Punch in Nose.

The jurors apparently accepted the stories of the accused that they had on part in the bombing, but had merely paid James De Milio, who is awaiting trial, to "punch Lambert in the nose and give him a couple of black eyes." The widow resorted to this expediency, she testified, to appease the ghost of her late husband, Lafayette Hopkins, which she said haunted her dreams and made her life "a living hell."

Mrs. Hopkins had been warned by er husband just before his death that he would return in spirit form and haunt her if she ever sold the house, she testified, and after she had sold the place to Lambert, during a session of wine drinking, the spirits of her husband and father-in-law began to appear and demand that she "get back that homestead." Lambert refused to sell.

Mrs. Hopkins wept as she told of paying Dr. Offner $360 to hire a thug to "punch Lambert in the nose." Questioned by her attorney, James M. Burke, she repeated her testimony that she never knew of a plot to bomb the filling station.

Surprise Witness Called.

Dr. Offner also denied any knowledge of a plot to bomb Lambert's filling station. He testified he received $350 from Mrs. Hopkins for the purpose of hiring a thug to punch Lambert's nose.

"James DeMilio was hired to strike Lambert," he said, "but he had no instructions to bomb the place as far as I know." Offner's attorney, Samuel Hoffman, then called Dr. J. M. Houston, 1614 Roosevelt road, a surprise witness. He asked Dr. Houston, who at one time treated Dr. Offner, a series of hypothetical questions tending to show that Dr. Houston considered Dr. Offner to be of unsound mind. In answering, Dr. Houston referred to a sheaf of notes.

When the direct examination was finished Prosecutor Charles S. Dougherty seized the notes and requested Judge Thomas J. Lynch to impound them. The request was granted. "These notes are written on fresh paper and I believe there may be perjury here," said the prosecutor.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 60; recovered, 69; stripped, 12, for 24 hours ending at midnight Wednesday.

JUDGE ADVISES PASTOR TO TAKE SON TO WOODSHED

The Rev. W. C. A. Martens, 9037 Houston avenue, pastor of the Emanuel Lutheran church, was advised yesterday to hold an old fashioned woodshed conference with his son, Winfred, 19 years old, after the boy confessed the theft of jewelry valued at $1,100 from his mother.

The advice was given by Municipal Judge Justin F. McCarthy, after he had dismissed charges of grand larceny against Winfred and the youth's friend, Kermit Weinberger, 18 years old, 9052 Exchange avenue. The charges were dismissed at the request of the minister, who had made them.

Mrs. Martens missed her jewelry on Tuesday, and police, after finding no evidence that burglars had broken into the house, questioned Winfred. He confessed that he had taken the jewelry and given it to the Weinberger boy, who was planning to sell it for old gold. The jewelry was recovered.

"I suggest," said Judge McCarthy, "that you get the old fashioned shingle out of the woodshed and apply it briskly to the seat of his pants. The same goes for Weinberger. It's tragic when such fine boys do something like this."

Freed from Reformatory; Fatally Shot in Holdup

Decatur, Ill., March 2.—(AP)—Within 48 hours after his release from Pontiac reformatory, Vestur Maxey committed two holdups, was wounded and died today in a hospital here. Maxey, from Carmi, was shot last night by the proprietor of a filling station at Pierson, Ill., after he had held it up. Shortly before he had robbed a home at Bluemound near here and had fired upon Thomas Bankson, who arrived home while Maxey was there.

ROB HOTEL MAN OF $16 AND GUN.

Two polite gunmen early yesterday robbed Robert Dorris, night manager of the Beaconshire hotel, 4706 Beacon street, of $16 and his revolver in the lobby of the hotel.

JAIL HANGING CASE GOES TO JURY TODAY

Petersburg, Ill., March 2.—[Special.]—Closing arguments in the murder trial of Deputy Sheriffs Ernest L. Fleming and Charles O. Skinner, both of Pekin, were started today before Circuit Judge Guy Williams.

The case was brought here on a change of venue from Tazewell county. The deputies are accused of hanging Martin Virant in his cell last Sept. 1 in Pekin.

State's Attorney Nathan T. Elliff told the jury that Virant was the victim of a beating and then hanged by his belt to cover up the crime. Elliff also brought out the point that Deputy Skinner should have cut Virant down at once before waiting for Coroner A. E. Allen, Pekin, to do the work.

The case will go to the jury about noon today.

THE ST. LAWRENCE TREATY AND THE SENATE.

Up to date the powerful sectional interests supporting the St. Lawrence seaway treaty have had their way. Our state department characteristically ignored the views of the central states in a desire to please the British and build a canal for British trade with Canada. That accounts for the form in which the treaty is cast and the inclusion in it of the provision limiting the flow from Lake Michigan into the Illinois waterway.

Thereupon the treaty went from the state department to the senate. It has now been approved by the foreign relations committee. In committee the division was largely along sectional lines. The northwest, which thinks it is going to export its wheat from Duluth to Liverpool without transfer, voted for the treaty. So did the lake states, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Wisconsin, all of which, perhaps by accident, happened to be represented on the committee. The organized business interests of these states think to destroy the usefulness of the Illinois waterway when the restriction on the diversion is written into international rather than national law. The middle and lower Mississippi valley was underrepresented on the committee and their representatives were not of one mind. Black of Alabama voted in favor of the treaty, no doubt because Alabama has its waterway to the steel mills, built at federal expense, and doesn't have to depend on navigation of the Mississippi. The support of the treaty by Harrison of Mississippi in committee may be followed by insistence on adequate reservations later.

The opposition to the treaty of Senator Wagner of New York was highly significant. An effort has been made to sell the treaty to New Yorkers on the theory that their state is going to get a monopoly of cheap power at federal expense. Senator Wagner did not fall for this gold brick and, if he did not, there is ample reason to think that representatives of other states to which the treaty offers nothing but an added tax burden will be found on his side.

It is doubtful if a plainer case of state department subservience and senatorial gullibility could be adduced than the vote of the majority on this treaty. Lake Michigan belongs to the United States by right of conquest from the British. It is as much an American lake as is the Great Salt lake. The right to use its waters is an American right, to be exercised in its discretion by our government acting in the interest of all the people of the United States. Elihu Root was alive to the issue and refused, point blank, to compromise our position in previous negotiations. It remained for Mr. Stimson, with his preoccupation with Asiatic problems and his fondness for shooting on the Scotch moors, to sacrifice our rights as if they were of no consequence or value.

An ironic commentary on the action of the senate committee is afforded by the fact that within a few weeks of the vote in support of the treaty the first commercial passage of the Illinois waterway was undertaken. The same senate which voted funds to complete the lakes-to-gulf link is now asked to vote a treaty which may destroy the usefulness of that route by depriving it of the water needed to maintain it. Another ironic commentary is found in the fact that in the months during which the senate committee deliberated scarcely a bushel of American wheat, to transport which the canal is contemplated, moved into the Liverpool market.

CHICAGO, A CONQUERED PROVINCE.

With the handing over of another six million dollars for emergency relief in Illinois the Reconstruction Finance corporation issued a warning that this grant marked the end of federal largesse in this state. The corporation is restricted by law to a maximum loan of 45 million dollars to any one state. Except for a few hundred thousand dollars, Illinois has received its full quota. If the state wishes to care for its unfortunates it must now provide the money out of its own resources.

This warning, with its note of self-righteousness and its implied criticism of the people of Illinois, would come with better grace if it came from an agency less closely allied with the federal treasury. The R. F. C. is simply a sluice through which money from the federal treasury is redistributed to the country. The federal treasury gets its revenue for much the most part from the people of half a dozen states, Illinois being among them, of course. Ninety per cent of the federal income taxes paid in Illinois come from Chicago. Last year, in the depths of depression, the federal government extorted from the people and businesses of Chicago a tribute to twice the amount which the R. F. C. has lent back to the community for poor relief. Much of this blood money was dissipated throughout the country, notably in the beggar states which have an immensely disproportionate voice in the decisions of the national government and use their advantage for their own profit.

Chicago is squeezed like a Roman province. The federal government reluctantly lends back to this community half of the tribute taken and then expects the people of Chicago to support their own governments and the poor besides. Chicago is expected in addition to take the chiding of the R. F. C. in good part and to confess its derelictions in not caring for its own. It is true, of course, that we have leaned heavily upon the federal treasury for relief funds, but the reason is obvious: our own means have been extorted from us and there is not enough left in the community to meet its need.

THE EMBARGO.

Senator Lewis gave some very good advice in the senate Tuesday in discussing the proposed embargo on arms. "Let America keep her place, carry out her policies separately, remain neutral and protect her own existence and her trade."

But this strikes a sour note in the concert of our internationalists at Washington. Nothing is farther from official ideas of American policy at this time than minding our own business. Our diplomacy is engaged in larger and loftier affairs than protecting the peace and material interests of the American people.

Nevertheless we have hope that the senate is not so enraptured with the rôle of world monitorship and universal meddling with other people's affairs as to swallow the embargo. A little consideration of this device will impress the senate, we think, with the fact that it is a diplomatic gamble if not a diplomatic fraud. As a gamble we do not know which belligerent it will help or hurt worse. As a fraud we know it will have no important effect as a restraint upon Japanese operations and perhaps little upon Chinese. Japan is well supplied with arms and if the Chinese government has means to buy more, the embargo, so far as it prevented sales to China, would be an astonishing annex to Mr. Stimson's theory of Japanese aggression. The motives of the British government in proposing the embargo will be variously interpreted, but in spite of the show of official resentment at Tokio we shall be foolish if we take it as evidence of a serious intention in Downing street to discipline Japan. Senator Borah's theory that it is equivalent to taking sides with Japan has every apparent support in the observable circumstances of China which is now underarmed and unable to manufacture armament while Japan is well armed and able to maintain her supply substantially.

Meanwhile the expressed suspicion of Japanese officials that our state department has had a hand in the matter will not seem fanciful to any one who has followed Mr. Stimson's management of our diplomacy. There are reasons to believe that the British government might be pleased to make a gesture which would please the sentimentalists who seem to control American diplomacy at this time, while doing Japan a service. The embargo may be interpreted by our naive altruism as a measure to check war, in spite of Chinese protests against it as an aid to Japanese military aggression.

But we hope the voice of common sense is not entirely silenced at Washington. The embargo is loaded with trouble for us, whichever belligerent it damages, and perhaps the senate will show some sense of responsibility for American interests which the embargo proposal ignores. Is it too much to hope that it may also impress upon the incoming government the expediency of getting our foreign policy back upon an American basis?

NEED FOR THE VETO.

The present congress has yielded persistently to the pressure which special interests applied in favor of expenditure. It has ignored the public demand for retrenchment and tax relief. The special interests have won all along the line. The result has been the appropriation of hundreds of millions of dollars which the nation cannot bear.

In such a situation it would seem to be the President's duty as representative of the common interest of the nation to use the executive veto unflinchingly. We think it is a duty also to the incoming administration which ought not to be saddled with burdens that will impair its ability to meet the complicated and heavy problems it inherits. That its own party organization and membership in congress share responsibility for the defeat of economy is obvious, but the President represents all the nation regardless of party and he can serve the whole nation, as well as the ultimate credit of his party, by using the veto in defense of the overburdened taxpayer to the full extent practicable under the law.

Editorial of the Day

THE DECLARATION OF WARE.

[New York Times.]

Ware, in Calvin Coolidge's county of Hampshire in Massachusetts, had a town meeting the other night. The hall was crammed. The majority of the citizens were bound to cut appropriations for everything except relief work. They got what they wanted. After the meeting Tom Prendergast said: "They cut everything but the old pine tree." The appropriations committee recommended a cut of 15 per cent in all wages and salaries. The meeting voted a 5 per cent cut in addition except in regard to wages. Cheered by this good beginning the friends of economy forced reduction upon reduction all along the line. Even the schools and the library had to take their medicine. The superintendent of schools wasted his eloquence and poetry. This time the Ware folk meant business.

They wound up a good night's work with a set of resolutions that have an eighteenth century ring. After reciting the privations of the townsmen, "heavily oppressed with taxes in multiplied form," the resolutions called the special attention of the great and general court to the serious situation in Ware. The citizens of Ware are to petition that court for such changes in the laws as will bring about > the elimination of the many state commissions which now interfere with local self-government and which have usurped local rights; the reduction of salaries of public officials, and the stoppage of paternal activities of our state government so we can conduct our own local affairs and not be governed by state house strangers.

The inhabitants of Ware wish to return to the happier conditions of their ancestors. They object to being inspected, interfered with, ordered about by a pack of expensive and useless placemen. They say to the intruding busybodies and job makers under the gilded dome, "Mind your own business and give us the right to mind ours." If the spirit of Ware spreads the great and general court, which has resisted savagely efforts to reduce its pay and loves to poke its inquisitive nose and regulating hand into matters that are none of its concern, may yet be driven into abolishing superfluous offices, lessening the expenses of government, lightening instead of continually raising taxation, and restoring local autonomy.

What Ware says every town in the United States feels.

A SURE THING.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Pvt. S. J.

THIS MACHINE AGE, according to the national educators assembled in convention in Minneapolis, is making it necessary for us to train men in hobbies and in other things to do in our spare time. Well, as we've often been told, the hair of the dog will cure its bite. While the machines have given us a lot of spare time they are also busy at work turning out things for us to do in our unemployed moments. Think of the miles of machinery that are busy making jigsaw puzzles and the other machines that are turning out lumber and cardboard to paste the puzzles on before they're sawed up. Of course lots of people waste the spare time the machines have given them by just sitting still and imagining they see before them a table on which rests a great steaming piece of roast beef, rare, with gravy just oozing out of it, and boiled potatoes and peas in cream and celery, young onions and things roosting all around it.

AND OTHER PEOPLE, instead of having a nice hobby for their idle moments, think too much about how nice it would be to have a fine roast goose to play with or a fried Maryland chicken. And other idle minds believe that a fat ham sandwich or a succulent hot dog with plenty of mustard would make a swell hobby. Hobbies are nice things and, while Alpine climbing or hunting tigers and elephants in Africa or catching sailfish in Florida waters are splendid hobbies, giving health as well as recreation, there are certain reasons why they cannot be indulged in by all of us.

BUT THERE ARE always the jigsaw puzzles and crossword puzzles, and for those who cannot even avail themselves of jigsaw or crossword puzzles there are always other ways in which people with a little intelligence and ingenuity can have much pleasure in their unoccupied moments. For instance, cockroach racing is rare sport and in a great city like Chicago there is no lack of cockroaches. It is very easy to make a hobby out of cockroaches, they are such diverting little animals and there are so many of 'em.

GO FORTH.

Go forth, go forth, O poet,
And stand in market-place,
Singing your golden visions
No turmoil can efface.

True that your music never
Can feed a hungry throng,
That you cannot warm the ragged
With the garment of a song;

But something in all this misery
Has aching need of you. Sing!
Sing your faith to a people
Bowed with suffering!

Tell them they live to conquer;
That men were never made
To lie for long thus bleeding
With wounds from thong and blade.

Tell them no force is potent
To keep them from their own;
That strength within their sinews
Comes not from bread alone.

Tell them Heaven is steadfast
That gave mankind at birth
The heritage transcendent—
Dominion over earth.

Go forth! Sing to the people
Words that shall lift them now,
God's truth on your lips, O poet,
His mark of light on your brow!

ADELAIDE LOVE.

THREE-THREE-THIRTY-THREE! Touch wood—that sounds ominous! But it's true, that's today, 3-3-33. And what makes it worse, it's Friday. A. H. F. warned us about it and we went right home and dug out our left hind leg of a graveyard rabbit and the old horse chestnut and the three hairs from the tail of a black, crosseyed alley cat. We'll need 'em all today, 3-3-33. Gosh!

IT'S MOST UNFORTUNATE, of course, that that young Scots officer is locked up in the great, gloomy Tower of London charged with selling military secrets. On the other hand the idea of a prisoner in the Tower of London is such a relief these standardized, depression ridden, bootlegging, machine days. We have become so prosaic and a prisoner in the Tower rather stirs the imagination. Usually today all we read about is suspected people being put on the spot or taken for a ride or kidnaped and held for ransom. We've been so fed up on that sort of thing that a prisoner in the Tower of London stirs the blood and we hunt around to find Stevenson's "St. Ives" or Walter Scott's Waverley novels or Dumas' "The Man in the Iron Mask" or "Count of Monte Christo" or Anthony Hope's "Prisoner of Zenda." The prisoner in the Tower brings back the days of glorious romance when they put men in jail for something besides rum running and not paying your ex-wife alimony.

in quiet manner, with restraint, even she has given over to an earthly lover.

She is still virgin, like the moon who rides into the gaze of men night after night,
letting them know her well enough,
(round and silver, silver and white),
letting them know her well enough,
giving nothing, giving less than hands filled up with emptiness.

CONSUMPTION AND NURSES.

THE battle among physicians as to the efficacy of vaccination against consumption continues. In America the majority are in opposition, but even they are watching the reports as they appear, willing to reverse themselves when they consider the evidence justifies it.

Dr. J. Heinbeck of Norway periodically reports in its favor. He is in charge of a large sanitarium in his own country and a considerable number of young women come to his institution to be trained as nurses. Years ago he became convinced that many of his nurses in training contracted consumption as a result of the exposures of their work and that it was his duty to find a method of prevention.

Other physicians connected with tuberculosis sanitariums have found too many of their nurses tuberculous, and why not? Young women are a shining mark for consumption. The disease, as it appears in adolescent women, is being found hard to bring under control.

Dr. E. K. Geer of Minnesota has recently advised that before any young woman is taken on as a nurse in a consumption hospital that her chest be X-rayed and that she be carefully examined for tuberculosis, both active and latent. Dr. Geer would deny training to all except those picked by this test.

In the case of smallpox, typhoid fever, diphtheria, and scarlet fever, hospitals will not permit a nurse to care for a patient suffering from any of these diseases unless she has been immunized by vaccination. To this list Dr. Heinbeck adds tuberculosis.

All nurses are given a Von Pirquet skin test. In his experience nearly one-third of the nurses who are negative to this test develop consumption while in training. Of those who are positive to the test only about one in forty develops consumption. He has found that if those who are negative to a Von Pirquet are vaccinated with B. C. G. they become positive to the test and thereafter, for the term of training, they are not prone to develop consumption.

This method of protection he has been operating for more than five years and he appears to be satisfied with it. When Calmette proposed his method he limited its use to newly born babies. And that is still the favored field for it. A few years later others proposed that it be used on children below school age. It has had some trial on adults, principally on soldiers drawn from Africa, and, for the first time, in close contact with the complex social life of Europe.

This experience of Dr. Heinbeck's adds to the rather scant experience with tuberculosis vaccine in adults.

CRAMPS IN LEGS.

S. N. J. writes: What is the cause of cramps in the limbs from the knees down? Sometimes they are very excruciating, cramping up the ankles of the feet, making the lower part of the leg as hard as iron. To avoid these conditions I wrap the legs at night with a woolen blanket. Nevertheless, that is not always successful. I have used an alcohol rub before retiring. I am 87 years old and well preserved in general health, except that I am constipated occasionally. I am not a hearty eater. I dress comfortably during the day and usually sleep well at night.

Old people are very prone to leg cramps. The best remedy is heat, locally applied. Wear flannel pajamas with feet such as children wear. Do you use plenty of warm cover? You may need to use a hot brick or water bag.

GET YOUR OWN SCHEDULE.

Mrs. M. W. writes: 1. Can diabetic people drink buttermilk or sour cream? 2. Is mineral oil harmful to a diabetic? 3. Can diabetics eat a small portion of beans or oatmeal once in a while?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. No.
3. The majority can, but what one diabetic can do may be prohibited for the next one. The diet for each diabetic should be carefully worked out. That is the most important part of the treatment.

LEAKY HEART VALVES.

K. writes: 1. Are leaking heart valves ever a cause of pain? 2. Is it harmful to take luminal tablets?

REPLY.

1. No. If a person with leaking valves has pain it is due to some intercurrent cause. If angina occurs in a person with leaking valves it is because some other part of the heart or its arteries is sick.
2. Yes.

PATENT RIGHTS.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Does patenting an article give the inventor the exclusive right to make that article, or [2] may any one make it for his own use, providing he does not sell it? 3. Could one make and use the article in a business where it would make money for him if he sold no product which was covered by the patent? R. F. W.

1. Yes, unless some other person can defeat the patent—for example, by proof that the patentee was not the first inventor.
2. No.
3. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am the holder of a second chattel mortgage for $300 given on restaurant equipment. The business is closed and the furniture sold, but it only brought enough for the first mortgage. 1. Can I hold the mortgagee? 2. If so, can I sue for the amount? R. E.

1. Yes.
2. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LOSS OF CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—Does a native born citizen of the United States who goes to Ireland to live lose his American citizenship? C. R.

The fact that a native born American leaves the United States for permanent residence abroad does not, of itself, expatriate him as a citizen of the United States. Under the act of March 2, 1907, an American citizen "shall be deemed to have expatriated himself when he has been naturalized in a foreign state in conformity with its laws or when he has taken an oath of allegiance to any foreign state."

WAGE CLAIMS.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—To what extent are wage claims entitled to priority in bankruptcy proceedings? O. F. M.

Under the 1926 amendment to the bankruptcy act, wages due to workmen, clerks, traveling or city salesmen or servants earned within three months before the bankruptcy but not exceeding $600 to each claimant are entitled to priority.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 3, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With congress paving the way for the immediate arming of American ships to repel German submarines, President Wilson and his cabinet considered today the much graver issues presented by the revelation of Germany's attempt to array Japan and Mexico against the United States. For the first time Mr. Wilson discussed with his officials advisers the Zimmermann note and other evidence that Germany is preparing for actual war with this country. Following the adjournment of the two hour session of the cabinet it became known that additional revelations of German intrigues against the United States may be made by the President. This information is being withheld for numerous reasons of state, but certain anticipated developments in the critical international situation may cause the President to lay the whole case before the people. Administration officials said that circumstances may cause the President to meet a German denial of the charges with publication of the photographic facsimile of the document in his possession and the proof that the Zimmermann instruction to incite Mexico and Japan to war on the United States actually reached Herr von Eckhardt, the German minister in Mexico City.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The administration's armed neutrality bill, as it passed the house on March 1, will be taken up in the senate today. The house limited authority measure will be substituted for the senate bill, reported from the foreign relations committee and discussed by the senate from 4 p. m. yesterday until 1 p. m. today. The administration leaders hope to obtain a vote on the bill before night.

WAR SUMMARY.—The London war office reports further progress by British troops north of Warlencourt and Eaucourt and northwest of Pusieux-au-Mont. The Turks, continuing to retreat before the British advance on the Tigris front, passed through Aziziyah, fifty-two miles north of Kut-el-Amara. From Berlin comes the report that German pressure forced the Rumanian defenders of a height occupied near Rekoza to withdraw. Two ships with a total tonnage of 2,948 were sunk by submarines yesterday; 186 ships with a total tonnage of 442,506 have been sunk by submarines since Feb. 1.

CHICAGO.—The Standard Oil Company of Indiana has purchased the Karpen building at the southwest corner of Michigan boulevard and 9th street, and the leasehold interest as well as fee simple of the ground on which it stands, 132x241 feet, for $3,500,000. The purchase is the largest single transaction in the history of Chicago, the sale of the Fine Arts building at 408-22 South Michigan avenue to Charles A. Chapin in 1915 for $3,000,000 being the previous top figure.

DULUTH, Minn.—Marie Le Fiohic, aged 64, known as Mme. Gain, died here after arranging to donate her $400,000 fortune to institutions of the Catholic church. She came from France forty years ago and settled in Chicago. Her rise to wealth was rapid. Known as Mary Hastings, she was made the central figure in an exposé, "If Christ Came to Chicago," written by W. T. Stead, the London editor who went down on the Titanic. Mme. Gain was well known in Chicago as Mary Hastings. She amassed a fortune of several hundred thousand dollars, but fled the city when an indictment was returned against her.

DISCOVERY OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Who wrote THE TRIBUNE waterway tale? How could he be so ignorant of the facts of history as to state that "Joliet and Marquette discovered the Mississippi," meaning, of course, the first white men to discover it? Does he not know that in 1541 De Soto reached the banks of the Mississippi at a point probably near where Memphis now stands? De Soto saw the Mississippi 132 years before Joliet and Marquette saw it.

Moreover, Joliet and Marquette were not the first white men to see the Mississippi at the place where the Wisconsin unites with it. Several years before the expedition of Joliet, Perrot had been down the Wisconsin to the Mississippi and down the Mississippi at least as far as the Illinois. If any one wants evidence for these statements let him read Perrot's account of his travels and trading activities in the Illinois-Wisconsin region. This account may be found in the city library. Perrot tells of an interesting visit to the great Miami chief of the Chicago region. So, then, it is certain that Joliet and Marquette were not the first white men to cross the Illinois-Michigan divide. Even in Marquette's journal there is conclusive evidence that the French had established a trading post on the Illinois river certainly prior to the winter of 1674, implying that it was a post at which the Indians had become accustomed to trade.

Again, THE TRIBUNE states that "Marquette first proposed a canal across the Chicago divide," quoting an extract of Dablon's letter which was discussing Joliet's report. It was Joliet who proposed the feasibility of the canal.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Oak Park, Ill., Feb. 27.—While the subject of day school teachers and their troubles regarding their salaries [and they have my sincere sympathy] is being so widely discussed, let us not forget another group—the Sunday school teachers, who Sunday after Sunday give their services to the children in a labor of love and we hear nothing of the wonderful work they are doing.

The Sunday school teacher has a great influence in the molding of these young lives. Many of these children come from homes where the name of Christ is never heard and through the Sunday school are brought under the sound of the gospel and led to accept Christ as their Savior. Needless to say, this has a remarkable effect on their lives. It is rarely you find a Sunday school scholar involved in crime and they invariably grow up to be better citizens than those who have no Sunday school training.

WHY SERVICE IS BAD.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—The simple reason why the Belmont car line gives such poor service is that at least six cars have been taken off and the men forced to join the unemployed. Since Thanksgiving this has continued and the waiting crowd on this line is packed like sardines in a can. How long will the public tolerate this? I. P. MULLEN.

ONE THING AT A TIME.

Olney, Ill., Feb. 27.—I have read with great interest the editorial in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE [Feb. 26] on the passing of prohibition. I am especially pleased to have it stated that THE TRIBUNE is opposed to the evils of the old liquor régime and that it will support real temperance.

Doubtless you will therefore oppose the present liquor bills pending in the Illinois general assembly which will provide far less liquor control than existed before the days of national prohibition.

Your editorial also makes it plain that you will oppose the measures generally being proposed by Democratic legislative bodies throughout the nation which, in direct violation of oft-repeated statements, offer no protection against the return of the uncontrolled saloon.

It will bring encouragement to millions of friends of true temperance to know that your vast influence is to be on their side.

I have always favored any change in the liquor law that will bring a greater sobriety among a larger number of people. If modification will do that I favor modification. If repeal will do that I favor repeal. However, since all the methods of control have been tried in the past and have failed, I look for a great increase in liquor consumption such as has resulted in Canada since the repeal of her prohibition laws.

FRESH AIR IN CHURCH.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Our health department frequently advises the people to get all the fresh air possible and to avoid colds and flu by shunning ill-ventilated and crowded public places, etc. However, this advice and warning counts for little when the persons in charge of buildings where large numbers congregate are careless and do not provide proper ventilation. The churches are the worst offenders in this matter. Crowded, at times every seat taken, every window closed tightly, the inclosure is an excellent agency for the spread of cold and flu epidemics. A letter from Dr. Bundesen to the heads of the various churches requesting that instructions be sent to the pastors of the churches to provide proper ventilation will save lives during the annual pneumonia season now at hand.

DAILY READER.

THANK YOU, SIR.

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 21.—I lived in Chicago over forty years and never missed an issue of THE TRIBUNE. I still read it daily out here.

Almost unaided you have won out on the great fight against prohibition and you are now engaged in a fight of even more importance to the hundreds of thousands of investors in real estate bonds in Cook county against the crooks both on the bench and at the bar who are brazenly attempting to despoil them. You have got them on the run. Keep after them or they will kill Chicago real estate for the next fifty years.

Good luck and more power to you.

GAAR WILLIAMS.

FREEDOM COMES HIGH IN 4 YEAR DIVORCE SUIT

Fees Approximate Value of Joint Business.

In the county building is a vault, where Clerk Frank V. Zintak keeps the records of thousands of suits begun in the Superior court since the Chicago fire. Records of cases long ago decided repose beside sheafs of bills which refer to suits still pending before 24 judges.

One of the oldest of the pending cases is a divorce suit—that of Mrs. Eva P. Igney against Oscar C. Igney, 4240 Clarendon avenue, owner of the Estelle Waist company, clothing manufacturers. Since Feb. 29, 1929, when the bill was filed, the accumulation of records has grown to such proportions that a special bin has been allotted to the case.

2,550 Pages of Evidence.

An examination of these records discloses that the bill in which Mrs. Igney charges her husband with cruelty, was sent by Superior Judge Joseph Sabath, to whom it was assigned, to Master in Chancery Beryl B. Collins for a full hearing only a few days after it was filed. Hearings were held for two years, being concluded on Feb. 11, 1931, after a total of 2,550 pages of evidence were transcribed from shorthand notes.

The report containing the recommendations of the master was not sent to Judge Sabath until February of 1932, twelve months after the evidence was concluded. Yesterday Attorney Everett Jennings, representing Mrs. Igney, and Attorneys George H. Guenther and Joseph Z. Willner, counsel for Igney, appeared before Judge Sabath to seek a final disposition of the case.

Award Wife Half Interest.

The lawyers explained that the findings of Master Collins indicated that Mrs. Igney had loaned large sums of money to her husband during the 26 years of their marriage prior to their separation in 1929. Collins ruled that she should be given half interest in the clothing company, in return for cancellation of certain debts which Igney acknowledged.

The divorce evidence, they added, was conclusive, and the decree would not be opposed by Igney. They added, however, that attorneys' fees, fees to the master, to the stenographer, and $30,000 in cash which allegedly was taken from the clothing company funds by Igney after he had been ordered by the court to leave all assets untouched, were subjects upon which there was no agreement.

"Apparently every one connected with this case is happy except the litigants," stated Attorney Jennings. "The master's fees are reported to be $1,500. Recently, in my office, Igney stated that actually he had paid the master $2,700 for his fees. Attorneys Willner and Guenther will receive $2,000 each.

Takes Mortgage Toward Fee.

"Attorney Bennison F. Bartel, who represented Mrs. Igney for three and a half years in this case, already has been paid $2,000 and has obtained a $4,000 mortgage against her part of the clothing company holdings. At this rate it appears the litigants will get their liberty and the lawyers will get their business."

Attorney Jennings said he wished to explain the transactions by which he charged Igney obtained the $30,000 to Judge Sabath from an audit of Igney's books.

"I'm more than willing to get this thing over with," said Judge Sabath. "And I warned these people that their business would go to lawyers if they persisted in contesting the case. I'll set March 7 for final arguments and dispose of this matter at that time."

Dr. Pusey Honored at Dinner

A dinner honoring Dr. William Allen Pusey, professor emeritus of dermatology at the University of Illinois College of Medicine and former president of the American Medical association, was given by the university at the Palmer House last night.

The occasion marked the beginning yesterday of a series of lectures on public health, under the Adolph Gehrmann Memorial lectureship, at the college. Speakers who paid tributes to Dr. Pusey, who was on the medical faculty from 1884 to 1915, were: Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the university; Dr. Edward H. Cary, Dallas, Tex., president of the American Medical association; Dr. James Herrick, Rufus C. Dawes, Dr. Howard Fox of Cornell university, Dr. Charles M. Davison.

U. S. TO COMPEL FINGERPRINTING OF IMMIGRANTS

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Aliens arriving for permanent residence in the United States on and after May 1 must be fingerprinted, according to an order of the department of labor, which all the officials of the department, including Secretary Doak, today refused to discuss.

The order, dated Feb. 23, is as follows:

"Beginning May 1, 1933, or as soon thereafter as equipment is available, whenever an alien is admitted to the United States for permanent residence, upon presentation of an immigration visa or a reentry permit, the record of admission shall include the alien's fingerprint impressions on a form to be supplied by the bureau."

"Why shouldn't they be fingerprinted?" Secretary Doak asked in response to an inquiry.

"However," he added, "I'm not sure the order has been issued, and therefore I don't want to discuss it tonight. I'll have something to say about it tomorrow. The subject has been under discussion for some time, but I'm not sure of its status at the moment."

Police Grant Permit for Idle to March Tomorrow

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday granted a permit for a parade of the idle through the loop tomorrow, the day on which President Elect Roosevelt will be inaugurated. The permit will be revoked, however, unless the idle obtain permission for a demonstration in Grant park. The idle plan to assemble at Ogden avenue and Randolph street; 22d and Wentworth avenue, and Walton place and North Clark street, and then to march to the park.

DR. J. B. HERRICK IS HONORED BY ACADEMY IN N. Y.

Dr. James Bryan Herrick of 242 East Walton place, was one of thirteen elected to honorary membership last night in the New York Academy of Medicine. They were chosen, it was stated, in recognition of "their outstanding contributions to medicine."

Ten of the new honorary members of the academy are foreigners. The other Americans are George Richards Minot, professor of medicine at Harvard university, and William Gibson Spiller, professor of neurology at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Herrick was graduated from Rush Medical college in 1888 and served his internship at the county hospital. He is professor of medicine at the University of Chicago and attending physician at the Presbyterian hospital. He has contributed frequently to medical journals on subjects connected with internal medicine.

BANDITS HOLD UP 20 IN DAIRY; ASK FOR DONATIONS

Firm but polite, three robbers yesterday entered the Weber Dairy company plant at 505 West Jefferson street, Joliet, and fled with $430 after locking thirteen employés and seven customers in a cooling room.

After lining up the twenty victims one of the robbers announced:

"We don't want to harm anybody, but we want our just dues. One of my assistants will pass the hat and I urge that everybody donate all the money he has."

The unwilling contributors dropped $30 in the hat. The collectors then took $400 of the company's funds from the manager, Elmer Weber. As the trio fled their automobile crashed into and slightly damaged the car of Mayor William A. Hennessy of Joliet, which was parked outside.

BUNDESEN ACTS TO LIMIT MILK SUPPLY AREAS

Dairies Nearest City Will Get Permits.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The possibility of redefining the areas from which Chicago receives its daily supplies of milk, cream, and ice cream was discussed yesterday in a closed meeting called by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health. Officials of city milk companies and the owners of northern Wisconsin milk plants involved in the readjustment plans were in attendance.

The conference followed the issuing of an order by Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor Jr. overruling the board of health's demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandamus sought by George Demmill, a dairy farmer of Woodstock. Demmill asked the writ to compel Dr. Bundesen to inspect his farm. Judge Taylor signed the order dismissing the demurrer yesterday morning and indicated the writ would be issued next Tuesday.

Northern Wisconsin Hit.

Announcement was made last night by Dr. Bundesen that within a few days permits to ship milk to Chicago, now in force in northern Wisconsin, would either be revoked or notice given the country plant owners to seek some other market.

Plans of the board of health are said to contemplate the gradual restriction of the zone limits from which Chicago's milk and cream supplies will be drawn. The temporary maximum radius for cream and ice cream mix shipments will be 250 miles, and no milk for consumption as fluid milk will come from a greater distance than 130 miles from Chicago.

"There is a sufficient supply of approved milk within a close radius of Chicago to make a zoning system economical," declared Dr. Bundesen. "At the same time we are obliged to reduce the area over which our inspectors must travel, in view of the decreased budget allowed us and in the interests of the city's taxpayers."

Too Much Milk Available.

A survey yesterday disclosed that more than 200,000 pounds of milk in Illinois and the southern tier of Wisconsin counties, now approved for shipment to Chicago, were not being utilized in this market. Milk company officials pointed out that the supplies in this and more distant areas were subject to immediate call should a storm or prolonged summer drought reduce the milk and cream production of northern Illinois and Indiana or southern Wisconsin.

"Illinois cannot produce enough milk and cream in its present areas devoted to dairying to satisfy the requirements of the metropolitan consuming region," declared Dr. P. D. Peck of the Bowman Dairy company. "The milk industry is obliged to maintain an elasticity in available supplies to meet the fluctuations in consumption and supply."

Dr. Peck pointed out that through the efforts of the board of health and dairy farmers the quality of Chicago's milk and cream had been maintained in spite of lowered prices.

WRIGHT TO ACT AS CHAIRMAN OF RELIEF BOARD

Springfield, Ill., March 2.—[Special.]—The resignation of Edward L. Ryerson Jr. as chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission became effective yesterday and Gov. Horner announced that Omar H. Wright of Belvidere will act as chairman until he has selected a new member, after which the commission will hold an election. Names mentioned in speculation of the new member included that of Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago, present chairman of the governor's commission investigating idleness.

BILLS REPEALING STATE DRY LAWS UP TO GOVERNOR

Horner to Sign on Return from Inauguration.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Springfield, Ill., March 2.—[Special.]—Repudiation of the Illinois dry laws reached the final stage today. Speaker Roe of the house of representatives signed repeal bills and sent them on their way to the executive department. They passed his branch yesterday, completing legislative enactment.

Next Wednesday or Thursday—depending upon the date of his return from the Roosevelt inauguration—Gov. Horner will sign the bills and the state will cease to enforce prohibition. The governor will not wait for an opinion from Attorney General Barrett to affix his signature. He will waste no time in fulfilling a campaign pledge which won him much support.

Depart for Washington.

Progress toward the governor's signature could not be swifter today because of the absence of Lieut. Gov. Donovan, who must sign the bills before they can be placed before Mr. Horner. Mr. Donovan already has departed for Washington. The governor and State Treasurer John C. Martin left for Chicago tonight and will join state leaders on their special train tomorrow.

One immediate result of repudiation will be a "hands off" policy toward prohibition violations by the state highway police, who are under the direct control of the governor.

Turns Attention to Sales Tax.

Repeal legislation now an actuality, the governor turned his attention to the sales tax measures which were sent to second reading in the house today. He sent a special message to the assembly, which quoted a telegram sent to the governor by Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, emphasizing the need of immediate relief legislation by the state inasmuch as Illinois' share of federal funds is almost exhausted.

Mr. Pomerene pointed out that with the granting of $6,245,143 to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission for relief needs in March, the state has exhausted all but $261,379 of its maximum amount of $45,000,000.

"The Illinois general assembly is now in session and in view of these conditions and faced with this imperative responsibility will undoubtedly take prompt action to provide funds to meet relief needs in various political subdivisions of the state without further delay," said Mr. Pomerene's telegram.

Designed to Meet Emergency.

The governor appended these remarks: "There now is pending before your honorable body a sales tax designed to meet the emergency that now confronts the state. It has been passed by the senate. In no wise is it an additional tax, except in communities where the proceeds or some of them will have to be used for relief purposes. As a matter of fact in some counties where the need for unemployment relief is not great, it will reduce substantially the total tax bill. Prompt enactment is imperative."

By agreement the house decided to have all amendments to the sales tax bill printed and upon the member's desks by next Tuesday, when the measure will be advanced to third reading or killed.

Penalty for False Statements.

A bill to require applicants for relief in Cook county to make a sworn statement of their financial condition when applying for relief and levying a penalty for false statements, was passed by the house. It was introduced by Representative Emmett McGrath [Dem., Brookfield].

The senate was not in session long this morning, but it advanced bills to liberalize the divorce law in Illinois which would abolish many of the evils in the temporary alimony system and provide for dual alimony in cases where a woman is working and her former husband is incapacitated.

Regulate Highway Traffic.

Because "overweight trucks and motor buses are monopolizing Illinois highways, endangering the life and limb of Illinois motorists," Senator Rollo M. Shaw [Dem., Lawrenceville], the senate majority leader, introduced a bill to regulate highway traffic in the state.

Shaw's bill would slash the gross weight of trucks from 40,000 to 20,000 pounds; reduce their length from 40 to 30 feet, and limit their width to 8 feet and height to 11½ feet. The bill was sent to the senate highway committee.

VOTE DRY REPEAL CONVENTION IN INDIANA SENATE

Indianapolis, Ind., March 2.—[Special.]—The senate today passed a house bill providing for a state convention to vote upon repeal of the 18th amendment. The bill now goes back to the house for concurrence in minor amendments made by the senate. The senate vote on the measure was 35 to 7.

His Death by Sunstroke Not Accident, Jury Says

Springfield, Ill., March 2.—(AP)—A federal jury today decided that death resulting from sunstroke is not an accidental death. It refused double indemnity insurance to Abbie E. McCreery of Rushville. He was the beneficiary of the late Francis W. McCreery, 62, his foster father. The case was contested by the New York Life Insurance company.

IN DIVORCE BATTLE

MRS. DOROTHY BROOKE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Walter A. Brooke, 3256 West 62d place, an aviation transport pilot, testified yesterday in a divorce suit before Circuit Judge Frank Bicek that Mrs. Dorothy Hopkins Brooke threatened to shoot him and that on another occasion she threw a milk bottle at him. Mrs. Brooke, who has pending a cross bill asking separate maintenance, testified that in December, 1931, her husband sent her to visit her family in Washington and in her absence took their furniture and moved out of their apartment. They were married in Miami, Fla., in 1927. Judge Bicek continued the case until today.

PREPARES BILL TO REDISTRICT CONGRESS SEATS

Cook County Would Get 4 More.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 2.—[Special.]—Congressional reapportionment, a subject which produced sharp controversy in the legislature last session, was placed before the present assembly today by Representative Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Mundelein]. Lyons, chairman of a subcommittee which drew the bill last session, drew the present bill strictly on equal population lines, he said.

By this measure the state would be reapportioned into 27 instead of 25 districts. Each of them would contain an average of 282,000 population.

Four More in Cook County.

Cook county would be allotted 14 instead of 10 congressmen, with 13 districts given downstate. In that manner the two congressmen from the state at large, now held by downstate representatives, would be apportioned to Cook county.

Mr. Lyons is a Republican and it was assumed today when his bill was introduced that the Democratic controlled committee on congressional apportionment, headed by Frank M. McClure of Abingdon, would present some plan later in the session to accomplish the same results, yet give a "break" to sitting Democratic congressmen.

Therefore importance was attached to the Lyons bill only because it gave an equal distribution of congressional representation. That it would be torn to pieces in committee was not doubted.

General Size of Districts.

The largest district under this measure would contain 290,000 persons and the smallest 264,00. Last session the bill finally passed and was signed by Gov. Emmerson, yet eventually declared void by the Supreme court, had districts with as many as 500,000 persons in them. Lyons' claim was that his measure was strictly impartial and gave no grounds for objections by partisan congressmen who are fearful of inclusion of Democratic or Republican counties in their domains.

KILL, BOMB AND BURN IN CUBA AS REVOLT SPREADS

Eight Reported Slain as Disorders Increase.

HAVANA, Cuba, March 2.—(AP)—A bomb exploded tonight in the apartment of Dr. Armando Gali Menendez, an employé of the treasury department and a brother of Maj. Gali Menendez, an aid to President Machado.

The wife and eight children of Dr. Gali Menendez were in the apartment at the time, but none was hurt. The bomb blew out every window and spread débris the width of the street.

Officials of the United Railways said today that because of recent terroristic outbursts in Cuba pilot locomotives are preceding all passenger trains. Unconfirmed reports were that military guards had been placed on the pilot locomotives.

Revolution Rumors Fly.

In Matanzas incendiaries set fire to a long line of empty box cars belonging to the United Railways and fifteen cars were destroyed.

Havana heard all sorts of rumors tonight concerning revolution—some that it would begin soon and others that it already had started in the interior. Accurate information was unobtainable.

Army headquarters announced that soldiers clashed with armed "malefactors" near Florencia, in Camaguey province, killing one of them and capturing arms and equipment.

Report More Disorders.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, March 2.—Reports of increasing disorders in the interior of Cuba, centering in the three lower provinces of Camaguey, Santa Clara, and Oriente, filtered into Havana today despite the strict military censorship.

Details of these incidents, which are revolutionary in character, can not be confirmed in official quarters. However, the movement of federal troops down the island would indicate that small armed bands of rebels are increasing in number.

Eight million of arrobas (200,000,000 pounds) of sugar cane were burned today at the Manati sugar mill in Oriente province. The fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, also destroyed a mile of the mill railroad track, several warehouses, and many small wooden buildings.

A report from Santa Clara is that Diderico Peterson, a retired major, has taken to the hills in command of more than 100 well equipped men and is harassing outlying government military posts. Seven farmers are said to have been killed near Esperanza, Santa Clara province, by rebels who are held responsible for setting fire to cane fields in that district.

PUT NEW GIDEON BIBLES IN MANY CHICAGO HOTELS

New Gideon Bibles have been placed in many Chicago hotels during the last few weeks in preparation for expected crowds attending the Century of Progress exposition. The Gideons have placed 500 new Bibles at the Drake hotel, 500 at the Morrison, 300 at the Stevens, 100 at the Lexington, and 500 at the Lawson Y. M. C. A. Lesser numbers have recently been placed in smaller hotels.

S. A. Fulton, president of the Gideons, also announced that 442 Bibles will be dedicated next Sunday afternoon at the Medinah Athletic club, and 350 at the Hotel Sherman. He said the work of the association has now circled the globe. Every hotel room in Palestine, Mr. Fulton said, is now supplied with Bibles, and "thousands of Bibles are going into hotels in India, China, Japan, and Central and South America." The international headquarters of the Gideons is at 202 South State street.

DEATH VERDICT RETURNED.

A coroner's jury yesterday decided that Edward Toman, 43 years old, head of a radio parts shop at 2021 26th place, died from an overdose of medicine he had taken to relieve a severe headache.

Husband Wins $5,000

A jury in the court of Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti late yesterday afternoon returned a verdict of $5,000 in favor of Thomas Grace, former railroad employé, in the alienation of affections suit brought by him against Raymond Geimer, manager of the American Colortype company. The jury deliberated two hours and five minutes. A motion for a new trial was set for March 11.

Grace charged that Geimer stole the affections of his wife, Mrs. Catherine Grace, 52 years old, while she was employed at the colortype company from 1920 to 1930. The wife did not appear in court. Shortly before the case went to the jury Geimer took the stand in his own defense and denied having an affair with Mrs. Grace.

PITTSBURGH AND EVANSTON TIE IN SAFETY CONTEST

Mayor Charles H. Bartlett of Evanston received word from New York yesterday that Evanston had tied with Pittsburgh as grand prize winner for 1932 in a contest sponsored by the national safety council in traffic accident prevention. They were named jointly over 442 other American cities entered in the contest.

Each city entered in the contest was placed in a class according to population, the winners in each classification competing with each other for the grand prize. Thus Evanston captured double honors, winning in the classification of cities with a population of between 50,000 and 100,000 and the grand prize.

Sergt. Frank Kreml of the Evanston police, in charge of the suburb's accident prevention bureau, said that last year there were only six automobile fatalities in the suburb and that accidents had been reduced 40 per cent since 1929.

Other nearby municipalities which scored high in their population groups were La Grange, La Grange Park, and Oak Park.

LEAPS 800 FEET TO DEATH FROM SPEEDING PLANE

Victim Is Identified as Kalamazoo Man.

Charleston, S. C., March 2.—[Special.]—M. D. King of Kalamazoo, Mich., leaped from an Eastern Air transport plane this afternoon as it was flown over the Edison rice fields near here. His body hurtled 800 feet down into the marshy swamps and late today it had not been recovered.

The plane, a trimotored ship bound for New York, was the second section of the daily New York-Miami schedule, and was piloted by G. L. Pomeroy. After the tragedy Pomeroy immediately landed the ship at the airport here.

Tells of Death Plunge.

King, who was identified by baggage left in the plane, apparently had walked calmly to the cabin door, opened it, and leaped out. Another passenger told Pomeroy that he turned in his seat just in time to see King disappear through the door and hurtle into space.

Other passengers in the ship told of King complaining that he had a headache shortly after the plane took off from the Miami airport. However, his actions were not unusual, they said.

Pomeroy told officials that he was flying at an altitude of about 800 feet when King leaped out.

En Route to Kalamazoo.

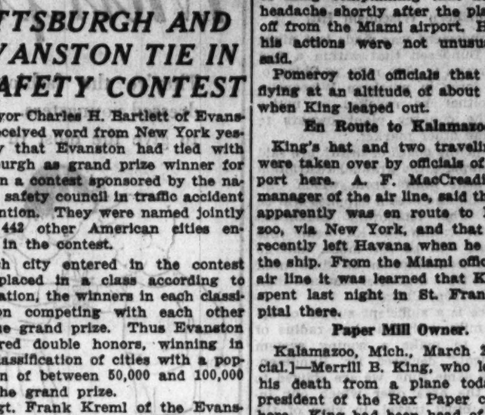
King's hat and two traveling bags were taken over by officials of the airport here. A. F. MacCreadie, local manager of the air line, said that King apparently was en route to Kalamazoo, via New York, and that he had recently left Havana when he boarded the ship. From the Miami office of the air line it was learned that King had spent last night in St. Francis hospital there.

Paper Mill Owner.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 2.—[Special.]—Merrill B. King, who leaped to his death from a plane today, was president of the Rex Paper company here. King had been head of the paper company since 1922. He was also a director of the Bank of Kalamazoo. He was a member of the airport commission here and owned his own plane.

ROB STORE, ESCAPE UNDER FIRE.

Two bandits took $312 yesterday in a holdup of the Merchants' Drug store, 531 East 79th street, and escaped under the fire of Leonard Gross, a clerk, who seized a revolver and followed them to the street.



THE MODERN WOMAN AND HER DENTIST

The modern woman's beauty treatment consists of regular and frequent visits to her dentist as well as to her hairdresser.

She knows that no amount of facial care and coiffuring can compensate for unlovely teeth. She knows that beautiful teeth give her enduring charm and are a distinct social asset.

And so she sees her dentist often and regularly. Each visit occupies but a few moments. The cost is small. But the result is beauty itself.

For your health's sake as well as that of your appearance, let your dentist serve you.

When pain occurs—Poloris Dental Poultice will relieve it—but you should immediately see your dentist for treatment.

Poloris has been prescribed by dentists all over the world for nineteen years.

This message in behalf of a better knowledge of Dentistry is presented to the public by Poloris Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.

LONG CONVERTS RIVERS CONGRESS INTO LOBBY BODY

Report He Gains Control of Organization.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—It looks as though Huey Long, the self-styled "Kingfish" of the Louisiana bayous and radical member of the United States senate, has definitely taken over the once national rivers and harbors congress and converted it into a district lobbying organization. The methods employed by those who put the organization within reach of the senator had something in common with the familiar type of racket.

How He Gained Control.

Friends of the Louisiana senator seized control of the national organization by a coup executed at the recent January meeting. Noting that the depression had cut down both contributions and attendance at recent gatherings, New Orleans friends and appointees of Long decided to take advantage of the old by-law providing that a member could cast one vote for each $5 contributed. In late December New Orleans dock, levee and municipal organizations began to send checks to Washington. By the time the meeting was held in mid-January several thousand dollars were recorded as Louisiana contributions.

At the first business meeting the Long faction had more than 2,000 votes, a big majority, although the state delegation was less than 100. Once the working majority was operating, it was but a short time before policies of 27 years' standing were scrapped, the constitution replaced by a new one, and the organization incorporated to give the President power to act.

Abolished Old Policy.

The new constitution provided for abandonment of the old policy whereby the rivers and harbors congress gave a blanket indorsement for all waterways projects approved by army engineers. The plan is for the special project committee to look over projects and decide which are to be promoted and which are to be opposed. A meeting of the board of directors has been called for tomorrow, and it is understood the appointment of the project committee will come up at that time. Six members of the regular board of directors constitute a quorum and six members of the board are from New Orleans.

With the rivers and harbors organization revamped for action, the Louisiana group loaded the directorate with members from Senator Long's home state and southern states nearby. Senator Long's name does not appear on the roster of officers and directors. The letterhead of the organization, however, lists Seymour Weiss, close political lieutenant of Senator Long, as treasurer, and Representative Frank Reid [Rep., Ill.], allied with a former Chicago city hall ring and close friend of the Kingfish, as president. Of the 20 officers and directors listed, ten are from Louisiana, four are from nearby states, and most of the others were handpicked by the Long faction.

INDICT WIDOW AND 3 MEN IN CARL MURDER

The widow of George Carl, who was slain in his grocery at 2511 South Crawford avenue last July 6, and three other persons were reported yesterday to have been named in true bills voted by the grand jury accusing them of the murder. Those reported named besides the widow are John Milosic, 50 years old, admirer of Mrs. Carl; Ivan Grilec, her brother, and Joseph Fess, 26 years old, 3249 South Komensky avenue, who confessed he killed the grocer for $800.

Edward Veselka, 28 years old, 3133 South Lawndale avenue, who confessed throwing into the drainage canal the revolver with which Carl was killed, was reported named in a true bill accusing him of being an accessory after the fact.

Following his arrest Milosic confessed that he plotted the murder so that Mrs. Carl could collect on her husband's $15,000 insurance policy. Mrs. Carl denied any knowledge of the plot.

Witnesses before the grand jury were Sergts. Charles Pribyl and Burt Gray, who obtained the confessions of the four men; Milan Grilec, another brother of Mrs. Carl; his wife, Emma, and John Petek, a shoemaker, who owned the revolver used in the crime.

Husband Fined $25 for Trying to End Life

Adam Erhardt, 26 years old, 2017 North Laporte avenue, appeared yesterday before Municipal Judge Leon Edelman on a charge of disorderly conduct made after he tried to hang himself Wednesday night in the basement of his home. "I'm lonesome for my wife, and I'll do it again if I get a chance," said Erhardt. Judge Edelman fined him $25 and asked a neighbor who appeared in court to notify Mrs. Erhardt to come home. She has been visiting in Philadelphia.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels, and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

COUNTY BOARD IN UPROAR OVER GRAFT CHARGES

Misuse of Vet Relief Alleged by Miss Sears.

Charges of misuse of relief funds by William A. Schlupp, supervisor of county relief to war veterans and their families, yesterday threw a special session of the public welfare committee of the county board into an uproar. Schlupp was accused of diverting relief food, clothing, and coal to his own use by Commissioner Amelia Sears, chairman of the welfare committee.

WM. A. SCHLUPP.

With a denunciation of the state's attorney's office for failure to act against Schlupp, Miss Sears called on the committee to demand a grand jury investigation of his relief activities. The rejection of her motion precipitated a heated exchange of personalities.

Presents an Affidavit.

At the outset of the meeting Miss Sears presented an affidavit of Edward Nelson, who lives in a houseboat at Roscoe street and the river. The affidavit stated that Nelson had received relief supplies from Schlupp in return for 72 hours of carpentering on the Schlupp garage and home at 1615 North Meade avenue last October and November. Miss Sears said Nelson made his affidavit after he appeared at the county public welfare bureau demanding a half ton of coal, which he claimed was still due for his work.

As a result of the affidavit an audit was made of Schlupp's accounts for December and January by Spencer Meech, auditor for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. This revealed, Miss Sears told the committee, 39 instances of relief without proper investigation.

Find Wrong Addresses.

"Addresses in 18 of these instances were found to be railroad yards, forest preserves, cemeteries, vacant lots, and street intersections," she said. "At eight other addresses persons denied receiving relief or having made application for it. In one instance Schlupp was found to have written relief orders for a man and his wife who had been dead more than six months. Another order was made out in the names of Schlupp's mother-in-law and father-in-law at an address which they had left eight years ago."

Miss Sears said she was advised to place her information in the hands of the state's attorney by Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, because Schlupp holds his post by statute. Under a recent law the director of relief is named by the Cook County Commanders' association, an organization of American Legion post commanders. The statute gives him a salary of $100 a month which the county board has raised to $185.

In Office a Year.

Schlupp has an office in the county bureau of public welfare's relief station at 636 South Wood street. He has held his post for more than a year.

"Neither the board nor the relief commission has the power to discharge him," said Miss Sears. "I gave all my information to Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Monyihan three weeks ago. He questioned Schlupp and his assistant, Paul Gutzmer, who admitted he signed the orders in the 39 instances at the command of Schlupp.

"Yet, despite this admission and the evidence, the state's attorney's office reported there was no case against Schlupp. The misuse of funds is readily apparent. I move we ask the state's attorney to press a grand jury investigation."

Want Legion to Act.

Commissioners Grace Fleming, Marie Plumb, Daniel Ryan, Maurice Kavanagh and George A. Miller were unanimous in opposition. They held the matter was one for action by the commanders' association. At this point a man in the audience who said he was Col. James E. White, said he was present representing the association as its chairman.

White said this was the first time he had heard the charges against Schlupp. Later he admitted he had knowledge of the state's attorney's investigation, but he declared he could find plenty of evidence of misuse of relief funds by the county welfare department. He was attacked for this assertion by Miss Sears and other commissioners.

"If I had misused funds I would expect to be fired," Miss Sears said.

"After the Melrose Park riots you were accused of being a Red," Commissioner Miller replied. "If that's the case you have no right to a place on the board."

Just "Another Herring."

"That statement is just another red herring drawn across the trail of action in this case," Miss Sears replied. "Why is it no one wishes to go into this case?"

Her colleagues shouted denial of efforts to block the investigation. Over Miss Sears' objection it was voted that the charges against Schlupp be heard by the commanders' association in the presence of representatives of the board, state's attorney's office and the relief commission. White said the association would fix a hearing date.

Assistant State's Attorney Monyihan later said his inquiry had revealed evidence of laxity and carelessness on the part of Schlupp, but he had been unable to fix responsibility because of divided authority. He was unable to find the laxity was the result of criminal intent, he said.

$1,100,000 IS LEFT TO CHARITIES BY THREE SISTERS

Miss Hannah Templeton's Will Probated.

Chicago charities and institutions affiliated with the Presbyterian church are the beneficiaries of $1,100,000 in gifts left by the three Templeton sisters, pioneer residents of Evanston and the Chicago area. The total of the bequests became known yesterday when the will of Miss Hannah Templeton, the last survivor of the three sisters, was admitted to probate by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge.

Gives Charity $400,000.

In her own will Miss Hannah Templeton, who left an estate of $525,000, bequeathed $400,000 to charity, made small bequests of approximately $25,000, and gave $100,000 to Robert Templeton, 1519 Warren avenue, a brother. Her will also disclosed that trust funds set up for her by her sisters, Jessie G. Templeton, who died Oct. 25, 1931, and Mary Temple, who died Jan. 24, 1932, would be dissolved and the principal, amounting to $700,000, be given to charities.

Miss Hannah Templeton, who resided at 1128 Forest avenue, Evanston, died Feb. 10 at the age of 67 years. She divided her charitable gifts, directing that 40 per cent of the total be given to the board of pensions of the Presbyterian church and 10 per cent each to the Women's and Children's hospital, the Chicago Orphan asylum, the Scottish Old People's home at Riverside, the Chicago Foundlings' home, the Home for Destitute and Crippled Children, and the United Charities.

Sisters Leave $736,500.

Both Miss Jessie Templeton and Miss Mary Templeton, who left charity gifts of $500,000 and $236,500, respectively, directed that the funds be distributed in shares of 10 per cent each to the Chicago Y. M. C. A., the Chicago Orphans' asylum, the United Charities, the board of international missions of the Presbyterian church; in shares of 5 per cent to the Women's and Children's hospital, the Old People's home, and the Presbyterian Board of Pensions.

The remainder of the funds were given in 15 per cent shares to the church extension board of the Presbyterian church, the board of foreign missions, and the Presbyterian hospital.

Mrs. Helen Burnell, Aurora Pioneer, Is Dead at 103

Mrs. Helen Burnell, 103 years old, who served as a nurse in the civil war, died yesterday at the home of her son, Edward, in San Diego, Cal. She was the widow of Edward Burnell of Aurora, of which city she had been a pioneer resident. On her 100th birthday Mrs. Burnell took her first ride in an airplane. Although no funeral arrangements had been announced last night, it was expected by friends of Mrs. Burnell in Aurora that she would be buried there.

F.A.Anglin, Resigned Chief Justice of Canada, Dies

OTTAWA, Ont., March 3.—(AP)—F. A. Anglin died at his home today two days after his resignation as chief justice of Canada became effective. He would have been 68 years old next month. Mr. Anglin had been ill for more than two years. Two weeks ago he visited Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, announcing that the state of his health made it impossible for him to serve any longer. He was a brother of Margaret Anglin, the actress, who was at the bedside when he died.

RELIEF AT LAST! FROM PILES!

Yes, no more suffering! No more pain, strain or itching! No more torture at the stool. No matter what form of Piles you suffer from—genuine relief for you is at hand in Pazo Ointment.

Pazo stops the pain and itching at once. More, it actually tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole. For Pazo is threefold in effect. It is (1) soothing, (2) healing, (3) absorbing. Thus it not only allays the inflammation and repairs sore and torn tissue, but it actually reduces the swollen blood vessels which Piles are. Thousands say that Pazo is the only thing that ever gave them real relief from Piles. Thousands say that it saved them the need of a painful operation. The method of application (see picture below) makes Pazo doubly effective. Try Pazo yourself and see that it means the end of your suffering. All first class drug stores sell Pazo in Collapsible Tubes with Perforated Pile Pipe, complete for 75c.

Perforated Pile Pipe Attached to Collapsible Tube Makes Application Correct and Easy.

The PAZO Collapsible Tube and Perforated Pile Pipe make it very easy to apply the Ointment high up in the rectum where it can reach and thoroughly cover all the affected parts. Complete internal treatment in all cases of Piles is plainly important.

CLOGGED BOWELS EXACT THEIR PRICE

Don't imagine that you can shock your system every few days with laxatives and fail to pay the price. Laxatives and purges rob the delicate membrane lining of your bowels of moisture and elasticity, so that you have to continue drugging more and more to spur your reluctant bowels to action. Almost before you realize your peril, you're a laxative slave. Digestive troubles develop, headaches, dizzy spells and biliousness follow. An operation for piles or other internal trouble may result.

But you can free yourself from laxative slavery and constipation quickly and easily with Cream of Nujol treatment.

This new form of Nujol is specially suited to sufferers from chronic constipation. It soothes and comforts the bowels, absorbs poisons, and helps the peristaltic action which alone can dispose of wastes naturally.

Start the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment tonight. It is delicious to take and costs you only a few cents a day.

Stop at your druggist's and get a bottle tonight.

New Neckwear Proves Hit of Style Season

Gives a Feminine Touch to Tailored Suits.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The eye-catching displays of new neckwear are enough to make any normal neckwear collector lose her mind. What with angelic bib collars made of frothy, foamy bits of fine lace and embroideries, spanking white divinity collars of chalk white piqué and organdy, and literally thousands of colored neck scarfs, this is a gala year for neckwear.

Have you seen the rolled collars, tricky trifles of sheerest organdy smocked into a neckline that looks like a turtle neck affair when it is at the top of a dark colored frock? And the rolled cuffs that can wander around a wrist length sleeve as well as finish the elbow length?

Or, do you crave scarfs or scarves, look for the sudanette oblongs, a glorified length of silky heavy cotton like no other fabric you have ever seen before. These checked lengths of scarf look positively pluggy and dismally uninteresting when hanging over a case, but slip them around your neck, especially when you wear these tailored suits, tie them in a double knot and fluff the fringed ends till they look like a butterfly, and you have one of the best looking and feminine scarfs any one could want.

These tailored suits are knockouts, but they do need a soft feminine influence, and these twenty inch wide creations are the answer. You can buy them in blue, red, brown and white half inch gingham checks.

Another taffeta neckscarf has wide flaring perky ends of small silk plaid attached to a narrow plain and contrasting colored taffeta. This is tied once, with the colorful plaid ends standing cat's whisker fashion under the chin. . . . And, having mentioned the cat's whiskers in bows, this is the year that you bow yourself around the town at all hours.

All the differently sized bows of white and colored organdy are now ready—fat bows, short bows, flat and tailored affairs, big billowy things to plant on the center of your chest when you wear a simple black after noon frock, and now some new evening bows. Chanel sponsors big good looking bows of starched lace, most attractive and decorative beauties, especially in that pale ruby red color. You can buy them in white also. They look as lacy as filigree; in fact some of you will be thinking these bows are of Irish lace. They can either be pinned to an afternoon dress or used effectively with informal evening costumes, and they are the best looking bows of the season.

Obliging designers are doing everything to help transform some good but slightly dated dress. . . . They send collars and cuffs that can change anything, they elvolve intricate scarfs, collars, and even capes and separate jackets, that will make a new and breath-takingly lovely 1933 creation out of last year's favorite dress.

For instance, the newest ruff scarf. It is the most feminine fluttering accessory any shopper needs. It is of starched chiffon—a matter of a three yard length of material—about four or five inches wide, and edged with a wide ruffle all the way around, so that when you wear it it looks like a new old-fashioned fichu scarf. It certainly does grand things for your glamour; you can wear it any of half a dozen different ways, and it comes in black and white and later in the season colors may be featured.

If you would transform new or old frocks and suits spend some of your shekels in the neckwear departments and try all the new tricks the shops advise and illustrate.

Urge Education Changes to Meet New Social Need

The changing economic and social order has revolutionized concepts of life, and the teaching profession will have to revamp its methods to meet the new problems, speakers declared yesterday at the annual conference of the Progressive Education association in the Palmer house. More than 1,000 members of that organization and the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education attended.

Those who talked of the new order of things were Paul Hutchinson, editor of Christian Century, and Prof. A. Eustace Haydon, head of the department of comparative religions at the University of Chicago.

"We can't get very far preaching the virtue of industriousness," said Mr. Hutchinson, "with unemployment all about us.

"The American Federation of Labor which has been hitting on only two cylinders for the last two years, is asking a 30 hour week. We can't tell the youngsters about the virtue of industriousness when their fathers are pleading for a shorter work week. It is the responsibility and opportunity of teachers to develop in children a sense that there is something more in life than being busy."

The Puritan virtue of thrift is also waning, according to Mr. Hutchinson. He told the story of a school in a Chicago suburb which carried on a thrift savings plan. The savings were placed in the suburban bank, "which went busted, and the children learned a lesson it hadn't been expected they would learn."

Juilliard Fund Comes to Rescue of Opera in N. Y.

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—Grand opera at the Metropolitan next season was assured today, after a month of suspense during which the Committee to Save Metropolitan Opera labored to raise a $300,000 guaranty fund.

The situation was saved by the decision of the trustees of the Juilliard Musical foundation, in view of the incomplete results of the fund raising effort, to "see the Metropolitan through on certain conditions."

John Erskine, who formulated the conditions as head of the Juilliard interests, said the $14,000,000 endowment left by Augustus Juilliard in 1919 for the encouragement of music in America had been so carefully administered that the principal was intact and still yielding an income of about $500,000 a year.

The conditions which the Juilliard trustees made, and which were declared acceptable by Paul D. Cravath and Cornelius N. Bliss for the opera producing and opera owning organizations, respectively, provide that grand opera at the Metropolitan next season will be more American, more modern, and more educational.

One of the concessions stipulated was that qualified students of the Juilliard school shall have the privilege of attending rehearsals at the opera house. The right to do this had been refused by Giulio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the opera association, even as late as a month ago, according to Mr. Erskine.

Another feature of the new deal at the Metropolitan is to be a supplementary season of opera comique, which has long been agitated by patrons of music in this city.

Cello Becomes Tense in Hands of Piatigorsky

Noted Russian Is Soloist at Symphony.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Gregor Piatigorsky, the cellist member of that trio of extraordinary young Russians of whom the others are Nathan Milstein, violinist, and Vladimir Horowitz, pianist, took the solo position in the concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra last night and made just about as much of a hit as his companions when they, too, were soloists.

He played the Dvorak Concerto in B minor, a highly meritorious composition, even though needing to be played superlatively in order to display all its worthiness. Mr. Piatigorsky is that sort of a superlative player. Ordinarily one thinks of the cello as an instrument of gentle dignity and rather inclined to be a bit solemn in its utterances. The broad shouldered Piatigorsky turns it into quite a different sort of melody maker. He gets a fairly high degree of tense excitement into it. Never forgetting that it is an instrument of sustained melody, he contrives to create dramatic melody as well, something that glows and swells and at times comes near to breaking into a feeling of the dance.

The audience listened and found him entirely to their liking. In fact, the greater part of them sat still and refused to go home, thereby putting him into the position of playing an unexpected encore without accompaniment. He solved the problem by playing Bach, a movement from one of the unaccompanied sonatas, and then, as applause continued to rise, added a similar solution with another excerpt by the same composer.

Mr. Stock went back a decade for his principal orchestral number by reviving Gustav Mahler's Seventh Symphony, a spacious, skillful work, written in so leisurely a manner that the composer was able to put five movements into it, instead of the conventional four. It has its reminiscent moments, but it works out well, and the audience liked it. Mr. Stock, following his own gracious custom, called upon the orchestra to share the greeting. Weber's jolly little "Abu Hassan" began the program, which will be repeated this afternoon.

Flyers Write of Journey to Hunt in India

Libby Chase, Mrs. Brooks Send First Mail.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Do you remember the story of the handsome young Robert of Brocklemere, brother-in-law of the Viscount Eric of Harringden, who in 1545, weary of wars, returned from the continent to England to woo his fair cousin, Irene—Irene of the spun gold hair, and the blue eyes that looked downward? On Christmas eve he set forth into Harringden wood and stuck the great boar Ajax and thereby won the fair Irene.

I thought of this history lesson yesterday.

The first real news about that trio of sportswomen — Alicia Patterson Brooks, Josephine Patterson, and Libby Chase—reached Chicago. They are boar hunting in India and their life is quite as romantic as that of the famous Robert.

The Samuel T. Chases of Lake Forest received their first letter from their daughter Libby since her departure the beginning of January. It was postmarked, "Feb. 1, Jodhpur, India." And at the same time dispatches written by Mrs. Brooks [Mrs. Joseph Brooks as she is more formally known] came from New York telling in detail of the flight from Marseilles to Jodhpur.

The three young women are in Jodhpur or round about there now hunting and waiting favorable days to indulge in that ancient British sport of pig sticking. This is done, in case you don't know, from the back of a horse traveling at breakneck speed. The weapon is a six foot bamboo spear with a steel head six inches long and an inch and a half wide.

Permits for pig sticking are difficult to obtain, according to the reports of the three sportswomen, and then, too, the weather has to be extremely hot. But they are sure they will get in several days of the exciting sport before they board their plane for their return to Marseilles the beginning of April.

The Dutch planes that make the four day trip over four great empires of antiquity—Rome, Athens, Cairo, and Bagdad—are "swell," Mrs. Brooks writes back. There are six seats in each plane that can be made into couches and the pilots on these ships "run the whole show" without any ground interference. If they think they can get through a heavy fog there's no one below to stop them.

On the last trip out—from Marseilles to Jodhpur—four hours were all that was required for the first lap to Rome.

"I was disappointed in the Tiber," writes Mrs. Brooks. "It looked so small and muddy. I expected something very grand after the poem, 'O, Tiber, Father Tiber.' The new monument to Victor Emmanuel—a great horror of white marble and gilt—vies with St. Peter's for first place in Rome's skyline. Unfortunately Victor Emmanuel has the edge. It's the last thing we saw of the city."

On the trip from Rome to Athens Miss Chase was taken ill because of a high wind that made flying bumpy. And unfortunately, according to the news yesterday, she has had a number of bad days since then.

When well over the Adriatic cyclones developed and the plane carrying the trio was forced back to Bari, where the party was forced to spend a night. They wanted to land in Brindisi [just south of Bari], but Mussolini allows no planes within 30 miles of this city.

Mrs. Brooks got sentimental about the Greeks when she was flying the next day along the coast of the land of Aristotle. "Byron's poem kept singing through my head," she writes. "Athens gave me a pleasant surprise—good, clean hotel—wide streets—well fed people. But the Greeks are in bad financial straits. It is the cheapest place in the world. A swell limousine costs you 15 cents an hour. And a bottle of the best wine, ten cents.

"Venizelos is still very much in evidence. He rules on the theory that a dictator can do no wrong. People speak of him in whispers. His is the most magnificant house in Athens, far surpassing that of the President."

But Cairo—only five and a half hours by air from Athens—was quite a different story. There the young women were followed, literally clawed, by beggars and thieves. "If you give one of the poor devils a sou the whole town is on your neck," says Mrs. Brooks.

After doing the Sphinx and pyramids on camels and registering disappointment as the result, the travelers went on to Bagdad and found it one degree worse than Cairo, "a filthy, disease ridden city with the bazaars filled with five and ten cent European junk." The only saving grace was the white marble temple, the Mosque of the Golden Domes, so they say.

From Bagdad to Djask in Persia Mrs. Brooks, the eighteenth woman in the United States to win the coveted transport pilot's license, and her sister, Miss Patterson, flew the plane alone. The day following another 1,000 miles and then Jodhpur. And here the letters that came yesterday leave the trio experiencing long days of flying, hunting, and pig sticking.

Movie Close Up

Don't forget that tomorrow night organizations which form the film and theater industry of Chicago and suburbs are giving a Film Relief dinner dance at the Medinah Athletic club. Proceeds from the affair will go to the needy. Theaters, radio studios, and night clubs will furnish entertainers, among whom are Paul Ash, Ed Lowry, Russ Columbo, Will Mahoney, Ben Pollack, and Art Kassel. The public is cordially invited. Tickets can be purchased through the Film Relief headquarters at 910 South Michigan avenue, or from the managers of neighborhood theaters.

Abbey Troupe Reaches Climax in Synge Play

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The repertory of the Abbey Theater company reached its masterpiece, the famous "Playboy of the Western World," last night, and an audience that filled the Harris to its capacity discovered that the new generation of Irish players can interpret Synge's rich folk-idiom and mellow fantasy as ably as their forerunners. The performance marched along buoyantly to the accompaniment of constant laughter. There was not an echo in the air of the controversy of twenty years ago when the "Playboy" was a bone of contention because of the alleged heroism of a wild-eyed lad who boasted he had killed his own father.

Making comparisons twenty years after is a reckless piece of business, but I am tempted to take a plunge into it. It is my impression that the Abbey's present interpretation of "The Playboy" is better than the old; that this company, as a whole, has a firmer, clearer grip on the play; and that it imparts a gay, soaring mood to Synge's satire of the Irish peasant mind which their predecessors missed.

Arthur Shields strikes me as the best Christy Mahon of "The Playboy's" history, as far as I am informed in the matter. He plays the dominating title rôle with every shade of bizarre character that Synge put into the part, and if a shuddering, dreaming, vain, imaginative lad with a poet's tongue ever walked the roads of County Mayo, believing that he had slain his dreadful father in a Homeric combat with a blow from a peat spade, Mr. Shields is that same incredible being.

Eileen Crowe is crisp and winning as the hero worshipping daughter nicknamed Pegeen Mike, and the others in the admirably balanced cast fit into their parts perfectly. Barry Fitzgerald is the droll old publican. Michael J. Dolan the timorous wooer, Maureen Delaney the amorous, wheedling widow, P. J. Carolan the playboy's grim "da," and F. J. McCormick brings his usual authority to a minor rôle. If you wish to see these visitors from the Abbey of Dublin at the peak of their form, "The Playboy of the Western World" is the bill to choose, although Synge's elaborately ornamented dialogue requires an ear with some experience in its rhythms and idiom.

Lady Gregory's "The Rising of the Moon," one of the best of the Abbey's curtain raisers, preceded the performance of "The Playboy." Mr. Dolan appeared as the fugitive patriot of 1798.

Actress Hopes to Prove Kiss Identifies Man

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 2.—To settle a dispute with Director Frank Tuttle over whether a girl can remember and identify a man who has kissed her, Genevieve Tobin has agreed to be blindfolded in a room at Fox studio next Wednesday afternoon, while a number of the actors who have kissed her professionally do so again, but this time in interests of research.

"I've kissed more than fifty men during my stage and screen career," Genevieve said. "And no two of them kiss alike. Some kisses are delightful. Some are distasteful. Between the two extremes there are subtle differences, but I feel confident that, once kissed, I can identify the same man again."

A neutral umpire will govern the tests. Miss Tobin has agreed to call the kisser's name after each osculation. Rules—if any amateurs wish to take up this winter sport—for Miss Tobin's contest are: No kiss more than six seconds; use of arms forbidden; clinches barred; no cigaret, chewing gum or drug store gargles allowed the gentlemen for clews or other purposes beforehand.

I was told today at Paramount studio that that concern is trying to get the Century of Progress exposition management in Chicago to permit exhibition there of a full length nude statue of Marlene Dietrich, just completed by S. C. Scarpitti, Italian sculptor. Scarpitti arrived here recently after executing a statue of Mussolini in Rome. The replica of Dietrich he modeled in a clay composition was to have been broken by the distracted young sculptor of the film story, but the studio decided that the statue was entirely too expensive and too fine a piece of artistry to meet such a fate, so it's being cast in metal for a permanent art piece.

Mae Clarke's latest accident is likely to cost her her rôle with John Gilbert in "Rivets," as X-ray photographs have revealed that she suffered a fracture of the chin in her automobile accident with Phillips Holmes early Wednesday morning. Poor Mae—she lost a contract at Universal when she was just getting well launched on her career; a physical breakdown with a short spell in a sanitarium snapped her aspirations that time. On other occasions it always has been minor accidents or sudden illnesses that have hoodooed her career.

Lionel Atwill has replaced Richard Bennett as the middle aged husband of Marlene Dietrich in "Song of Songs."

Johnny Hines, once headlined comedian, plays a small part in Paramount's "Dead on Arrival."

Peggy Joyce has just bought a new low priced coupe, the kind that is brother to millions of other automobiles. "Why don't you drive a limousine, with a chauffeur, an important person like you?" one of the girls on the studio lot asked. Peggy's reply may give a hint as to why she's where she is, and some of the other girls are where they are: "A chauffeur is not only an extravagance and a nuisance, but an indication of high hattedness, and I don't go for that stuff."

MGM has bought "Bitter Waters," Heinrich Hauser's novel about Europe of today and its shifting social structure, for filming soon.

Society Gives Warm Welcome to M. and Mme. Vanni-Marcoux

Popular French Baritone and Wife Arrive in Chicago; Noted as Paris Hosts.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Such a warm welcome as there was awaiting that delightful and popular couple, M. and Mme. Vanni-Marcoux, when they arrived in town yesterday. Vanni-Marcoux not only was the favorite French baritone when he sang here with the Chicago Civic Opera company but he and his wife were distinct additions to society. Strange to say, Vanni-Marcoux was born in Italy although he is known as a French singer, but his wife is French.

Their apartment in the Avenue du Cherche Midi on the left bank in Paris is a rendezvous for smart Chicagoans when they are in the French city and every one leaves it wide-eyed with enthusiasm and envy at the perfection of its regency furnishings and decorations, so I'm told by one who has visited them. The atmosphere of the regency period is carried out so perfectly and with such detail that one washes his hands in the bathroom in a wash bowl of real silver, after which he tips the bowl to empty it instead of pulling a plug to release a drain as we do in our less pretentious wash bowls! The Vanni-Marcoux's will be entertained here as much as their time will permit. Both are going on the road with the Henry Webbers [Marion Claire] to take part in "The Secrets of Suzanne" so perhaps they will be able to see their friends here only between behearsals at impromptu and small affairs. Every one who entertains them always wants to do it in her very best manner for the Vanni-Marcoux's are noted for the excellence of their cuisine and even in Paris, where such things are not uncommon, the food they serve is described as "merveilleux" and their wines as "exquis."

Mrs. Arthur Meeker has invited a few friends of the Vanni-Marcoux's to tea this afternoon and probably her tea party and that of her daughter, Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, will consolidate, thus making a sizeable party. Mrs. Cramer had asked some of Mrs. Joseph Donner's friends to drop in for tea after the symphony concert this afternoon. The visit of Mrs. Donner, the former Carol Eiting, this week has been the occasion for much entertaining by her many friends. She will leave on Sunday to return to her home in Buffalo.

Plan Dinners for Guedallas.

The Meekers will entertain at dinner for Philip Guedalla, the distinguished English author, and Mrs. Guedalla on Wednesday the 15th, and the night before the P. E. N. club will give a dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Guedalla at the Casino. The Guedallas were here last week-end, but he left early in the week after one lecture in Oak Park, so there wasn't much chance for entertaining them at that time. He is back now for a day or two, but they will leave Sunday to return the next Sunday for a week's stay.

The Chicago Woman's club will give a luncheon for him on the 15th, the Book and Play club will entertain for him on the evening of the 17th and the English Speaking union will give a tea for him on the 18th.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Canby of Barrington will be interested to learn of the marriage of Miss Mary Canby to Lewis Pennock Mercer, son of Mrs. Lewis P. Mercer Sr. The marriage was performed secretly last November and the Canbys were not told until last week. The young couple are living with Mrs. Mercer in Barrington. The former Mary Canby has been teaching as assistant in the kin-

WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover's last days as first lady are busy ones. She went this afternoon to make her last official visit to the army war college, and had tea with the commandant of the post, Maj. Gen. George S. Simonds, and Mrs. Simonds.

President and Mrs. Hoover dined tonight with Senator and Mrs. David A. Reed of Pennsylvania.

Allan Hoover, younger son of the President and Mrs. Hoover, arrived today at the White House.

Mrs. Gann, sister of the retiring Vice President Curtis, was the guest for whom the Republican Women's League of the District of Columbia gave a luncheon today.

The lieutenant governor of Illinois and Mrs. Thomas Donovan have arrived at the Hotel Washington.

WOMAN KEEPER OF BEES TELLS HONEY SECRETS

Traces Seasonal Progress of Nectar Makers.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Thousands of colonies of bees in Chicagoland are awaiting warm and windless days when they can start on another season of honey production, with dandelion blossoms the first source of their spring, summer, and fall nectar gathering.

MRS. VERA WINKLER.

Honey as a food is too little known, although Chicagoland's beekeepers say their product finds a ready market throughout the metropolitan area. Only a small portion of the honey crop is sold in the comb. Nearly all of it is strained and sold in jars and pails or used in wholesale cooky, cake, and candy making.

Woman Noted as Beekeeper.

In the metropolitan area lives one beekeeper who is credited with being the owner of the nation's largest apiary operated by a woman. She is Mrs. Vera Winkler of Joliet. More than 500 colonies work for her annually in orchards and fields of Kendall and Will counties, where she rents space each year.

In six years of beekeeping she has garnered bits of bee wisdom that are useful not only to other beekeepers but to those who use honey, to those who occasionally visit rural areas where bees are kept, and to casual students of insect life.

Never wear dark clothes, is one rule that Mrs. Winkler applies to bee work. She has found that bees dislike dark objects. Flat soled shoes are an aid, for if an ankle turns, it may mean that a slightly bruised bee will use a stinger in retaliation.

Through the Honey Season.

In describing the progress of bees through a season's honey production, Mrs. Winkler offers information on honey buying that can be applied the year around. The first gathering is from dandelion blossoms, which produce a honey of rich golden color. Little or none of this honey reaches the market, for the bees ordinarily consume it themselves before the full honey harvest is begun.

The first important honey "flow" in the Chicago area is from the blossoms of white clover, considered the source of one of the most popular honey types available. The next crop of blossoms which attract the bees is that of the sweet clover. Honey from fields of this clover is light amber with a slight greenish cast.

From the two important clover crops the bees turn in the fall to a mixture of blossoms, including the buckwheat. This results in a darker honey, seldom including large amounts of buckwheat in the Chicago area, however, because so little of that is grown in this territory. Some beekeepers in the western states offer the pure buckwheat honey.

The Last Honey Harvest.

Still later in the fall the bees mix their honey from such plants as the smartweed, the goldenrod and aster. After this harvest is completed the colonies consider their work done for the year and begin preparing for winter dormancy.

Extracted or strained honey often offers a better bargain than honey in the comb, Mrs. Winkler explains. The reason is that the wax constituting the comb is more valuable to the bee than it is for human food.

How to use honey includes much useful knowledge in cookery. Honey is not a substitute for sugar, says Mrs. Winkler, but is far more important as a food in itself. For its use in cookery its most valuable quality is that of adding flavor rather than sweetening.

She Offers a Recipe.

To illustrate this point she offers a recipe for chocolate fudge. The ingredients consist of two teaspoons of honey, two tablespoons of corn syrup, three heaping cups of sugar, two tablespoons of cocoa, one cup of milk, of which half is fresh and the other half canned, and one teaspoon of vanilla.

Stir and thoroughly mix before cooking. Then put to boil, but do not stir more than enough to keep from sticking to the container. When a sample forms a firm ball in water, add a heaping tablespoon of butter and set in a pan of cold water to cool. Do not stir more than enough to prevent sticking. Add nutmeats, if desired, just before turning out into a pan.

Just what one consumes in eating honey provides an interesting sidelight. Honey contains 40 per cent levulose and 35 per cent dextrose [two useful forms of sugar], plus 17 per cent water and 8 per cent of ash, including forms of iron, phosphorus and other mineral salts.

Pot Roast of Beef, Hams Listed Now at Low Prices

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the meat council of Chicago states:

"Pot roast of beef is recommended to the housewives of Chicago as the most economical meat buy over the coming week-end. Smoked meats, especially hams, also are selling at the present time at very attractive prices in retail meat stores."

DATE TORTE.

6 eggs.	6 graham crackers, crushed.
1½ cups sugar.	1 lb. dates.
1 teaspoon baking powder.	½ lb. walnut meats.

Separate the eggs. Beat the yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add the sugar and beat well again. Mix the crackers, baking powder, dates, and nuts together. Add the yolks and sugar. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Bake in a spring form slowly for one hour. Torte will shrink decidedly from the pan when done. When ready to serve, whip one pint of cream stiffly, add 1 tablespoon of powdered sugar and spread over the torte.

Food Plays Important Role In Series of Jewish Holidays; Purim First of Feasts

BY FAYE REEDER.

The candlestick maker had his innings in December, but the butchers and the bakers throughout Chicagoland are preparing for another series of Jewish holidays when the housewife's art combines with store purchases to make festive feasts of the various celebrations and religious rites.

It is the year 5693, in Jewish religion; therefore in the Gregorian calendar the celebration of "Purim" takes place March 12 and 13. The meaning of this date is historical, and is known in varying degrees to all students of the Bible. Haman devised a plot to exterminate the Jews. Esther and Mordecai became heroes by frustrating this plot and the result was that Haman literally lost his head.

Pastry Shaped Like Hat.

As a result, a favorite food preparation for Purim is Haman taschen, pastry in the shape of Haman's hat. Thirteen ingredients are included, but the simplicity and tastiness of the product suggests trying the following recipe:

For the dough, mix three tablespoons butter, two tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon salt and two cups scalded milk. Add an ounce of yeast and gradually mix in five and one-half cups of flour and one-fourth cup lukewarm water. Knead and let dough rise for about an hour.

For the filling, use one cup of ground poppy seeds, boil with one cup of milk, two tablespoons sirup, and two tablespoons sugar until thick and then add one-half teaspoon lemon rind. Sweeten slightly if desired. Use one-fourth cup of chopped almonds to mix into filling. Half this recipe might be sufficient for a small family.

Roll the dough one-fourth inch thick and cut into four inch rounds. Brush with oil and spread filling. Fold the edges to form a three cornered cake, brush tops with warm honey. Let the cakes rise and then bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Poultry for Holidays.

Spring chicken and other poultry are popular for this and other holidays. Another typical dish of the day for Purim consists of dough filled with meat and cooked in soups. This in Jewish is called "krepiech."

In another month, another holiday arrives. This is the "Passover" and calls for a home service or feast known as Seder, beginning April 11 and lasting eight days. Matzos is used in place of bread. This is an unleavened dough baked in somewhat of a cracker form, and recalls the flight of the Jews from Egypt, when they were in such a hurry they were forced to take their bread dough before it had time to rise. The baking on that flight was on the desert with the heat of the sun.

Charosis, an appetizer for the Seder service, is symbolic of the bricks made in Egypt when the tyrant overlords ruled that even children should be used to fill holes in the brick walls. This required dish can be made in a sample quantity from the following recipe:

Chop an apple and add a little sugar, chopped almonds, cinnamon, and some grated lemon rind. Mix thoroughly and add wine.

Macaroons Popular for Seder.

Better known to persons of other religions and faiths are the almond macaroons, popular for Seder. Ingredients include four teaspoons of cake flour, one pound of almonds ground fine, one and one-half pounds powdered sugar, grated rind of two lemons, and the whites of five eggs.

Beat the whites of the eggs well and add sugar, grated lemon rind and almonds. Mix well and add four teaspoons of flour. Sprinkle powdered sugar in a tin after the tin has been well greased with olive oil. Form cakes and bake in a moderate oven.

Symbolic of the Passover, from the passing of the angel of death over the houses of the Hebrews, the Jews eat horseradish root and parsley in salt water, as a bitter remembrance of the suffering in the old days of Egypt. Sacramental wine is served four times for each feast, as a reminder of the four expressions of redemption as they appear in the Bible in connection with the "Exodus."

Hard Boiled Egg for Passover.

The hard boiled egg is popular for the Passover, because its round shape reminds worshipers that there is no limit to the power of God. Potato has a significance, also, for history explains that the potato was so cheap and simple that it comprised the Jews' major diet when they fled from Egypt.

Less solemn than the Passover is the Feast of Weeks, which occurs 50 days after the Passover. The holiday, May 31 this year, recognizes the time of harvest in Palestine and also the receiving of the Torah from God. The Torah is the Hebrew book of the law.

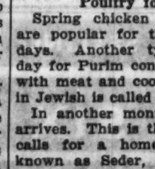
Dairy products are eaten in large amounts during the Feast of Weeks, but not much meat appears on the table. Bukser, a date-like product of Palestine, is a seasonable food, but nothing especially is prohibited during this celebration.

Four Other Holidays.

Four other holidays round out the most important religious celebrations in the Hebrew calendar. Rosh Hashonah, the New Year, occurs in 1933 on Sept. 21 and Yom Kippur when a day of fasting is the order, follows ten days later.

Succoth, the Feast of Tabernacles, is an outdoor feast, weather permitting, on Oct. 5. This is in memory of the temporary dwellings on the desert. Families express their reverence for history by constructing small temples or tabernacles and serving the feast meals in these outdoor booths. The final holiday of the English year begins Dec. 13, when Chanukah, the Feast of Lights, is observed.

KITCHEN GOSSIP by HILDA



Your guests can't catch you unaware

THERE'S one sure way to make a hurry-up dinner. It's new and delicious—La Choy Chop Suey! It's just like making an easy stew. Only it doesn't take so long.

You need a bit of meat, leftover or uncooked. A stalk of celery. A can of La Choy Vegetables and a skillet.

The easy recipe is on the label of the La Choy can. It takes about ten minutes to prepare. It costs only a few cents a serving. A complete meal with rice or potatoes. Try home-made chop suey. Win applause from your family and friends.

I would be glad to send you a free Chinese recipe book, if you'll ask me. Address La Choy Food Products, Inc., Detroit, Michigan.

FOOD SHOPPING PROBLEMS BEST SOLVED AT HOME

More Likely to Lead to Economy.

An important portion of the problem in buying canned goods may best be solved at home, in the opinion of foods specialists who have studied how shopping is done and how it may be completed more efficiently and economically.

The size of the can, the number of persons to be served, and the grade or quality best suited to the serving are suggested as "home problems" the solution of which will lead to better shopping.

Grades usually used to designate quality in canned fruit include the classifications of fancy, choice, standard, and pie or water pack. In vegetables the grades usually put on the label range from "fancy grade" to "standard grade" and "standard."

In sizes, the usual designation for canned goods is by number, although many labels on canned goods direct the purchaser according to the weight of the fruits or vegetables contained. The No. 1 can contains by volume one and one-third cups; No. 2, two and one-half cups; No. 2½, three and one-half cups; No. 3, four cups; and No. 10, thirteen cups.

APPLE CRISP.

6 medium sized apples [4 cups].	¾ cup brown sugar.
¼ cup water.	½ cup pastry flour.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.	4 tablespoons butter.

Pare the apples and slice very thin. Blend the sugar, flour and butter, keeping the ingredients cold so that the resulting mixture will be crumbly. Butter a casserole, or baking dish; lay the apples in it and sprinkle them with the cinnamon. Add the water, and then spread over them the crumbly mixture. Bake uncovered in a moderately hot oven [400 degrees F.] for about 40 minutes. Serve with or without cream.

THESE RECIPES FOR FISH HELP LENTEN MENUS

Four Dishes Described for the Cook.

BY ANGELA PETESCH.

Rather than consume a lot of words with chatting, lets devote our space to concrete recipes. And nothing is so suitable for the Lenten season as suggestions for serving fish. Some recipes follow:

STUFFED FILLETS OF HADDOCK.

3 tbsp. butter	1 small can pimiento
¾ cup bread or cracker crumbs	1 small can of peas
¼ tsp. pepper	Salt and pepper to taste
1 tbsp. chopped cucumber pickle
1-3 cup hot water
½ tsp. salt
Few drops onion juice

Melt the butter in hot water and add the remaining ingredients, mixing them with a fork. Lay one fillet of fish, skin side down, in a greased baking pan; spread the dressing over it and lay the second fillet, skin side up, overthis. Four two-thirds of a cup of milk around the fish. Bake about 40 minutes in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.), basting frequently.

TROUT LOUISIANE.

2 or 3 lbs. trout	Salt, pepper, cayenne, pinch of thyme
2 inch slice of bread	1 tsp. chopped onion
½ cup milk
3 tbsp. butter
2 eggs

Clean the fish well and boil until tender in water to which has been added salt, onion, a pinch of thyme, bay leaf, cloves, allspice, cayenne, and pepper. Chill the fish, skin and remove the bones and flake it. Take out the inside of the bread, discarding the crust, soak it, press dry, and combine with the fish. Then add milk salt, pepper and cayenne. To the beaten eggs add the melted butter and mix to the fish with the rest of the seasoning. Pour into the buttered molds and bake, with the molds placed in a pan of water, in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 15 minutes. Serve with a tomato sauce.

SALMON PIE.

2 cups flaked salmon	Hot mashed potatoes
2 cups thick white sauce	½ cup cream
Salt and pepper	1 tbsp. onion juice
	1 tbsp. lemon juice

Line the bottom of a buttered baking dish with hot mashed potatoes. Combine all the rest of the ingredients and pour over the potatoes. With a pastry bag, pipe the mashed potatoes on the top of the dish. Bake in a moderate oven until thoroughly heated and until the potatoes are browned.

TUNA FISH A LA KING.

1 small can tuna fish	Salt and pepper to taste
1 small can pimiento
1 small can of peas

Make two cups of white sauce, using the proportions of two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons flour and two cups of milk. To this add the tuna, which has been broken in small pieces. Cut the pimientos in narrow strips and add to the sauce. Then add the drained peas. Season. Cook in the white sauce in the double boiler for 5 minutes. Serve hot on toast triangles.

HUMBLE PEANUTS CONSIDERED MEALTIME TREAT

Find Way Into New and Interesting Recipes.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented tomorrow by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Peanuts, once upon a time, felt natural only in an atmosphere of big circus tents, dime movies, and Broadway peanuts stands. One gayly threw shells on the movie house floor or treated the elephants. But one just didn't think of taking peanuts home.

But nowadays it's different. Peanuts have outgrown the elephants and come in off the streets to keep company with the most conservative foods at the dinner table. Folk are discovering that there are scores of ways to serve peanuts as a cheap filling food with more food value per serving than can be boasted by the majority of other foods. What's more, peanuts, either "as is" or in peanut butter form, can show up in delicious ways literally from "soup to nuts."

Cousin of Common Pea.

The peanut, or goober peas, as it's sometimes called, is a favorite crop in our southern states and also in South America, Africa, India, and Manchuria. It's really a cousin of our common pea, and, like its relatives, the rest of the legumes, it's useful in all its parts. Its roots fertilize the soil, the roots and stalks become hay, its nuts—really peas—are ushered in as a food or turned into oil for all sorts of uses.

But from this point on the peanut and peas go their own ways. The peanut pods turn downward on their vines while still young and bury themselves underground to ripen their seeds and eventually be harvested as —peanuts. These are roasted and sold in or out of shells to satisfy our various tastes. Peanut butter is simply the product of finely ground peanuts sometimes with a little of the oil removed.

But now for a few new notions for the cookery of peanuts. For the smaller youngsters peanut butter is a bit more digestible than whole or ground peanuts, but by school-going time it is safe to pack this following sandwich spread into the noontime lunch:

PEANUT SANDWICH SPREAD.

1 cup shelled fresh roasted peanuts.
Cooked salad dressing or mayonnaise.
1 onion sliced

Grind the peanuts quite fine and add enough salad dressing to moisten. Spread between buttered slices of whole wheat bread, laying thin wafers of raw onion over the spread. Strips of lettuce make a good substitution for the onion, if desired.

Or have you ever tried creamed peanuts? Add peanuts, fresh roasted and coarsely ground, to a seasoned cream sauce and serve hot over toast for luncheon. Use them, chopped, with cut-up, red-skinned apples for salad, or in your next shredded cabbage and green pepper salad.

Half a pear, fresh or canned, with chopped peanuts and candied ginger in its upturned center, a garnish of French dressing and a bed of lettuce make another delectable salad treat. Or two tablespoons of peanut butter may be substituted for two of fat in a plain muffin recipe to make delicious breakfast specials.

CREAM OF PEANUT BUTTER SOUP.

¾ cup peanut butter
1½ cups boiling water
3 cups milk
1½ tablespoons grated onions.
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cloves
Dash of paprika
1 level tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons cold milk

Warm the peanut butter in the top of a double boiler, then add the boiling water, working it in a little at a time. When well blended, add the milk, grated onion, and seasonings. Cook with occasional stirring for fifteen minutes. Blend the flour with the two tablespoons of milk and stir into the soup. Let cool until slightly thickened and smooth, and serve in hot bowls with toasted croutons scattered over the soup.

CANNERS OBTAIN DOUBLE CROP OF NEW PEAS

Growers of commercial canning peas have been making use of nature's system of summer and winter by growing two crops of a new variety every 12 months in order to hasten a large enough supply to supplant the varieties now common.

In Wisconsin, where pea canning factories produce about one-third of the nation's annual pack, a new type of pea called the Wisconsin early sweet has been discovered.

Scientists have taken seed stocks to California and Mexico and brought them back to Wisconsin in alternate seasons in order to increase the seed supply twice as fast.

JA, JA, NOODLES! THEY'RE FINE TO FRY, BAKE, BOIL

An Institution Worthy of Consideration.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

What spaghetti is to the land of the Caesars, noodles are to Germany. The reichstag may not provide for a secretary of noodlery, but theirs is a position tradition has assured.

Certainly the wise little fräulein would never regard noodles with other than the utmost respect. Heinrich may be carried away by the flaxen delight of her coronet braids and the peach bloom of her pretty face, but not so Heinrich's mother. For generations Mrs. Schmidt has been putting the question to the mother of her prospective daughter-in-law, "Ja, ja, Frau Bruer, a handsome little cabbage is your Frieda, but can she good noodles make?"

The Institution of Noodles.

An institution worthy of international consideration are noodles, both from the undisputed standpoint of deliciousness and from that almost equally desirable one of easy digestibility. With the problems of preparing Lenten menus before us, this is a propitious time to add to our noodle lore.

Because it is easier and cheaper to buy noodles than to make them, the household product is fast disappearing from the American scene. Formerly, Germany met our demands. But domestic manufacturers now supply the market. The commercial varieties are of a uniformly high standard, United States pure food laws requiring that, to be sold as "noodles" or "egg noodles," each pound must contain 5 per cent of egg solids—about two eggs to each pound of noodles. Those containing a smaller percentage of egg solids must be sold as "plain noodles" or "water noodles."

How to Make Noodles.

The housewife who has a yearning to try her hand at noodle making in her own kitchen may proceed in this manner:

Break two eggs into a mixing bowl. Beat into them ½ teaspoon of salt. Mix flour in until the dough is very thick—it should be heavier than pastry dough. On a breadboard dusted with flour, first knead slightly, then roll the dough into a thin sheet. Leave it on the breadboard until it has dried out. When dry, roll the sheet [or cut it into strips of any desired width, placing one strip on top of the other] and cut with a sharp knife into noodles. They should be very fine for soups—they are especially delicious in consommés and bouillons — though they may be cut into ¼ or ½ inch wide lengths or small squares for other noodle dishes.

Fried noodles are a pleasing accompaniment to chicken in any form, and are always good with the Chinese dishes. For frying, they should be permitted to dry a few minutes longer after cutting, dropped into hot fat and fried until golden brown. Drain them on crumpled paper.

Cook in Salted Water.

A dish the family will enjoy can be made by cooking noodles until tender in salted boiling water, draining them carefully through a colander, and topping them with a dressing of bread crumbs fried in butter and a sprinkling of Parmesan cheese.

A good dish for the evening meal can be prepared with noodles and minced ham. The ham, having been heated in a skillet, is stirred through the noodles. Or you may prefer pouring the cooked noodles into the skillet with the ham and permitting them to fry for a few minutes.

Noodles cooked in milk and served with cinnamon and sugar will satisfy the most exacting diner. The correct proportions are a half pound of noodles to three cups of milk. Cook the noodles in milk until they are tender. When done, fold into them a generous tablespoon of butter. Sprinkle them with a mixture of sugar and cinnamon—the same blend that you like for cinnamon toast.

And then there is always the intriguing noodle ring. Mary Meade offers this recipe:

1 cup broken egg noodles.
1½ cups milk.
1 package cheese.
1 cup soft bread crumbs.
¼ cup butter.
1 pimento, chopped.
1 tablespoon chopped parsley.
1 tablespoon chopped onion.
3 eggs.
Salt, pepper, paprika.

Cook the noodles in boiling salted water until tender; drain and place in the bottom of a medium sized, well greased ring mold. Heat the milk in a double boiler, add cheese in broken pieces, and stir until it is melted. Add bread crumbs, butter, pimento, parsley, onion, and seasonings. Mix well and add beaten eggs. Pour this sauce over the noodles in the ring, mold and bake in a moderate oven, or steam in a steamer until firm. Turn out on a platter and garnish with parsley.

Household Hints

Two parts of finely ground bread crumbs to one part corn meal make an acceptable corn bread. Crumbs also may be used satisfactorily in muffin recipes to save flour.

Juices from pickled fruits add to the flavor of mincemeat and save sugar and vinegar.

ONION SOUP, YANKEE STYLE, ON THIS LIST

With Others for North Dakota Epicure.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

From Fargo, N. D., comes this note: "Out of the goodness of your heart, will you kindly give an old bird of 77 your recipes for potato and onion soup? With all good wishes, yours most truly, Herbert Hodge."

This in response to ours of last Friday on savory soup, urging that more and better use be made of it on midwestern menus.

Whether Mr. Hodge is the sort of epicure who prepares soup or merely sips it, he may enjoy trying the following recipes, several of which may be new to him. The onion soup is a Yankee version of the Parisian dish described last week.

ONION SOUP.

4 large onions
3 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. chopped parsley
Parmesan cheese, grated
6 cups broth
Toasted French bread
Salt and pepper to taste

Slice the onions and sauté them in the butter in a large stewpan. For the broth you may use beef cubes and water if you do not want to bother with making it of fresh meat. Add the broth to the onions, season and boil 10 minutes. Then add parsley. Pour the soup into a casserole, cover it with the toast, sprinkle generously with cheese, and brown in a hot oven.

POTATO SOUP.

Take five good sized potatoes. Peel and cut them in small cubes. Boil them for twenty minutes in just enough water to cover. Add salt and pepper seasoning to taste. Mince one large onion and sauté it in three and one-half tablespoons of butter or fat. Add one and one-half tablespoons of flour to the onion. Add the potatoes, their liquid, and four tablespoons of chopped celery to the pan. Cook slowly for about forty-five minutes.

When the soup begins to thicken add one quart of milk—or half cream and half milk. If you add cream and milk add the cream to the soup as it is about to be served. This should be strained through a colander before pouring and should be served only with croutons or crisp wafers.

CREAM OF CAULIFLOWER SOUP.

3 cups cauliflower
1 small onion, sliced
2 tablespoons butter
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 quart milk
Grated cheese [may be omitted]

Cook the cauliflower in an uncovered kettle in enough boiling salted water to cover. Only about 10 minutes of cooking is required. Drain the cauliflower and chop fine. Cook onion in butter until soft and yellow. Add the milk, seasoning, and cauliflower. Serve piping hot with strips of toast. Grated cheese may be sprinkled over the top of the soup if desired. Yield: Five servings.

CREAM OF CARROT SOUP.

Scrape and cut two large carrots into thin slices. Boil until tender, adding a little salt to the water when almost done. Press them through a sieve. Put one quart of milk, a slice of onion and a bay leaf in a double boiler. Melt two tablespoons of butter and blend well with two tablespoons of flour. Add to the milk in the double boiler. Remove at this time the onion and the bay leaf. Add the mashed carrot to the milk; season with pepper and salt, and just before serving add one-half cupful of hot cream.

CREAM OF LETTUCE SOUP.

1 medium solid head lettuce
1½ tbsp. butter
1 tbsp. minced onion
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
2 cups water
¾ cup top milk
2 cups concentrated meat stock or 2 cups water, in which 2 beef or chicken bouillon cubes are dissolved.

Shred lettuce fine. Melt butter in saucepan, add lettuce, onion, and salt. Cook until lettuce begins to change color, stirring occasionally with a fork. Add water and simmer until lettuce is tender. Press through a coarse sieve. Almost all the lettuce should go through. There should be 2 cups liquid and pulp. Add to liquid and pulp the stock or the water and bouillon cubes. Reheat to boiling point. Add milk and pepper. Serve at once.

Yield: Four cups or 5 servings. One serving: Total, 100 calories; protein, 3 calories; fat, 78 calories; carbohydrates, 14 calories.

CREAM OF SPINACH SOUP.

2 small onions, sliced
3 tbsp. butter
2 cups meat stock [veal, beef, or chicken]
2-3 cup dry bread crumbs
Pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1½ tbsp. flour
¼ tabsp. cold water
2 cups cooked sifted spinach
2 cups milk
½ cup cream

Cook the onions slowly in butter until soft and yellow. Add the meat stock, bread crumbs, salt, pepper, and simmer twenty minutes. Mix flour with the cold water to a smooth paste and stir slowly into the soup. Cook ten minutes, then add the spinach, milk, and the cream. Reheat and serve at once. Yield: Five cups.

TRADE IN FROZEN FRUIT BECOMING MORE POPULAR NOW

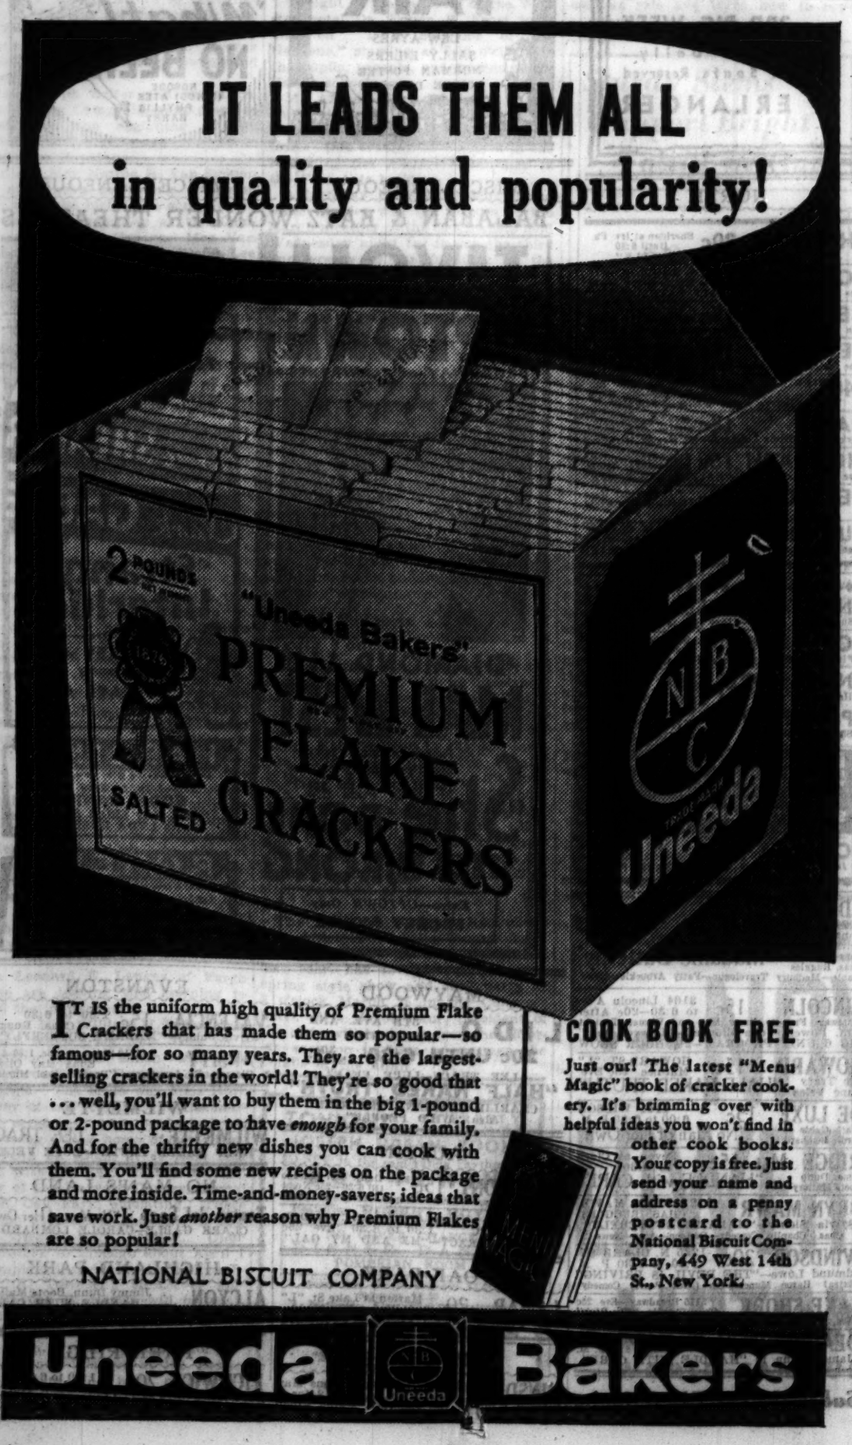
Frozen fruit sales are gaining in volume as shippers discover the best methods of packing and refrigerating to get out of season fruits to market months after they have been picked from trees, bushes, or plants. Chicago stores have been selling frozen strawberries picked last summer in the state of Washington. Tins of frozen cherries have been on the market for several seasons to supply home kitchens with a stock of sauce or pie filling.

PINEAPPLE COTTAGE CHEESE TORTE.

20 graham crackers
½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
½ lb. cottage cheese
2 cups drained, canned pineapple

Crumble crackers fine and mix with butter and sugar. Bake in a buttered loose bottom cake pan for 12-15 minutes in a hot oven [425 degrees F.], remove from oven. Cool and spread with cottage cheese and with cut pineapple. Then a layer of cranberries. Garnish with rosettes of cheese and strips of pineapple. Make one 8 inch torte.

IT LEADS THEM ALL in quality and popularity!



IT IS the uniform high quality of Premium Flake Crackers that has made them so popular—so famous—for so many years. They are the largest-selling crackers in the world! They're so good that ... well, you'll want to buy them in the big 1-pound or 2-pound package to have enough for your family. And for the thrifty new dishes you can cook with them. KRAFT alone gives you full, natural flavor

IN PACKAGED AMERICAN CHEESE

PASTEURIZED . . .

UP until now, every cheese maker has found one thing impossible. To give you full, natural flavor in packaged, pasteurized American.

But now the World's Master Cheese Makers have done the "impossible"—have done it with a new secret method.

Kraft blends choice natural Cheddars so skillfully every bit of that rare, mellowed piquancy is retained!

You have enjoyed Kraft American before. But taste it now! Generous golden squares with pie. Good thick slices in sandwiches. And be sure to try this new richness in baked dishes and smooth rarebits.

Kraft American and Kraft Pimento are pasteurized for purity, like your daily milk. They are packed, air-tight, in distinctive new cartons; also in the five-pound loaf, foil-wrapped and plainly marked "Kraft".

Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation, 400 Rush St., Chicago.

Other Kraft varieties you should try are: the delightfully sharp Creamed Old English; mellow-mild Velveeta; and of course, Swiss, Brick, and Limburger.

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new-made fortune known as "Nosey Ingy," rows to town and sends Bart help and taxies home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trever Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. When Bart realizes he loves Alice he resolves to stay away from Folly island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcée, and soon finds himself unexpectedly engaged. The Bayleys visit New York and Bart sees them. Ingy Warren has been visiting the island and has invited Alice to Wyattville. Bart tells Alice of his engagement. Alice and her mother are guests of the Warrens for the annual Wyattville flower show. Alice wins first prize. Mrs. Burgess has the Bayleys in for tea. Alice sees a photograph of Trevor Burress.

INSTALLMENT XLI.

A VAIN SEARCH.

Bart dimly remembered having dinner with Mother and Aunt Augusta. The two women, as if by common consent, confined their talk to immaterial things.

Sitting between them, yet remote from them as star from star, Bart struggled alone to work out a solution of the things he had seen that day. The shock which came to him when he saw Alice studying his father's picture was confused with many other things. Just where did the Farnhams come in? What was the aim of all this sleuthing on the part of a detective story addict and a nosey young millionaire? What were they looking for?

Then out of nowhere, where suspicions are born, came again the appalling answer. Ingy Warren had dug up the bones of Folly island. He had brought them for identification to Aunt Augusta. Together they were articulating the skeleton. They had reasons for bringing the Bayleys here to face the Farnhams; so far that part was incomprehensible. But this part was plain, and horrifying as a shriek—these two persons knew about Trevor Burgess, and what they didn't know they were finding out.

There was no time to lose, that being the case. Bart must shut Ingy up, if he had to kill him. No use trying to intimidate the little fellow. Weight of muscle is all right in its place, but you can't follow a dodging rodent from hole to hole, offering threats and arguments. The only way of stopping a mouse was to kill it. Aunt Augusta would, in all probability, be decent. Yet why had she lowered herself to such a business? Had Ingy drawn her in with the very charm of this intricate plot? The spiteful little meddler. But what was on his mind? Revenge? He had nothing to be revenged for. No. It was nothing more than his passion for making and improving on scandal.

He was popular there, and they wanted him to play pool.

After dinner Bart went to his room and brought a small pearl handled revolver out of a drawer in his desk. He had no definite plan, save that Ingy Warren should go no farther with that story. Yes. But it would be better to see Aunt Augusta first and try to scare a confession from her . . . .

Out of the muddle of yammering ideas he decided to try the Bayleys again. Charles had said that they were "resting." Well, they were rested now, for it was long past the dinner hour.

Again he got the Warrens' house and heard Charles' official voice coming over the wire. Could he speak to Miss Bayley now?

"They've gone to New York, Mr. Burgess," said Charles.

"Who've gone? This was unexpected.

"Mrs. Bayley and Miss Bayley and Mr. Ingalls."

"Good Lord! When did they do that?"

"A half hour ago, sir. Mr. Ingalls had some business in the city, and they decided to go with him."

"When will they be back?" he asked feebly, for Charles was still at the telephone.

"I believe that Mrs. Bayley and Miss Bayley will stay in town."

"Thank you."

Bart Burgess sat on the bed, his revolver beside him. The Bayleys had intended to stay for the tennis match on Wednesday; Bart had overheard Aunt Augusta gossiping about that. But now, on some sudden decision, they had packed and left Wyattville. What was Mrs. Bayley running away from? The Farnhams? Or had Alice been so crazy as to tell her mother what she had seen in Mrs. Burgess' sitting room? No. That was at least unlikely. As he loved her, Bart trusted in her silence. . . . But what was Ingy up to now, obligingly and at a moment's notice carting away the guests whom he had brought to Wyattville at such a world of pains?

Upon a quick decision Bart sprang to his feet and began changing his country clothes for city wear. He knew where the Bayleys had stayed before in New York. The Barclay. He'd go there at once, tonight, and insist upon seeing Alice. If she wouldn't see him, he'd wait in the lobby until she came down in the morning.

As he finished dressing, Bart saw the revolver on the bed where he had tossed it. He thrust it into a hip pocket and went downstairs to tell his mother a tarrydiddle about some officers in the Lanchester Life who had just telephoned; they were having a late conference with some insurance men from Boston, and wanted Bart to sit in on it.

"Curious," said Aunt Augusta. "I didn't hear the telephone."

Disregarding her, Bart kissed his always-confused little mother and rushed out to find his car, which the chauffeur had brought back from the Country club.

Half past ten, and the clerk at the Barclay, who knew him, said, "No, Mr. Burgess. Mrs. Bayley hasn't registered here tonight."

Bart spoke emptily about calling them up later, then went to a public telephone and proceeded doggedly, methodically to ring up every first class hotel in New York. There were Baileys, but few who spelled it with a y. No Mrs. Matthew Bayley, no Alice. Toward morning he found himself going flightily through the Classified Directory, aiming blindly at actors' hotels, drummers' hotels, hotels that were little more than skyscraping boarding houses. No Bayleys.

Toward midnight he walked the streets, joining the footsore crowd which seems forever to be moving along Broadway, drawn like foolish insects by the bravery of electric lights. He might have called up Lora, for he knew that she would be staying in Elsie Pritchard's apartment. But she seemed to be oceans and seas removed from him now. She was somebody he had met in a dream, kissed lightly and forgotten. But Alice was as real to him as the air in his lungs, or the blood in his veins. Alice lost, sucked in by the dusty breath of Manhattan. . . .

Finally he went to the Brook club which, as it boasts, flows forever like Tennyson's brook, always babbling on, day and night. He was popular there, and they wanted him to play pool; but he preferred to sit in a high chair, watching the game. At his elbow sat a quart bottle of Scotch, its contents steadily reducing as the night wore into morning.

Drink it out and forget it. That was his quiet, insane philosophy, as he went back to his car and turned it toward one of the bridges which span the North river. He should have stayed in town and gone to the office, as usual. To hell with the office. He went through the early morning crowd, concentrated on his gearshift. Funny, he thought, that people say you can't drive well when you're tight. He took miraculous chances, wheeling up to the Queensborough bridge. The man he missed by an inch stopped to swear at him. Bart caught himself laughing. What little things annoy people when they have nothing important on their minds. . . . .

Loveliest Skin Can Be Ruined by Heavy Rouge

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We're no enemy of rouge. Far from it. In fact, we don't know anything except the meeting of one's love that so quickly revives the drooping spirit.

Yet, we believe some women put a blight on their youth, to say nothing of killing the beauty of their naturally good skin with the wrong color and the heavy handed application of rouge. We have in mind a young woman with very beautiful skin, flawless—and without an ageing line in it. Her eyes are a lovely shade of gray blue. For some queer reason she laid on a heavy rouge from nostril almost to hair line. And it's a crime what it did to her fine eyes and her lovely skin.

It so happened that she fell in one day with one of those sometimes dubious friends "bent on telling you something for your own good." This one, however, turned out to be a friend. She persuaded the young lady to give her eyes and skin a chance by rubbing out the rouge tract until it was dimly visible. Just a faint, delicate flush remained beneath the eye a bit, and was carried along the cheekbone to its outer corner. The difference was truly remarkable.

Older women have to watch this tendency to lay rouge on with a heavy hand. Their premise that the more red in the cheeks, the younger you'll look is wrong. That heavy color not only fades the eyes and hair and slaughters the natural delicacy of the skin, but casts ageing shadows on the cheeks. Better no rouge at all than too much. But one doesn't need to appear denuded of this fine artificial aid. Simply throw away the old color and get a new and softer shade and apply it lightly.

A very young girl, too, can plant wan and ailing shadows in her cheeks with the too heavy rouge hand. We saw one the other day, again with that fair, flawless skin of the Norwegian type. But purplish rouge laid thickly over a wide upper cheek tract made a marked hollow appear below.

If the same girl were buying a frock, it's doubtful if she'd choose a shade akin to the color of rouge she was using.

Boy of 13 Defeats Former Teacher in Kalamazoo Art Show

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 2.—[Special.]—A thirteen year old boy took first place from one of his former teachers here in a city-wide art contest judged by Jean Paul Slusser, Ann Arbor and University of Michigan art authority. Jack Sherman, a seventh grade student, was awarded first honors for a watercolor depicting a group of hockey players in a mad rush after the puck just in front of the goal.

Second place went to Dorothy Powers, Jack's school art instructor, for an oil, "Buildings," and third went to Anne Colman, also for an oil, "Portrait." To add to his honors, Jack's ranking over Miss Colman was augmented by the fact that she had spent the summer studying in Paris. Jack son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sherman, has been studying the last two years with Sylvester Jerry of the Art institute here.

Jerry is now represented in the invitational exhibit at the Robinson gallery in Chicago. He also was represented in the American show at the Chicago Art institute in the fall. Jack has been drawing ever since a babe first copying line drawings in news papers. His style is free, direct, and unrestrained.

Society Gives a Welcome to Paris Couple

Vanni-Marcoux and Wife in Chicago.

dergarten of a private school in Barrington and Mr. Mercer is in business.

One of the smartest charity affairs of the winter is to be the dinner dance tonight at the Maisonette Russe for the benefit of the Russian fund for war disabled. Numerous hostesses have planned parties for it, most of them dutch treat, however, as are most of the parties this season.

Mrs. Cudahy at Palm Beach.

From Palm Beach comes word of the welcome extended to Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, who went south last week for her first visit to Palm Beach in several seasons. The gardens of the Cudahy estate there are among the loveliest in Palm Beach and Mrs. Cudahy always is a favorite wherever she is.

John B. Ryerson of Cooperstown, N. Y., formerly of Chicago, is visiting the George A. McKinlocks at their Casa Alejandro in Palm Beach, and since he is a noted golfer he spends most of his days on the golf course.

Mrs. Charles I. Pierce has joined Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe and Miss Jean Schweppe at the Whitehall in Palm Beach and our correspondent writes that they are very busy enjoying many of the social affairs in the smart resort.

Miss Virginia Waller, daughter of the Junior William Wallers, and Mrs. James R. Addington arrived at the Waller Palm Beach villa last Wednesday night after a fast but safe motor trip from Chicago. Mrs. Addington's vacation will be only of two or three weeks' duration, but Miss Waller will not return until early in April. She will be joined the middle of the month by her parents and her brothers, William III., who goes to the Choate school, and Francis, who is at the Gow school for the boys' spring holidays.

Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, Mrs. Waller's sister, and her daughter, Miss Winifred Wheeler, will go south with the Wallers and Robert T. Wheeler, who also goes to Choate, will be a member of the family house party, also.

Mrs. E. F. Swift to Return Today.

Mrs. Edward F. Swift, who has been spending several weeks in Phoenix, is expected home today.

Adlai E. Stevenson is too ill to go to Washington for the inauguration, and Mrs. Stevenson had to go east without him. She left yesterday.

Mrs. William McCormick Blair has gone to Phoenix to visit her mother, Mrs. Joseph Bowen Sr., for three weeks. Mrs. Bowen Phelps is there now and as she has a son in school out there she will stay to be with him for the Easter vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, who motored south with the William H. Mitchells a few weeks ago, are expected home Monday. Mr. Mitchell will return the same day, but his wife will be away a week longer.

Mrs. Carter Harrison FitzHugh and Miss Mildred FitzHugh of Lake Forest left Wednesday for Florida to visit Mrs. Arthur Brown in Cocoanut Grove. Perhaps they will go to New York on their way home and see Mrs. Charles Scribner and Mrs. George Schiefflein, Miss FitzHugh's aunt and cousin.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter and her niece, Miss Audrey Campbell, went down to Washington the beginning of the week. Mrs. Leiter is expected home Monday or Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Norton H. Van Sicklen III. of Geneva are being congratulated upon the birth of a son, Norton IV., yesterday morning at the Community hospital in Geneva. Mrs. Van Sicklen formerly was Miss Glenn Lee Egolf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Egolf of Aurora. Mr. Van Sicklen's parents recently moved to New York from Geneva, and they undoubtedly will be taking a trip west soon to see their first grandchild.

Mrs. Oliver Dennet Grover and her sister, Mrs. Edwin C. Bolton of Detroit, returned yesterday from St. Paul where they attended the funeral of their sister, Mrs. Nicholas Lehnen. Mrs. Lehnen died in Forth Worth on Feb. 26 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Marshall Gennady. Mrs. Lehnen was also the sister of Julius Rolshoven, the artist.

Henry Popes Go to Inauguration.

In addition to all the other Chicagoans who have been listed in this column as being in Washington tomorrow for the inauguration there will be the Henry Popes of Hyde Park boulevard, who went to the Capitol Wednesday to see their good friend inducted into the highest office of the nation. Mr. Pope, who with Mr. Roosevelt, helped finance the Warm Springs foundation at Warm Springs, Ga., in its experimental stage in 1926, was a director of the foundation, but retired several years ago on account of ill health, and just last month he was elected a trustee of the foundation. Mrs. Pope returned from a trip to Mexico City in time for the inauguration. The Popes will attend the luncheon after the inauguration and the tea after the parade, both at the White House, tomorrow and also the governors' reception tonight and the Sunday afternoon chapel choir services.

The Leonard E. Langes of Fargo avenue are leaving this morning to attend the inauguration.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Rothaermel will sail today from New York on a honeymoon cruise which will take them through the Panama canal to California. The bride was Miss Ruth Freeney of Los Angeles and the marriage ceremony was performed on Wednesday at the home of her sister Mrs. Jean M. Allen, at 40 East Oak street, with the Rev. William H. Hill pastor of the Harvard Congregational church, Oak Park, officiating. There were no attendants and only a few close friends were present. Upon their return to Chicago about April 1 the couple will reside at the Whitehall.

Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris will be back from their southern vacations for the breakfast today the Chicago Drama league is to have at 12 o'clock for the Abbey Theater Players at the Drake hotel. Others who have made reservations for the party are Mrs. Harry T. Jones, who will have as her guests Mrs. William Scott Bond and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, Mrs. Harry Fuller, Mrs. William E. Wright, and Mrs. Harold Pynchon. The Drama league is to have a theater party for the performance of the Irish Players Saturday afternoon and again on Tuesday evening.

Three Lectures on Program Today.

Members of the Woman's Athletic club will hear Ellery Walter talk on "The German Youth Movement" this morning at 11 o'clock, and afterwards most of the listeners will have luncheon at the club as they always do after the morning affairs at the club.

Tonight in the ballroom of the Webster hotel Dr. Edwin B. Frost is to talk on "The Splendor of the Heavens," starting at 8:30 o'clock, to the pupils, parents, and friends of the Harris schools.

M. Andre Allix, professor of the University of Lyon, will discuss "France in Face of the Economic Crisis" this evening at 5 o'clock in the rooms of the Alliance Francaise in the Fine Arts building.

A birthday cake on which burned three candles was the feature of the March meeting of the Originalists held Wednesday night for it was the third anniversary of the founding of the society by Mrs. Irvin S. Koll [Melanie Koll]. The April meeting of the society will be held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lee Lewis in Evanston.

Mr. Lewis, you know, is a chemist and it was he who invented Lewisite, the formula for which the United States government keeps a secret. All that had been manufactured was dumped into the Atlantic ocean at the end of the world war to avoid the danger of terrific explosions. Miss Alice Gerstenberg will be the hostess for the May meeting and already she is at work upon the casting of a play to be given that evening by some of the members. The society is made up of one from all the various professions with the wives and husbands of the members as associates.

Mount Holyoke Club Meets Tonight

Miss Margot Atkin, president of the Junior league, will give an illustrated talk on the "Enchanted Island" of A Century of Progress tonight at the midwinter dinner meeting of the Mount Holyoke club in the Art institute. Miss Helen MacKenzie, curator of the children's museum of the institute, will show slides of the exposition and discuss a number of the modern collections in the institute. Mrs. Karl Vittum will speak on the graduate council meeting which she recently attended. Mrs. James J. Forstall, president of the club, will preside.

The Woman's National Republican club, which is still being congratulated on the "chefs' parade" it ran off last year, has invitations out for a spring style show and card party at 2 o'clock March 25 in the Congress hotel. Mrs. Jacob Baur, president of the club, will be home from her Florida vacation in time to manage the details of the affair.

GASOLINE ALLEY—EVERY INDUCEMENT

WALT I DREADED HAVING UNCLE JOHN AND AUNT HATTIE COME. BUT REALLY I'M ENJOYING THEM.
I'M GLAD TO BE ABLE TO DO SOMETHING FOR THEM, PHYLLIS. THEY WERE GRAND TO ME WHEN I WAS A KID.
WALT, I KEEP FORGETTIN'. I WAS GOIN' TO TAKE A BUCKET OUT TO THE PUMP AND GET SOME WATER FOR THE HOUSE — AND ALL YOU DO IS TURN A FAUCET.
I FIGGERED I COULD MAKE MYSELF USEFUL SPLITTIN' AND BRINGIN' IN SOME WOOD. THEN I FIND YOU HAVE CONTRAPTIONS SO YOU DON'T HAVE TO LOOK AT YOUR FURNACE ONCE A WEEK.
DON'T WORRY ABOUT BEING USEFUL, UNCLE JOHN. WE LIKE TO HAVE YOU HERE.
CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY, WALT. I'M GETTIN' TO LIKE THIS PLACE.

At School in Arizona

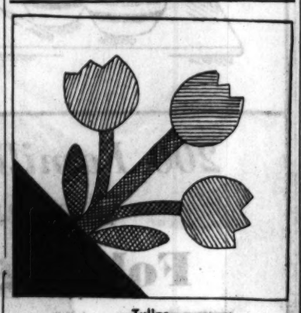
Not All Play

The description attached to this picture of David Wilhelm and William Carney II. was "Spending a lazy afternon at a desert school in Tucson, Arizona." "Ah gee, I wanna go to that school," every young boy who sees this picture will say, but cheer up, boys, life isn't all play and no work out there any more than it is at home and David, who is the son of the Frank E. Wilhelms of Chicago and Lake Forest, and "Bill," who is the son of the William Roy Carneys, also of Chicago and Lake Forest, have to study as well as ride and learn how to rope a steer.

Sturdy Stems Support Bright Tulips in Quilt



Tulips.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Pudgy tulips in a patchwork quilt are especially delightful for little boys and girls of roly-poly years. The flowers of a single block may be the same, but each block different; or each flower of the block may be cut from a different bright color and every block be made alike. In any case, the bright blooms will be supported by green sturdy stems which will sprout from a dark flower pot in the "Tulip" quilt.

Tulip patterns are ever popular. You sometimes find them arranged in wreath and spray designs.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Romeo Bosses Denounced by Office Workers

BY DORIS BLAKE.

There's no question that the species does exist in business places. We refer to the boss who labors under the impression that because he pays a girl a salary there isn't anything she shouldn't stand for from him.

The truth comes out in letters from girls who've had to quit jobs rather than take the punishment meted out to them by these amorous gents. A number of letters came in recently in support of evidence offered by one young woman in this column. It might be an eye opener to some of the self-appointed Romeos, did they know just how distasteful their persons and advances appear in the eyes of said employés.

Says "Just Another Disgusted Steno": "Agnes H.'s story of her experiences with the married office Romeo is so very true that I wish some of the old fossils could hear what girls say about them when they get together! I overheard one member of our sex discussing this very thing the other day in one of the big office building restrooms.

"Said she: 'If they only knew how they disgust us girls, especially those old fools around 40 and 50, with their back teeth gone, their hair on the way out, their waistlines built like hippos, and conceit enough to think they're still in the running—I say, if they could only see themselves as we see them, they'd keep their respectful distance.' These remarks are tame compared to what some of the girls say about the old fools. I often wonder at the good sportsmanship of their wives and how they can possibly think the men are worth the effort of holding."

Says "Belle," another victim of the genus objectionable: "It's awful to run into one of these men in the days when other jobs are hard to get. I was fired recently because I resented, with dignity and in perfectly ladylike manner, the attentions of my boss. He was violent when I moved aside as he was about to embrace me. He blew smoke in my face and shouted at me. Gave me orders so quickly I couldn't possibly carry them out—and then, at the end of the week, informed me he could not use my services any longer. I wouldn't have finished the week unless I had needed the money."

And "K. O'H." tells a story running much to the form of "Belle's." And adds: "It isn't the attractive men around an office who are guilty. It's some ugly old brute who obviously can't get a woman to like him unless he pays her a salary."

Souvenir Ticket Sale for Fair at Total of 330,502

Souvenir tickets for general admission to A Century of Progress sold up to March 1 totaled 330,502, Harry P. Harrison, chief of the division of admissions of the fair, announced yesterday. The tickets include stubs permitting the owner to view either Fort Dearborn or the Chinese Lama temple. Present prospects are that 2,000,000 tickets will be sold before the fair opens on June 1, which would constitute the largest pre-fair ticket sale on record, according to Harrison.

Each Child Is Individual and Like No Other

Set Standards Have to Be Altered.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Have you ever noticed how differently babies grow—and boys and girls, too? Some do everything gradually, uniformly, while others grow in fits and starts, as you might say. One individual from his birth will gain just so much each week, develop evenly and smoothly, get his teeth without discomfort or irritability, and run true to a certain type right up to his adolescence and through it. Another will be uneven and variable—even unpredictable. Physically at 15 he may leap to six feet one, while emotionally and mentally he may be very immature.

We know in a general way what growth means—and development, too. And they are, by the way, two very different things. So we know in a general way what to expect of our children at certain ages. But only in a general way. There are always exceptions, to put it loosely. Or to say it more accurately, there is always the individual. Each child is different from every other child in the world. Each child is, in a measure, a law unto himself.

This is true as regards all sides of him—his feelings, his mind, his body. We can see it when it becomes time for a child to talk. No two children go at it in just the same way, nor progress at just the same speed. When it comes to reading, just see what a variety of results we get in a class of normal children!

The growth and development of the body show this individuality—very strongly, too. Sometimes it is obvious and sometimes, when it's concerned with the obscure functioning, the individual variation is not so evident. But if you have ever had much to do with doctors you will see how keenly they recognize the individuality of each body, its health regaining powers and its reactions to illness and medicines. Only the other day I heard a nurse and a doctor both say at different times in answer to a question, "We cannot be sure. These reactions depend upon the individual. No two people are the same."

Have as the basis of your management of your children a general understanding, but always remember that you are dealing with an individual who is like himself and no one else.

Paris Ensemble Avoids Severely Tailored Lines

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Jacket ensembles for spring consumption avoid severe tailoring. They are seldom like tailored suits in appearance. For one thing, dresses and jackets that make up these ensembles often have big sleeves. Paris wears jackets that have leg o' mutton sleeves or sleeves that are outsize from elbows to wrists, and prefers them to those with plain sleeves. The jacket ensemble is worn here for any kind of doings from noon to dark.

The Worth jacket ensemble shown in our sketch today is one which Paris likes very much, with its smart, big sleeved jacket. It is worn for dressy daytime and sometimes even for evening. The dress and the jacket are made of a fine, silky surfaced wool cloque. The latter is fitted and waist length, with a peplum of beige broadtail fur below the waistline. The sleeves puff out like balloons below the elbows and are met by broadtail cuffs that flare à la balloon above the fitted wrists. There is a cloth collar that becomes a scarf on the left side, passing through a slit under the right side front of the collar and hanging down in a tab below. The buttons are cloth covered.

The dress is perfectly plain, with a little godet set in the lower skirt in front, and with tiny gold braid bands in the bodice. Its sleeves copy those of the jacket except for the fur.

MINUTE MYSTERY

CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LURKING DEATH.

Faltering footsteps on the front porch, a scratching sound as the key searched for the lock and then a click which told Nina Parrish, listening intently at the door of her bedroom, that her husband, though inebriated, had finally located the key hole. Her eyes were wide with fear as the front door banged closed and Stanton Parrish staggered down the corridor to the dining room—and a decanter of whisky!

Creeping to the top of the stairs she peered over the bannister. The house was in darkness! She reëntered her room. Three minutes passed. Then the echo of a shot rang through the house!

In a state of hysteria, Nina reached for the phone and called headquarters.

. . . . . .

Mrs. Parrish flooded the corridor with light, which shone on through the partly opened door onto the porch, as Inspector Kelley and Prof. Fordney stopped the squad car in front of the house. They entered just as she was descending the stairs.

"My husband . . . in the dining room, I believe . . ." she gasped.

. . . . . .

"Why didn't you investigate after hearing the shot?" demanded Kelley an hour later.

"I . . . was . . . too frightened!"

"But you were sure it was your husband?"

"Yes. I'm positive. I saw him from my window."

"You identified the revolver as his. Where was it kept?"

"In our room—but he had taken it on his trip. His return was—unexpected!"

"No doubt," murmured the professor. "Mrs. Parrish, in all probability this is murder. Did you kill him?"

"No . . . no . . . I tell you I didn't leave my room until you arrived!"

"Then who are you shielding?"

"Her lover!" snapped Kelley.

DO YOU KNOW WHY KELLEY AND FORDNEY BELIEVED IT MURDER?

Diet Didn't Do This!

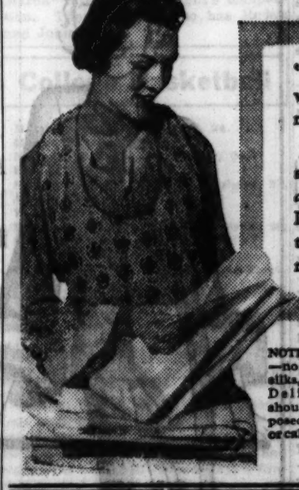
HAPPY little girl, just bursting with pep, and she has never tasted a "tonic!"

Every child's stomach, liver, and bowels need stimulating at times, but give children something you know all about.

Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gave the world Syrup Pepsin. Stimulate the body's vital organs. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs is a mild stimulant that keeps the system from getting sluggish.

If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children do, begin this evening with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things! The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be so many sick spells or colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, in larger spoonfuls!

Get some Syrup Pepsin; protect your household from those bilious days, frequent headaches, and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need stimulating. Keep this preparation in the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause chronic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in big bottles.



"This is the nicest looking wash I've ever had! Here's my new washday secret . . .

"I use my regular soap and washing method, add 2 tablespoons of LUX. Lux is so pure that just this little bit gives me much richer, faster working suds."

NOTE: Use only Lux—no other soap—for silks, woolens, rayons. Delicate fabrics should never be exposed to harsh alkali or cake-soap rubbing.

EACH RAPIDAN TRIP OF HOOVER COST U. S. $200

Rainey Finds Outings for 1929 Total $3,441.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—Those week-end jaunts President Hoover was in the habit of making to his Rapidan fishing camp set the taxpayers back about $200 each for traveling expenses and official entertainment alone.

Perusal of the figures of the controller general's office today disclosed that during the summer of 1929 sums totaling $3,441.20 were paid out for such purposes as "expenses to Camp Rapidan," "traveling expenses, Camp R.," and gas for trips to Rapidan.

During 1929, 1930, and three months up to May, 1931, the sums paid out of account of expenses for official entertainment of the President and trips to Rapidan amounted to $12,778.54.

President's Summer Retreat.

The figures on Rapidan camp costs were obtained by Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey for the purpose of determining how the camp was financed and who paid for the week-end Rapidan parties entertained by President and Mrs. Hoover. The Rainey figures make no pretense of disclosing the total cost of establishing and operating the President's summer retreat in the Virginia mountains. No figures are shown to indicate the cost to the government of maintaining between 30 and 100 marines at the camp almost constantly during the Hoover administration.

During the first summer the Rapidan camp was in use the largest expense listed for any single month was $656.34 for October. In 1930 the July account was $2,615, and that for September $2,185. The total for 1930 was $8,327.06.

The letter forwarded to Mr. Rainey by the controller general's office listed only such items as expenses to Rapidan in the 1929 account. The sum of $3,411.20 was disbursed purely for Rapidan expenses. Normally in hot weather Mr. Hoover spent at least three week-ends each month at the camp. Usually he took with him several guests. In October of that month the President entertained Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain at the fishing camp. The expense listed for the month when that historic "log" conference was held was $656.34.

Expenses for March.

In 1930 the President's traveling and expense account showed a big increase. Whether all the money disbursed under the general heading "traveling expenses of the President to Camp Rapidan" were actually spent at the camp is not shown. The form of the letter, however, would indicate that only expenses incurred during the camp trips were included. Expenses for March that year were listed at $876.73. For April the figure was $418.78. In May the account marked "expenses to Camp Rapidan" showed disbursements of $812.31. This did not include a gasoline item of $75.34. Then comes the big items.

The account shows that $2,615.70 was expended for an account marked "expenses of official entertainment and trips to Rapidan, July." Just below that was another item marked "expenses account official entertainment, Rapidan and various trips, $1,137.82."

SLUR CAST UPON WOMAN BRINGS DEATH TO THREE

Hilarity in the flat of Harry O'Neal, colored, 3117 South La Salle street, turned to strife early yesterday morning when two white guests made a slighting remark about a woman who had been escorted in by a third.

"That's a fighting word," cried Samuel Nicolette, 40 years old, 3149 Princeton avenue, the escort.

He drew a pistol and shot the two men who made the remark: Anthony Evans, 18 years old, and Frank Brocker Jr., 21 years old, both of 9220 South Park avenue. They died a few hours later. Nicolette and the cause of the quarrel, Mrs. Bobbie Drucci, 25 years old, 2930 Indiana avenue, fled.

At 2932 Indiana avenue the police found Nicolette. He tired to get away when he was told he was under arrest. The police shot him and he died, too, last evening. Mrs. Drucci will attend the triple inquest today.

AVIATION NOTES

Northwest Airways, which operate out of Chicago to Bismarck, N. D., via St. Paul and Minneapolis, yesterday extended their lines to Billings, Mont., a distance of 410 miles. Between Bismarck and Billings one air mail schedule will be operated in each direction daily until passenger planes are placed on the route in about ten days. This extension completes about one-half of the new northern transcontinental route from Chicago to Seattle.

During last year 5,862,103 passenger miles were flown on the air lines of the country for each passenger fatality, compared to 4,614,176 passenger miles per passenger fatality in 1931 and 4,322,802 passenger miles per passenger fatality in 1930, according to a department of commerce report issued yesterday.

HUTCHINS SAYS NEW METHODS WIN AT CHICAGO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., March 2.—[Special.]—A detailed explanation of the experiments in education which the University of Chicago is carrying forward was given by President Robert Hutchins at the closing session of the National Education Association Department of Superintendents. He said the plans were proving successful.

At the session of the principals' group recent conditions in the J. Sterling Morton High school of Cicero, Ill., were attacked in a resolution that called them "so indefensible and harmful to educational systems of this country that it points out the desirability of immediate measures, through state legislatures or otherwise."

"The need for an educated citizenry was never greater than at present, for a new defeatism is paralyzing economics, statesmanship, agriculture, commerce and industry," William J. Bogan, Chicago's superintendent of schools, declared.

Resolutions adopted by the main convention today declared that:

"Just and equitable" taxes should be levied and for the emergency, loans should be authorized for schools from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

At the superintendents' session Feb. 28, William McAndrew, former superintendent of Chicago's public schools, said a senator in Minnesota had urged state teachers' colleges be used for the wards of the state. Mr. McAndrew said it would be better to put the legislators in asylums for the insane. A resolution was adopted today by the superintendents saying:

"That we decry and condemn such statements as irrelevant, erroneous, and reflecting a wrong impression."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 2.—The Yannigans weren't very kind to the Regulars this afternoon in the first full handed intraclub Chicago game. They won, 6 to 1, in seven innings and the Regulars were held to three hits by Guy Bush and Buck Newsom, two of the safe smacks and the lone run coming in the final inning.

Bush didn't allow a man to reach first base in the three innings he worked. Bill Herman opened against Newsom with a single, but was out trying to stretch it. That was the extent of the Regulars' hitting until Cuyler opened the seventh with a double, paused while Babe Herman fouled out, went to third on McCarron's single to left and scored while Newsom was throwing out Hendrick.

Bush Hits Double!

The Yannigans made enough to win in the second inning while Bud Tinning was pitching. Koenig singled to right. Young knocked a double play ball to Hendrick, but Gink made a high throw to second, Koenig taking third and Young landing safe on first. Zack Taylor singled to left, scoring Koenig. Bush doubled to right, scoring Young and Zack Taylor, but was out trying to reach third, Babe Herman to Gabby Hartnett to English. Kreevich walked, but Hack fanned.

Richmond was the victim of the other three runs made by the Yannigans. In the fourth he walked Newsom with two down. Kreevich then drew his third successive pass after which Hack singled, scoring Newsom. English threw out Demaree.

Babe Does a Sun Dance.

The fifth saw the Yannigans hammer in two more. Barton got credit for a double when Babe Herman lost the ball in the sun and scored when Harry Taylor doubled to right. Koenig walked, but Young doubled to right; H. Taylor scoring and Koenig stopped at third. Herman Hartnett walked, filling the bases with none out. Newsom forced Koenig at the plate. Kreevich fouled to Hendrick and Richmond threw out Hack.

Manager Grimm, who has been changing his mind daily for four days in regard to his announcements about the intraclub game, and his choice of pitchers for the games with the Giants Saturday and Sunday, announced after the contest today that there will be no game tomorrow and that Malone, Warneke, and Yerkes will pitch against the New Yorkers Saturday.

Grimes in Hospital.

Newsom showed a world of speed today and asked permission to help slay the Giants in Sunday's game. Root will be ready and Bush probably will seek a chance to bust into Sunday's game.

Burleigh Grimes last night was seized with an attack of the flu and was sent to the hospital, where his wife had been confined for several days with the same ailment.

Manager Grimm said his lumbago had almost disappeared. He has not played in either of the camp games to date, but expects to be in the lineup against the Giants.

BABE RUTH DOES WAR DANCE AFTER HOLING TEE SHOT

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Babe Ruth walked up to the third tee on the Pasadena golf course today, aimed at the green 135 yards away with a No. 2 iron and promptly entered the dream organization of all golfers, the hole in one club.

The Babe was playing with Frank A. Willard, CHICAGO TRIBUNE artist, against Lloyd Gullickson, pro at Pasadena, and Billy De Beck, cartoonist.

From the tee it appeared that Ruth's ball had rolled beyond the cup. The Babe started a trot to the green. When he found the ball in the cup he began a war dance.

SOX SOLVE EASY PITCHES, BUT NOT SIMMONS TANGLE

New Rumor Says Al Was Hurt Playing Golf.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 2.—The conditioning of the White Sox now is at the point where important work will be held up until the pitchers feel able to put a little stuff on the ball. With the exception of two or three, the mound candidates spent the off-season in an easy chair. As a result the hitters will have to wait until next week to satisfy their desire for a glimpse of real curves and high speed.

Manager Fonseca and Vice President Harry Grabiner expressed no alarm over the latest rumors concerning Al Simmons, the slugging outfielder obtained from the Athletics, who is at Hot Springs, Ark.

The reports today had it that Simmons has delayed reporting to the Sox camp because he is still affected by a hand injury received last November. It was said that the shaft of a golf club Al was swinging broke and the jagged end was driven into his right hand.

Say Hand Was in Cast.

Simmons, the report said, checked in at Hot Springs with his hand still in a cast. Bandages now have been removed, but Al still refrains from golf.

Sox headquarters had understood that Simmons' lame right arm was caused by abscessed teeth, five of which were removed recently at Hot Springs. In a telephone conversation with President Lou Comiskey the outfielder said he had intended to remain at Hot Springs to have the teeth replaced, but instead would report to Pasadena within the next week.

In practice today the only youth to fill the order for good pitching was the giant southpaw, Clarence Fieber, who was in fair trim when he reached camp. The kid had such an extensive layout of fooiers that Mule Haas, after trying to hit a few, declared he didn't want to see the lad until next July.

It may be a couple of weeks before Ted Lyons, Milton Gaston, Sam Jones, or Red Faber are able to treat the batters to some real pitching, but Fonseca isn't interested in them. He knows just what to expect from each, and is letting them follow their own training course. But he does want the younger members of the staff to get into action at an early date, because a couple of them will be in demand for summer services.

He'll Concentrate on Three.

The pitchers due to receive the greatest amount of attention from the boss are Ed Durham, who came from the Boston club; Paul Gregory, who should show some results of his big league experience last season; and Vic Frasier, who was a budding star in 1931 and last year only good enough to win three while losing thirteen games. Frasier's fadeout last season was attributed to illness.

Another who is being counted upon for assistance is Chad Kimsey, the former Brown. The trouble with him just now is excess of weight, which he insists he can take off if given enough time. He now is about as heavy as a small automobile. Kimsey isnt being counted upon as a starter, but as a finisher, a rôle he filled in admirable fashion while with the Browns. The Sox havent had a reliable rescue pitcher for years. No team ever enjoyed much success without one. Hence Kimsey should be an important factor after he sheds about 25 pounds of rib roast.

Is Boone's Arm Still Dead?

There are other possibilities among the pitching candidates, but it is too early to break out with enthusiasm over them. Carl Boone, a winner in the class AA minors until his arm went dead, was picked up as a free agent on the possibility that he might have recovered.

It is Fonseca's hope to find that ten of his present crop of fifteen pitchers are good enough to retain for the season. Eight of these are almost certain to be Durham, Faber, Frasier, Gaston, Gregory, Jones, Kimsey, and Lyons.

Golden Gloves Army Goes Home to Rest for Finals

BY ARCH WARD.

Chicagoland's army of Golden Gloves fighters moved out of the city yesterday to 23 towns in seven states. Nineteen will be back Wednesday night to battle it out with 13 Chicagoans for the 1933 Golden Gloves championships.

Never has competition in THE TRIBUNE's amateur boxing tournament been so evenly distributed. Fourteen cities will be represented in the final night's round. They are scattered in six of the seven states with original entries.

Coach Johnny Behr, who will train Chicago's squad for the intercity bouts with New York, is authority for the statement that the talent in this year's tournament is the best he has seen. Four strong candidates remain in each of the eight weight divisions.

The Talent Sparkles.

The 1933 championships will be decided Wednesday night before a crowd that promises to fill the Stadium. There will be 24 bouts—16 semi-finals and eight finals—and the first pair of boxers will enter the ring at 8 o'clock. Tickets may be obtained at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn, and at Room 530, Tribune Tower. Mail applications should be addressed to Golden Gloves ticket manager, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The prices, a new low for Golden Gloves finals, are 75 cents, $1.50, and $2.20.

One of the surprise fighters of the tournament is a young Chicago flyweight named Walter Matthies. He stopped Frank Sanello, Central A. A. U. champion, to survive the quarter-finals Wednesday night. He is one of the hardest hitting 112 pounders Golden Gloves has developed and his marksmanship is remarkable in view of his inexperience in major competition. The boy who whips Matthies will win the title, if past performances count for anything.

The Road Is Rough.

Matthies, however, has three strong flyweights blocking his path to a Golden Glove. Johnny Baltzer, member of last year's intercity and international team, is still in the race. So is Lenny Cohen, one of the city's most popular amateur boxers. The other is a Joliet boy, James Kinney, who whipped Ted Kara, Cleveland champion, to gain the semi-final bracket.

The most improved fighter of former Golden Glovers who have reached the semi-finals is Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., heavyweight. Wiater was on last year's intercity and international teams as a light heavyweight. He is punching harder and more accurately as a heavyweight. His decisive victory over Jake Allen of Cleveland, who had been touted as a sure winner was a major development of the quarter finals.

Some Are Strangers.

There will be many new faces on next Wednesday's final card. There also will be Golden Glove veterans. In the latter group are Leo Rodak, Max Marek, John Ginter, Henry Rothier, William Celebron, Fred Caserio, William Troest, Vernon Miller, and Jack Kranz. Rodak, Marek, Rothier Treest, and Kranz have grown heavier since their last appearance in THE TRIBUNE meet and have advanced to the next weight class.

The best showing by out of town teams was made by Peoria, which qualified three for the semi-finals Cleveland, Joliet, Rockford, and Davenport each placed two.

The Catholic Youth Organization led Chicago clubs by moving three of its champions—Ginter, Rothier, and Marek—into the last night's competition. The C. Y. O. also has Rodak and John Pacek.

Northwestern 26-24 Victim of Marquette

BY CHARLES NEVADA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 2.—Marquette's basketball team tonight squared its season accounts with Northwestern university by winning a return engagement, 26 to 24. Forty-two hundred fans, including a sizable Evanston delegation, saw the Wildcats suffer their fourth defeat of the campaign.

The contest was a thriller, with Northwestern having a chance to tie the score in the last 40 seconds, when Co-Capt. Eugene Ronzani fouled Joe Reiff. But Reiff, the Big Ten's best scorer, missed both times from the free throw line. Marquette led at the half, 15 to 13.

Reiff, except for his costly misses, proved all that has been said of him. He turned in four baskets and a free throw for scoring honors. Co-Capt. Frank Zummach and Adolph Gorychka led Marquette's attack, each with seven points. Marquette's accuracy from long range was the deciding factor. A majority of its baskets were from far out. Northwestern handled the ball better, but was erratic under the baskets.

The Wildcats missed seven free throw opportunities, against two for the locals. Marquette took 49 scoring chances, compared to 40 for the visitors.

Jim Bottomley Signs His Contract with Reds

Tampa, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—After a four hour conference with Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, Jim Bottomley announced tonight he had signed his contract. Bottomley, a first sacker the Reds obtained from the Cardinals, is believed to have agreed to a salary of somewhere between $10,000 and $13,000. He drew $10,000 last year with the St. Louis team. He first was offered $8,000 by Weil, but the Reds' chief later increased the sum to $10,000.

Gardiner	13	15	15	43
Worters	17	5	13	35

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Blackhawks persist in being the most stubborn team that ever refused to be shut out of the Stanley cup playoffs. They indicated same at the Stadium last night by defeating the New York Americans, 3 to 2, thereby cutting the gap between themselves and the third place Boston Bruins to five points. The triumph enabled the Hawks to cling to whatever slender hopes they have of gaining admission to hockey's annual world series.

Only 5,000, one of the few meager crowds of the Hawk season, were in attendance last evening, but they witnessed one of the most rugged and speedy games on the schedule, for in the Americans they were watching a team which was making a last ditch stand to remain in the running for the playoffs.

The Americans were in third place all by themselves before last night's game, but now are tied with the Canadiens for that position due to the latter's victory over Toronto at Montreal.

What! No Penalties?

Chuck Gardiner was forced to put on one of his best goal keeping acts of the year to halt the desperate New Yorkers, who caused him to make 43 stops, against 35 for Roy Worters. Still another strange feature of the contest was the fact that nary a penalty was called.

The Americans scored in the first period, Johnny Sheppard taking a pass from Normie Himes. The Blackhawks' first goal, done by Paul Thompson, was slightly tainted, since it bounced into the cage by the grace of Red Dutton's skate when Paul had just taken a hopeful swipe at the puck. Romnes gave the Hawks the lead in the same period, and the Hawks went ahead, 3 to 1, on Gottselig's goal in the last period. Johnny Martin counted the Americans' final goal in the last period.

The game was not two minutes old before the Americans, who had taken the offensive as soon as the opening whistle sounded, scored. Himes took the puck over the blue line by himself and shoved it along to Sheppard, who promptly dispatched it into the Hawk cage before the Chicagoans could get together. The goal was accomplished in 1 minute and 45 seconds. The Americans' line of Burke, Klein, and Kuhn came on then and blinked the red light again, but the officials decided they had been offside and disallowed the goal.

Fast but Futile.

The Hawk wings in the meantime did not appear to be very alert, contenting themselves with long shots, and it was one of these which caromed first off Thompson's stick and then glanced away from Dutton's skate and into the cage before Worters had a chance to sight it. This tied the score in 5:10. Couture was given an assist on it for some unknown reason.

This appeared to inspire the Hawks, and within six minutes they had taken a 2 to 1 lead. Coulter having failed with a number of strong arm rushes, Abel tried one which eventually proved profitable. Taffy was smacked down right soundly by Brydge, but managed to move the

Londos and Stecher Do it All Over Again Tonight

Joe Stecher, the Nebraskan who is one of wrestling's patriarchs by virtue of his years of experience, will seek his fourth lease on the world's heavyweight championship tonight at the Chicago Stadium. He will engage Jim Londos, who has made the most sustained claim to the crown for the last three years, for the second time in six weeks.

Promoter Joe Foley and Matchmaker Doc Krone have high hopes of setting a new Chicago record for attendance at a mat entertainment, even to outdoing Londos' last appearance at the Stadium, when he defeated Kola Kwariani, the Russian, before nearly 18,000.

Jim Does Some Resting.

The second meeting of Londos and Stecher this year within such a brief space of time was prompted by the latter's effort against the titleholder, in which he held James to a one hour draw at the Coliseum in a match whereat nearly 2,000 customers were turned away.

Londos was dissatisfied with his performance against Stecher, who has held the title thrice previously and came out of retirement less than a year ago. Ed White, Londos' manager, decided that Jim was going stale, and he has appeared in only two matches since, spending the remainder of the time resting in the California mountains.

Stecher Has Edge.

Stecher will enter the match with the advantage of an additional half hour on the time limit, and with it a margin of more than 40 pounds in weight and four inches in height.

In addition to the main event a majority of the Londos cast will appear in supporting rôles. A half hour time limit has been prescribed for four bouts, bringing together Ray Steele and Pat O'Shocker; George Zaharis and Abe Coleman; Jim McMillen and Hans Steinke, and Joe Savoldi and Joe Cox. Jack Smith and Lou Plummer will go 20 minutes or less in the opening match.

Valparaiso Wins Over St. Viator Quintet, 33-29

Valparaiso, Ind., March 2.—[Special.]—Valparaiso university tonight defeated St. Viator college for the second time this season, 33 to 29.

Money Shortage Perils Trips of Ohio State Teams

Columbus, O., March 2.—[Special.]—Athletic teams at Ohio State university are among those embarrassed for lack of ready funds.

The track team was scheduled to leave for Champaign, Ill., tomorrow for a triangular meet with Michigan and Illinois. The basketball team, leading the Big Ten conference with nine victories and one defeat, is to leave for Bloomington, Ind., Sunday, where they will play Indiana Monday night.

Because of the recent restriction placed on savings deposits and the like in Columbus banks, the athletic department does not have money to finance either trip. It was expected, however, that receipts of the basketball game here Saturday with Wisconsin will be sufficient to take care of the team's needs for the trip to Indiana.

What will be done with the track team's affairs still was undecided.

In the Home Stretch

A field of thousands cut to thirty-two. The battle for Golden Gloves narrowed down to the four fightin'est boys in each division! And the final exchange of punches coming up!

Finals in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions will be held at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday, March 8. And Chicagoland's boxing fans will want to be there. And here's all you have to do, Mr. Fan, to assure yourself of an evening of fistic thrills:

Just drop in at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, or at Room 530, Tribune Tower. You have your choice of tickets at 75 cents, $1.50, and $2.20, tax included. All seats will be reserved.

BYRD SUFFERS SPIKE WOUND IN YANKEE DRILL

Reports Ahead of Time, Then Gets Setback.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2.—[Special.]—By starting his training campaign a week ahead of schedule here this afternoon Sammy Byrd, New York Yankee outfielder, became one of the team's first casualties.

Not due to report to Manager Joe McCarthy until next week, Byrd left Miller Huggins Memorial field after a drill of about an hour and a half with a spike wound in the left hand, sustained in a game of leap frog which closed the Yankees' second training workout.

Examination shows the wound, at first thought serious, to be of minor consequence, and it is expected Byrd will be on deck again tomorrow.

Cy Perkins, coach, was another casualty, more seriously injured than Byrd. He received three nasty spike wounds on the right hand at the very start of the leap frog game, and had to submit to treatment.

CAREY O. K.'S BECK.

Miami, Fla., March 2.—[Special.]—Walter W. Beck, 27 year old right hander whose name leads all the rest on the Dodger roster and whose pitching record of 27 victories against six defeats with Memphis last season also tops the list, has won the unqualified approval of Manager Max Carey.

"Watch that delivery," "see that easy motion," and "look at that ball come up there," were only a few of the comments that agitated the Carey vocal cords today while Beck was in action.

"He knows just what he's trying to do," said Max, "and he comes mighty close to doing it, too."

BUSH FLEXES REDS.

Tampa, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Adding Joe Morrissey, likely regular second baseman, to his crew, Manager Donie Bush of the Cincinnati Reds sent his pitchers and catchers through their first practice today within two hours after the advance squad reached camp from Cincinnati. The drill, little more than a limbering up exercise, found 16 players on hand. The rest are to report next week.

PIRATES PRACTICE BATTING.

Paso Robles, Cal., March 2.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's Pirates paraded at full training camp strength today as Manager George Gibson put the newly arrived infielders and outfielders to work. The players must be ready for exhibition games within a week. With the infielders at their posts and the surplus pitchers manning the outfield, the outfielders were given a turn at bat. In the afternoon the infielders batted.

INDIANS SIGN PORTER.

New Orleans, La., March 2.—(AP)—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh had nothing but good news today about his Cleveland Indians. He received word that Outfielder Dick Porter had signed his contract, leaving only Pitchers Wesley Ferrell and Willis Hudlin and Infielder Harley Boss unsigned. In addition, all of the ten men now in camp were in excellent condition aside from Pitcher Clint Brown, who was a trifle overweight.

DAVIS LEADS GIANTS.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 2.—(AP)—Paced by George Davis, outfielder, obtained from Pittsburgh during the winter, the New York Giants went through an extensive batting drill today, under the close scrutiny of Manager Bill Terry.

Davis put his full weight behind two pitches and drove a pair of home runs out of Wrigley field. To wind up a day of batting practice Terry put his squad to work in the sliding pits, with special attention devoted to rookies. Hughie Critz, second baseman, took his first workout and said his throwing arm was in the best of condition.

"I have been giving it a good rest," Hughie explained, "and I am sure it will hold up through the campaign."

The Giants will go to Catalina island Saturday for the first of a pair of exhibition games with the Chicago Cubs.

GRIFFITH IS SATISFIED.

Biloxi, Miss., March 2.—(AP)—Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, focussed his attention on his baseball club today as it worked out. Then he handed down this opinion:

"It will do in any league and in any race."

"Mark down on your cuff," he continued jubilantly; "that I will have the best crop of utility players in the American league next season, a better batch of reserves than the Yanks or Athletics will show, if they stay up all night trying to figure out a way to beat my aggregation.

"And reserves win the battles."

COLEMAN BACK IN SHAPE.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Ed Coleman, Philadelphia Athletics outfielder, today proved to the satisfaction of Manager Connie Mack that his ankle, broken last season, is in first class condition. Turning out for the second day's workout of the spring training season, the big outfielder raced out a hit in fast time in his turn at batting practice. He showed no trace of a limp.

DON HURST HOLDS OUT.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Declaring he felt he was "entitled to more than my new contract calls for," Don Hurst, big first baseman of the Phillies, today announced himself a holdout.

The three pitchers unsigned on their arrival yesterday all put their names to contracts before the battery men's first workout today. They are Flint Rehm, Ed Holley, and John Berly.

Chicago Awards Letters to 13 Frosh Basket Players

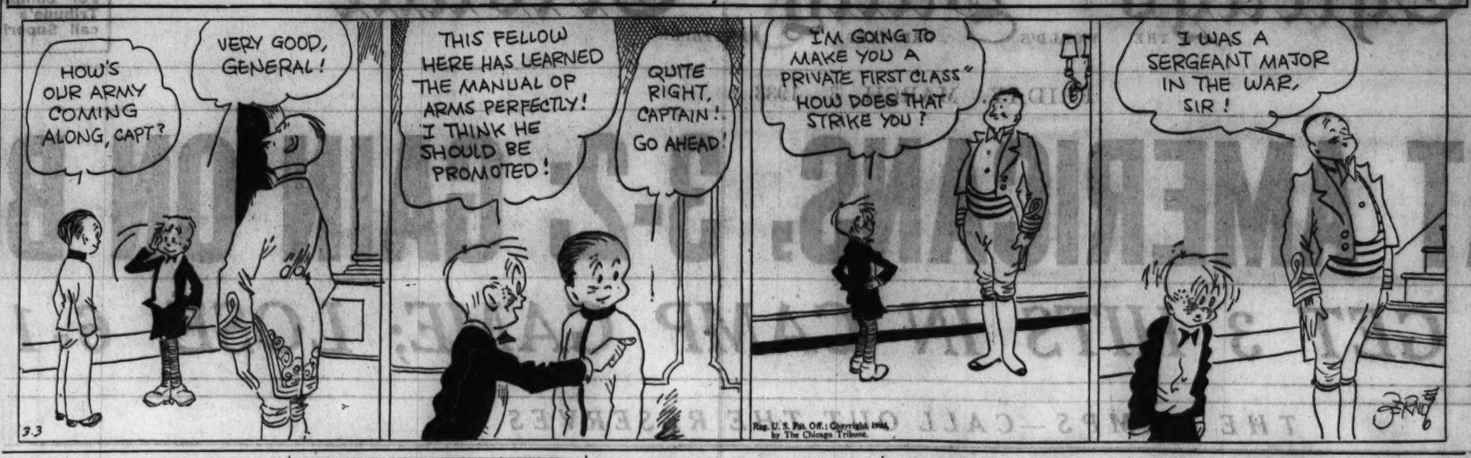
Thirteen members of the University of Chicago freshman basketball squad, regarded as the best the Maroons have had in years, were awarded numerals last night. The numeral winners:

Richard Cochran, Richard Dorsey, William A. Haarlow, Stanley Kaplan, William Lang, William Stapleton, Addison Carr, and Raymond Weiss, all of Chicago; Leonard Hoffman and Richard Zacharias of Hinsdale, and Norman Masterson, Bartlett Peterson, and Gordon Peterson of Long Beach, Cal.

PLAN GOLF TOURNAMENT.

The executive board of the Royal League National Golf association will meet tonight in suite 1421, Steuben building, to make plans for the annual national golf tournament to be held in Chicago in May.

SMITTY—GENERALLY SPEAKING—



Fenger Beats Phillips High; Bowen Wins

Wendell Phillips, defending champion, was eliminated in the quarter finals play for the Chicago Public High School league basketball championship yesterday by Fenger, 34 to 28. King of Fenger led the scoring by making 13 points, three baskets and seven free throws.

Another team which advanced to the lightweight semi-final round was Bowen. It defeated Hyde Park, 19 to 12. McCarthy led in the attack for Bowen. These games were played at White City.

Four City Games Today.

Two more lightweight and two heavyweight games in the quarter finals will be played today. McKinley will meet Roosevelt at Roosevelt and Austin is to face Lane Tech at Loyola university gymnasium in the lightweight contests. In the heavyweight games Crane Tech will clash with Lane, and Harrison is to meet Lake View. Both of these contests will be played at Loyola gym.

Harrison qualified to meet Lake View by whipping Marshall, 23 to 21, yesterday in the playoff of the tie in the west section. Rubenstein, with three baskets, was the star for Harrison.

Final Suburban Games.

Final games will be played in the Suburban and West Suburban leagues tonight. The Chicago Catholic High School league teams will complete their sectional schedules. Several sectional champions already have been determined for the elimination series which will begin next week.

Banded Pigeons Can Be Traced, and Here's How

BY BOB BECKER.

Speedy carrier pigeons whizzing through the air in Chicagoland represent a hobby to a large group of people. There are many interested in the breeding of these birds.

But a number of these pigeons which stray from their air routes or do not return to their home cotes land on the windowsills. Over a period of years we have had scores of letters from city dwellers who woke up to find banded pigeons around their homes. Sometimes the birds were so exhausted they stayed several days.

But no matter how the birds arrive or what their condition, the natural question is: Who owns the pigeon? And the only clue is the writing on the leg band which reads like a secret code.

William I. Lyon, president of the Inland Bird Banding association, the organization which works with the biological survey in the banding of wild, migrating birds, advises us that the best source of information on banded pigeons is the American Pigeon Keeper at 330 South Wells street, Chicago. The Inland Bird Banding association does not band pigeons nor does it keep books on these birds. Therefore, to trace the ownership of a pigeon or the origin of a band, it is useless to confer with any one connected with the Inland association.

When banded wild birds—cardinals, robins, gulls, etc.—are found, one should write to F. C. Lincoln, biological survey, Washington, D. C., where complete records of all banded wild birds are kept.

Coucci Rides Beau Jolie to Close Victory

Miami, Fla., March 2.—[Special.]—Beau Jolie, carrying the colors of George H. Phillips, scored by a scant nose in the Middle Classes purse, feature of the Hialeah Park program today. G. W. Ogle's Indian Runner was second, two lengths in front of J. F. Somerville's Sea Fox. The winner paid $7.80, and the time for the seven furlongs was 1:24 1-5.

Jubilate set a fast pace to the stretch, when Indian Runner went to the front. Silvio Coucci, holding Beau Jolie in slight restraint to the stretch, found the horse eager to run when he gave him his head in the home dash, and he came from fourth to get the decision. The track had dried out since the rain yesterday, and while good time was the rule, there were several upsets. The Pelican in the fourth being the only favorite to win out of five races.

J. E. Widener's The Pelican defeated a select field of 3 year olds in the fourth race, secondary feature, by a margin of two lengths, aided by Hanford in the saddle. Inlander was second and Bobbing third. The Pelican led all the way and was never in danger. He paid the shortest odds of the week, 35 cents to $1. The time was 1:12 for six furlongs.

WIDOW IS SOLE BENEFICIARY IN CORBETT WILL

New York, March 2.—[Special.]—The will of James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world, who died on Feb. 18 at his home in Bayside, Queens, has not been filed for probate because of the necessity of citing numerous relatives who live in California, but it has been read and it was learned today that Corbett left everything he had to his wife, Vera, and named her as executrix.

The will is in the possession of Corbett's attorney, James A. Dayton, of Long Island City, but he refused to discuss its contents or the value of the estate today.

The former champion was a good business man and was a money maker up to a few years before his death. He was regarded by his neighbors as wealthy and had many interests in Queens which few people knew anything about. It is supposed that the probate of the will will be delayed more than ten days.

MORGAN PARK GETS NATIONAL RIFLE CHARTER

Washington, D. C., March 2.—[Special.]—The Junior Rifle club of the Morgan Park Military academy, Chicago, has been issued a charter by the National Rifle association. The club has a charter membership of 22. The officers are Robert Wickman, 2330 Orrington avenue, Evanston, president; Sylvester Hojnacki, 3313 West 66th street; Victor Leatzow, 11247 Lothair avenue, secretary; Howard Martin, 10907 Longwood drive, treasurer, and William Erickson, 2220 South Ridgeway, executive officer.

100 Riley Preps Report for Spring Grid Drill

Moran, Paul Meet Tonight in Cicero Ring

The Card

Joey Kleko vs. Meyer Frager [4].
Walter Jerz vs. Steve Zene [4].
Bob Groshek vs. Johnny Roth [4].
Benny Barrish vs. Tod Kelly [4].
Mitchell Bennett vs. Harold McGarr [4].

Harry Paul, Philadelphia middleweight, and Jack Moran of Chicago will meet in a six round bout tonight at the Cicero stadium, 19th street and 52d avenue. Paul is making his first appearance in several months. He whipped Ray Tramble at the Rainbo Fronton several months ago. Moran defeated Tramblie at the Chicago Stadium last year.

Harry Schuman, west side welterweight, and Puggy Weinert of the west side will clash in the six round semi-final. Schuman won six straight matches before losing last month. Weinert gave Johnny Phagan a hard contest in his last bout. Five other matches at four rounds each have been arranged by Promoter Billy Cepak.

Joey Kleko and Walter Jerz will appear in two of those, Kleko against Meyer Frager, south side junior welterweight, and Jerz against Steve Zene, Gary, Ind., middleweight. Kleko is making his first professional start and Jerz is after his second pro victory.

Jack Delaney and Ossie Jefferson, local 160 pounders, will meet in a six round bout at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, tonight. Red Chinski is to meet Jerry Rucera in another. Art Mitchell and Eddie Meyers meet. Wrestling exhibitions will bring together Hassan Ahmed and Frank Walsh, and George Jonasen and Ralph Ranson.

Marty Sampson, New York middleweight, displayed considerable ability while sparring with Bobby Vernon yesterday for his eight round match against Bud Saltis at White City Monday night. Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis, Minn., featherweight, is due today for his eight round semi-windup with Joey Bozak. Other bouts arranged by Pep Kerwin last night are: Georgie Nate vs. Joey Cohen [5], Johnny Nate vs. Eddie Evans [5], Steve Selgrat vs. Mitz Minikel [5].

DETROIT BANKS RUSH NEW PLAN TO LEGISLATURE

May Reopen, Limit Withdrawals.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—Efforts to straighten out the tangled web of difficulties in which Michigan banks are now enmeshed for the moment have shifted to Lansing. In the capital city a committee representing local bankers is endeavoring to rush through the legislature the necessary bills to carry out the plan which, according to general belief, was sponsored by Senator James Couzens during his conference in Detroit yesterday forenoon, when he met directors of the First National bank of Detroit.

No announcement was made when the meeting adjourned, but it was then and still is the consensus among financial and business leaders that Couzens was strong in advocating the reopening of the First National bank and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce as going concerns but with a limit to withdrawals to such amounts as the two institutions can readily pay. Such assets as could not readily be liquidated would be segregated and turned into cash as rapidly as conditions permit.

Couzens Expects Reopenings.

In a statement issued by Senator Couzens this evening he said he could see no further obstacle toward enactment of the proposed legislation and its approval by Gov. Comstock, that would open the banks of the state for restricted withdrawals.

"I am gratified at the patience and consideration the public has displayed during these trying and unsettled times," he said. "I beg of them to continue their good will and patience for five or six more days. During this period every practical plan should be adopted to provide an exchange of goods, even if we have to go to the primitive days of barter."

The bill finally agreed upon at Lansing is understood to have the approval of Senator Couzens, and he has stated that it is acceptable to the Washington officials who have authority over the national banks of the state. It will permit banks to permit withdrawal of deposits.

It also was authoritatively stated today that Henry and Edsel B. Ford, who on Sunday were willing to assume the financing of the capital structure of the new banks, were agreeable to assist in any way possible in the continuance of the present banks.

The Fords, it now develops, never made the proposal for two new banks, but this plan was advanced by Washington officials. When officials of the treasury and currency departments insisted upon the two new banks the Fords were besieged by local bankers to assist in the financing of the capital structure. They agreed only to the plan demanded by Washington.

Retain Country Deposits.

A special Michigan representative of the Reconstruction Finance corporation today announced that while the R. F. C. ordinarily will not make loans on assigned claims, it would be willing to make loans on outstate banks against the $20,000,000 they have on deposit in Detroit banks as reserve.

During the banking holiday period Detroit banks have strenuously refused to make full release on these deposits stating that by doing so they would be showing preference. Therefore, they held reserve accounts to the 5 per cent withdrawals applying to all deposits. This has led to a serious disagreement between bankers in Detroit and state officials.

Gov. Comstock's second proclamation called for their release in full, but the banks refused to do so pointing out that a 100 per cent release of these funds would undoubtedly be illegal, and bar any banks making such refunds from further R. F. C. assistance.

Bill for State R. F. C.

Lansing, Mich., March 2.—[Special.]—The house advanced to third reading a joint resolution sponsored by Representative Joseph C. Murphy of Detroit, which would provide for a vote on a proposed amendment to permit the virtual creation of a state Reconstruction Finance corporation. The state would be empowered to borrow $15,000,000 through bond issues from which local governmental units could borrow, pledging as security up to 50 per cent of their delinquent taxes.

The house private corporations committee, which has been considering several emergency banking bills designed to permit control of the present moratorium emergency by the governor and banking commissioner, announced that a rough draft of a bill acceptable to most of the members had been prepared and would probably be reported tomorrow morning.

The measure is understood to be a revised version of the administration—supported substitute for the McNitt bill. It would give extremely broad powers to the banking commissioner to take over individual banks, where necessary, and would permit operation with quick and slow assets segregated. Passage of such a measure is necessary to provide for uniform control of state and national banks under the Couzens act.

Western States Take Action.

San Francisco, Cal., March 2.—(AP)—Hastily proclaimed holidays closed hundreds of banks in California, Oregon, Nevada, Washington, and Idaho today, tying up the greater part of deposits aggregating around three billion dollars.

Starting late last night with the proclamation of Gov. James Rolph Jr. providing for a California holiday because of "unnecessary withdrawals" and tentatively setting its duration at three days pending enactment of remedial legislation, the movement quickly encompassed Arizona, Oregon, and Nevada this morning. Local proclamations then were made in behalf of banks in Washington and Idaho.

Although the California holiday was at first referred to in official circles as mandatory upon all banks, a scat-

WHAT THE STATES ARE DOING ABOUT BANK HOLIDAYS

The status of banking holidays and moratoriums in the various states last night was as follows:

Alabama—Banks are closed by proclamation of governor, restricting withdrawals to five per cent until Friday, March 10.

Arizona—Banks are closed by order of the governor until Monday, March 6.

Arkansas—By authority of bank commissioner, withdrawals of deposits restricted to five per cent, affecting 50 to 60 banks.

California—Banks are closed by authority of the governor, reopening next Monday, March 6.

District of Columbia—Various restrictions are in force and nine banks have demanded sixty day notices on withdrawals.

Idaho—Governor declares 15 day holiday after signing bill permitting him to declare 60 day bank holiday within next two years.

Indiana—By authority of bank commissioner half the banks restrict withdrawals of deposits to five per cent.

Kentucky—Holiday extended hrough March 11. Some banks closed after governor's proclamation, which is not mandatory. Withdrawals are limited to five per cent to March 11 for the most part.

Louisiana—Some banks are closed after governor's proclamation of three day holiday; will reopen Monday, March 6.

Maryland—Bank holiday extended.

Michigan—Withdrawals of deposits restricted to five per cent by proclamation of the governor.

Mississippi—Gubernatorial restriction to $25 plus five per cent, with various exceptions.

Nevada—Banks are closed by proclamation of governor, reopening next Monday, March 6.

New Jersey—An emergency law has imposed various restrictions, but only a few banks are closed.

Ohio—An emergency law has restricted withdrawals to five per cent for the most part.

Oklahoma—Banks are closed by order of the governor, reopening Monday, March 6.

Oregon—Three day holiday proclaimed by governor pending new legislation, but few banks close and others restrict deposit withdrawals.

Pennsylvania—An emergency law imposes various restrictions, affecting forty banks.

Tennessee—Various restrictions are in force by governor's authority; only a few banks are closed.

Texas—Gubernatorial proclamation declared financial moratorium for five days and ordered all banks to remain closed until and including March 7.

Utah—Governor proclaims five day bank holiday, following new legislation passed last night.

Washington—Three day holiday proclaimed by governor, with banks reopening on Tuesday, March 7.

West Virginia—An emergency law restricted withdrawals to five per cent monthly.

Wisconsin—An emergency two week holiday is proclaimed by Gov. Schmedeman from Washington, D. C., effective this morning.

NORTH. INDIANA PUBLIC SERVICE EARNS $1,849,899

A net income of $1,849,899 for 1932 was reported to stockholders of the Northern Indiana Public Service company yesterday by Morse Dellplain, president. This company, which is a member of the former Insull group, last year reported a net income of $3,726,421.

Gross income for 1932 was reported as $12,575,730, compared with $14,815,011 in the preceding year. The results of the general business depression were reflected in the 21.37 per cent decline in the sale of electricity and of the decline of 14.91 per cent in the sale of gas.

Current assets as of Dec. 31, 1932, were given as $3,096,774, compared with $3,550,164 at the end of 1931. Current liabilities were $3,453,482 as of Dec. 31, 1932, compared with $3,542,254 in the preceding year. After deductions surplus as of Dec. 31, 1932, was given as $411,484, compared with $2,013,772 at the close of the preceding year.

Trustee in Bankruptcy Named for Mills & Sons

W. W. Wheelock yesterday was appointed trustee in bankruptcy to administer the affairs of Mills & Sons, realty company, which developed Westwood, said to be the largest home building project ever launched in the country. Liabilities are said to approximate $15,000,000. The company was declared bankrupt on Jan. 14, 1933. Mr. Wheelock and Laurence H. Mills were appointed receivers on Feb. 8, 1932.

INT. HARVESTER STRONG IN CASH DESPITE LOSS

Reserves Are Used to Meet '32 Deficit.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

While showing a loss from 1932 operations of $7,582,873, the annual statement of the International Harvester company, issued yesterday, discloses the strong financial position of this premier Chicago industrial organization. The 1932 loss compares with an income of $1,346,537 in 1931.

Current assets as of Dec. 31, 1932, were reported as $232,978,710, including $32,927,483 in cash and $20,448,552 in United States treasury short term obligations. This compares with 1931 current assets of $246,455,327. Current liabilities were given as $16,702,071, compared with $21,888,815 in 1931. There were no bank loans outstanding.

The annual report, which was signed by Alexander Legge, president of the company, states that sales were 47 per cent less than in 1931, the greatest decline being in sales of farm implements.

Foresees Better Farm Prices.

"While distressingly low prices for farm commodities during the year further curtailed the ability of the farmer to purchase our products, the company looks forward to better prices for the farmer and to a consequent revival of its implement trade," Mr. Legge stated.

"With improved lines of farm implements and motor trucks, and with drastic economies effected by curtailment of expenditures, including reductions in salaries and wages, the company expects to be in a satisfactory earning position on the return of a more normal volume of business."

The report says that the deficit for the year made it necessary to transfer $10,000,000 from general reserves to surplus. It points out that these reserves were established from earnings of prior years as a blanket protection against unforeseen contingencies, such as market declines in inventories throughout the world, and declines in dollar exchange value of current assets in foreign countries.

Reserves Protect Company.

"This policy of providing general reserves," the report continues, "has seemed to the management the best protection against contingenices, and we are fortunate in having them available at this time. They are necessary insurance, operating for the benefit of both stockholders and customers, and should be renewed when earnings again permit.

"The balance of these general reserves not yet used is $15,000,000. This has been applied in the balance sheet as a deduction from inventories, such inventories having been valued at cost or market, whichever was lower."

The amount of receivables outstanding on Dec. 31, 1932, was $119,751,482, which was $20,825,000 less than for the preceding year. The reserve for losses on receivables now amounts to 16.7 per cent of the total outstanding. It was pointed out that of the total amount of receivables outstanding, $40,000,000 consisted of notes and accounts of jobbers, dealers, and commercial truck users.

The company expended $1,017,000 for research during 1932. This amount was charged against the reserve for development and extension established from earnings in prior years.

BRITISH POUND SOARS TO $3.45½ IN N. Y. MARKET

New York, March 2.—(AP)—A sharp rebound in the British pound sterling was the feature of an otherwise rather irregular foreign exchange market today.

The pound apparently shook off the control of the British equalization fund, showing a gain of around 2 cents while the London market was open. In local transactions, after London trading had closed, sterling advanced to $3.45½ for cables, a gain of 4⅞ cents.

The Scandinavians followed the pound, these currencies gaining from 12 to 18 points. Canadian dollars, however, firm earlier, closed unchanged. French francs also held to their previous quotation at 3.94⅞ cents.

House Group Recommends U. S. Regulate Gas Lines

Life Insurance Leaders Talk Over Problems

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A special meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners was held here yesterday to discuss problems confronting insurance companies as a result of the restrictions placed on bank deposit withdrawals in many sections of the country.

Commissioners of a dozen states attended the conference which was held in the Palmer House. The commissioners conferred during the day with members of the executive committee of the American Life Convention, an association of 140 life companies, and members of a delegation representing the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, whose membership includes the heads of the important eastern companies.

In Session Two Days.

The executive committee of the American Life Convention has been in session here for two days. The delegation representing the Association of Life Insurance Presidents arrived yesterday.

The insurance companies are faced with a reduction in premium income because of the restrictions on bank deposits and at the same time are meeting greater demands from policyholders because of the freezing up of the ordinary credit channels.

It was this situation and kindred problems which the commissioners and insurance executives discussed at yesterday's session. The sessions were closed. Joseph B. Thompson, Missouri insurance commissioner and chairman of the committee, issued the following statement at the close of the meeting.

"The executive committee of the National Association of Life Insurance Commissioners met today in Chicago to consider the effect on the general financial situation of the restrictions on bank withdrawals which have been made effective in several states. The committee has adjourned until 9 a. m. tomorrow."

Concerted Action in Doubt.

The prospect of concerted action on the part of the commissioners to cope with the present situation was uncertain. It was pointed that the group is purely a voluntary association without legal powers.

Commissioners who attended the meeting included: G. S. Van Schaick, New York; Theodore Tangeman, Ohio; E. W. Clark, Iowa; Garfield Brown, Minnesota; A. C. Dulaney, Arkansas; John C. Kidd, Indiana; M. L. Brown, Massachusetts; Theodore Thulemeyer, Wyoming; Jess G. Reed, Oklahoma. Ernest Palmer of Illinois although not a member of the committee attended the session.

The American Life convention membership of 140 companies is made up largely of western and southern concerns. Executives of several western companies attended the meeting. The delegation of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents included representatives of several eastern firms.

Watch Policy Loan Bill.

Interest was shown during the day in a bill which was introduced late Wednesday in the Michigan legislature providing for limitations on the making of policy loans and cash surrender disbursements by insurance companies.

Among other things the bill provides, "That until June 30, 1935, no life insurance company or fraternal beneficiary society organized under the laws of this state shall pay out in policy loans and cash surrender values in any one month a sum greater than the difference between the net cash income of such company for such month, and the sum of all death benefits, disability health and accident benefits, annuities, installment trust payments, and unmatured endowments, then due and payable; provided, however, that such company may, upon application to commissioner of insurance, make such additional policy loans and pay out such addition surrender values as the commissioner may in his discretion determine, having in view the resources of the company, and the rights, interests and equities of all policyholders of such company."

M.K.T. Orders Lounge Cars; Will Reopen Three Shops

St. Louis, Mo., March 2.—(AP)—M. H. Cahill, president of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad, announced tonight that specifications had been placed with car builders for the construction of a fleet of air cooled lounge cars. Cost of the new equipment is estimated at about $250,000. The railroad also announced plans for reopening of the shops at Parsons, Kas., Sedalia, Mo., and Waco, Tex., on April 1 for at least three months, with reemployment of nearly 800 mechanics.

J. R. THOMPSON CO. NET PROFIT $287,569 IN 1932

Collins Expects Sales to Increase.

The John R. Thompson company, large restaurant chain, made a net profit on its 1932 operations of $287,569, according to the annual report to stockholders made by President William M. Collins. The 1932 net, which was transferred to surplus, compares with $904,653 reported for 1931.

W. M. COLLINS. [Koehne Photo.]

Mr. Collins in his report made some comment on the events leading up to the resignation of John R. Thompson Jr. as president late last year.

"In April, 1932, on account of pressure of other business, Charles A. McCulloch resigned as chairman of the board," Mr. Collins' statement said.

Sales Drop Late in 1932.

"In the first half of 1932 there was an increase of 6.58 per cent in the number of meals served as compared with the corresponding period of 1931. In the second half of 1932 the number of meals served began to decrease rapidly, attaining a total decline of 16.75 per cent, or approximately 5,750,000 meals, as compared with the same period in the previous year.

"By December, 1932, the situation had become so acute that your board of directors deemed a change in management was essential. I was elected chairman of the board at its regular meeting in December.

Expects Better Results.

"Although I had retired from restaurant operation three years previous to these events, I was prevailed upon to accept the brief remaining term of the presidency, with the understanding that I would be relieved of the responsibilities of that office at the forthcoming election of officers.

"That the business of John R. Thompson company is fundamentally sound is, in my opinion, beyond question. Competent and harmonious management, adhering to the program now in effect, should result in a steady and substantial improvement in the position of the company."

The balance sheet shows current assets of $2,088,308 as of Dec. 31, 1932, compared with $2,302,703 in the preceding year. Current liabilities stood at $1,157,234, compared with $1,151,927.

WORLD BANK AS GOLD CLEARING AGENCY IS SEEN

New York, March 2.—(AP)—Financial authorities, speculating on the probable results of the forthcoming world economic conference, are inclined to believe that the Bank for International Settlements may emerge with new functions which will make it an institution of vast importance.

Although the B. I. S., originally formed for the purpose of handling war reparations payments, has apparently lost this business, it has developed additional activities which, it is thought, may enable it to serve as a sort of world clearing house in gold stabilization operations.

The B. I. S., in a new rôle, it is thought, would be especially valuable as a clearing house for information which the central banks of its members would find extremely convenient in determining credit policies and in formulating plans for the stabilization of exchanges and gold reserves.

DEMOCRATS FLOCK TO WASHINGTON, THUS AIDING PULLMAN CO.

The Democrats, long absent from inauguration affairs at Washington, are taking advantage of the opportunity which Franklin Roosevelt is giving them. Already it is reported that the railroads have called on the Pullman company to furnish 640 cars to carry inauguration visitors to the national capital. Of these 150 cars are to be parked on sidings so that their occupants may use them as hotels. Travel is reported as being exceptionally heavy from the southeastern part of the country—where the Democrats have one of their greatest strongholds—and as heavy from New York. The movement from the middle west is reported to be reasonably good.

The desire of the Democrats to see their leader made chief executive has occasioned considerable aid for the Pullman company financially. This year's descent on Washington is described as exceptionally heavy.

S. W. Straus Put in Charge of Receivers

Receivers were appointed yesterday, both in Chicago and New York, for S. W. Straus & Co., the largest investment banking house in the country specializing in real estate bonds. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson in Chicago appointed Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, as temporary receiver for the company.

Judge Wilkerson also appointed William Scott Bond, Chicago real estate operator, temporary receiver for the Straus building, which is owned by the Straus Safe Deposit company. The building is located at the southwest corner of Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue.

Action here against the Straus company resulted from an equity action brought by C. O. Chestnut of Detroit, who has a claim of $6,000. He was represented by Attorney Arthur C. Bachrach.

Unpaid Taxes Are Alleged.

The appointment of the receiver for the Straus building followed the filing of a petition in equity on behalf of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee, which holds a $9,000,000 first mortgage on the structure. The petition sets forth that taxes totaling $500,000 for the years 1928-'29-'30 have not been paid.

Along with the above actions an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the federal court against S. W. Straus & Co. by the law firm of Schwartz & Cooper on behalf of the Fleming Coal company, with a claim of $2,000, and two other creditors. An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was also filed against the Straus Safe Deposit company by the law firm of Wilhartz, Hirsch & Schanfarber on behalf of Ira Rubel, who has a claim of $1,000, and two other creditors.

In New York S. W. Straus & Co. consented to the appointment of a receiver to take charge of its assets and also to the granting of an injunction, the exact form of which is to be decided later, dealing with the sale of securities in New York state.

New Company Is Planned.

S. J. T. Straus, chairman of S. W. Straus & Co., said in New York that a new company, "strong financially and in personnel," will be organized to help the bondholders. He issued the following statement:

"Although this is an unhappy ending of a business which has been constructively engaged in the development and upbuilding of the country for more than half a century, I regard this move as a constructive one. The proposed receivership of the company is directly attributable to an economic depression which in severity and duration is unparalleled in the history of the world.

"This proposed receivership is an unusual one in that the public generally are little affected by it. Practically none of the stock of the company is publicly owned. There are relatively few creditors of the company. The proposed receivership does not affect either the value of the bonds or the value of the properties covered by the various bond issues."

Chicago Officer Blames Depression.

Sidney H. Kahn, vice president of S. W. Straus & Co., here, in a statement last night attributed the receivership to the general depression. He asserted that the parent company and its affiliates had invested nearly $14,000,000 in an effort to protect customers when defaults began to occur with the turn in the tide of business.

"When the continuation of the depression caused property after property to collapse, it became apparent that the entire resources of S. W. Straus & Co. would not be sufficient to meet the mounting requirements of unpaid principal and interest," Mr. Kahn said. "Then, and only then, the company ceased pouring out its funds to meet these defaults. It then created a bondholders' committee for the protection of the bondholders."

Judge Denies Receivership for Balaban & Katz Corp.

Federal Judge Wilkerson yesterday denied the motion of a holder of a $1,000 note of the Balaban & Katz corporation for the appointment of a receiver. The court took under advisement a motion by Balaban & Katz that the plaintiff should not be allowed to file an amended bill and granted the plaintiff five days in which to file suggestions and reasons why he should be allowed to file an amended bill.

Silver Futures Boosted by Speculative Buying

New York, March 2.—(AP)—Active speculative buying of silver futures on the National Metal exchange sent prices from ¾ cent to one cent an ounce higher in the late trading today. Spot silver was firm at 26⅝ cents, up ⅛ cent.

Money Rises; N. Y. Reserve Rate at 3½%

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Money rates continued yesterday their advance toward the high levels which prevailed in the fall of 1931 and the spring of 1932. Meanwhile the federal reserve board issued its weekly report showing that, despite a general tightening of money throughout the country, member banks in the two most important money centers, New York and Chicago, were in highly liquid condition and ready to supply credit to other less fortunate centers.

The New York Federal Reserve bank increased its rediscount from 2½ to 3½ per cent. This increase had not been generally anticipated. Bankers immediately expressed the opinion that the increase in the rediscount rate would make it necessary for the treasury to pay a higher rate of interest on its next short term borrowing, inasmuch as banks would subscribe only at a rate sufficiently high to protect them against loss in case they should want to rediscount the government securities at the federal reserve.

Call Loan Rate Raised.

Following Wednesday's rise from 1 to 2 per cent, the rate on call loans yesterday moved up to 2½ per cent. This is the rate which prevailed from January to July, 1932. At the beginning of 1932 it had gone to 3 per cent in the urgent demand over the end of 1931.

Lifting of the call money rate yesterday followed a net loss of $114,191,403 gold in the week ended Wednesday. It also is traceable to the fact that some of the New York banks during the last week exhausted their excess reserves and have been compelled to rediscount at the federal reserve bank for the first time since March, 1932, at its rate of 2½ per cent.

The further advance of 1 per cent yesterday in the federal reserve rediscount rate may force the rate on call money still higher. If banks have to pay 3½ per cent for money at the federal reserve bank they will not lend it at less in the call market. This makes the reserve rediscount rate effective and in line with market conditions for the first time in a year.

Bill Rates Again Increased.

Late yesterday afternoon an increase in the open market bill rate was announced for 30-60-90 day paper. The new bid rate is 3½ per cent compared with the 2¼ prevailing previously. Recent tightness in the money market has witnessed several increases in bill rates. The increase reflects the heavy flow of money out of town, aggregating $750,000,000, the greater portion of which is shown in an increase in currency circulation.

Meanwhile yesterday demand for foreign currencies continued large both on the part of foreign and domestic interests who are transferring their investments from America.

The British pound opened at $3.42¼, a rise of nearly 1½ cents. It advanced to $3.44, dropped to $3.41⅞, and recovered to $3.43¾, closing at $3.45, a net gain for the day of 4 cents.

Gold stocks in the United States yesterday sustained a reduction of $22,642,800, due almost entirely to earmarkings for foreign account, which totaled $22,300,000.

Belief in the continued weakness of the dollar was shown by extremely high discounts on future deliveries of 3½ points against French francs and 4⅞ cents against sterling for 90 days.

New York, Chicago Banks Strong.

Although New York member banks lost 424 millions in deposits during the week ended Wednesday, they still are in a highly liquid condition, with two billion, 338 millions in United States government securities alone, against aggregate deposits of about five billion, 700 million, yesterday's federal reserve report showed.

Total deposits of Chicago member banks in the week ended Wednesday, declined from one billion, 217 millions to one billion, 95 millions. Chicago banks still carry excess reserves with the federal reserve bank and have borrowed no money from the federal reserve. New York banks have borrowed a total of 183 millions from the federal reserve.

SENATORS TAKE RECESS FROM STOCK INQUIRY

Washington, D. C., March 2.—(AP)—A succession of vice presidents and former vice presidents of the National City company—subsidiary of the second largest bank in the world—today told a senate committee of that concern's profitable financing in handling mergers and bond issues back in the boom days.

The securities that came out of the transactions have sunk to feeble values since.

There was testimony that the present market price of a $32,000,000 bond issue of the Lautaro Nitrate corporation, whose parent company is in Chile, is less than the difference between the $93.75 at which the bonds were received and the $99 at which they were sold to the investing public.

At the close of today's hearing the committee recessed its investigation until the next congress.

Autosteam Process Co. Wins Suit Over Patent

A patent of Louis F. Schmelzer on certain rendering equipment used in the packing industry yesterday was held by Federal Judge George E. Q. Johnson to be valid and infringed by the Allbright-Nell company. The Schmelzer patent is owned by the Autosteam Process company, of which Paul Willer Peterson is president. The judge referred the matter of damages to a master for determination.

CASH IN PUBLIC HANDS HIGHEST IN U. S. HISTORY

Currency Out Soars to 6¾ Billions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—The federal reserve banks poured 591 million dollars into the money markets last week to meet huge demands for currency and gold.

Money in circulation jumped 732 million dollars during the last week as banking restrictions in many regions forced business on a cash basis. At the same time, total circulation reached $6,720,000,000, a new all time high. Also $116,000,000 worth of gold was withdrawn from the country.

Because of these two deflationary movements the 591 millions of reserve bank credit thrown into the fight by the purchase of bills and government securities and by the discounting of bills was insufficient to sustain the reserves of the member banks. They dropped 238 millions in the week.

Board Holds Unusual Session.

With the statement of the banks' great effort before them, the members of the federal reserve board met in an extraordinary session tonight. Experts of the board's staff were summoned to the meeting but, as usual, no announcement followed the breaking up of the board.

Already by raising its discount rate to 3½ per cent the New York reserve bank has endeavored to check the outward movement of gold and to force money into the banks from the security markets. What other steps may be decided on by the board were not disclosed tonight.

In its attempt to ease the money situation and to supply the banks with ample cash, the reserve banks bought 204 millions of bills and another 2 million dollars worth of government securities last week. Another 385 million dollars of bills were discounted, bringing the total new reserve bank credit extended up to 591 million dollars.

Vast Changes Reflect Strain.

The weekly report of the board, covering the week ended Wednesday, was released at 6:15 p. m., nearly two hours after the normal time. It revealed changes of unprecedented size which reflected the strains upon the banking system imposed by the spread of bank moratoria throughout the country and the rising demand for currency and gold by hoarders.

The week's rise of $732,000,000 in money in circulation was the largest ever recorded. It carried the total nearly $1,000,000,000 above the highest figure ever before reached.

The fall of $226,310,000 in the gold holdings of the federal reserve system reflected withdrawals of the $116,000,000 for foreign account and also $110,000,000 for domestic hoarding. It left the gold reserves of the system at $2,892,083,000, which was $366,618,000 below the year's high of $3,258,701,000 reached on Jan. 25, but still $330,888,000 above the low of $2,561,195,000 to which they were reduced on June 15.

N. Y. Banks Bear Shock.

New York City, as the financial nerve center of the country, bore the brunt of the week's banking shocks. The net demand deposits of local reporting member banks of the reserve were drawn down $397,000,000, of which $278,000,000 represented withdrawals by out of town banks. Time deposits of the banks were reduced $27,000,000, and United States government deposits receded $20,000,000, making a total of $444,000,000 of deposits paid out in the week.

The total of the member banks' loans and investments dropped $297,000,000 in the week to $6,512,000,000, a new low for the depression. Total loans were down $195,000,000 as a result of a decrease of $214,000,000 in "all other loans," chiefly bankers' bills, partly offset by a rise of $19,000,000 in security loans. Investments were off $102,000,000, investments in United States government securities being down $114,000,000, while holdings of other securities rose $12,000,000.

Brokers' loans, as reported by the banks, were down $11,000,000 in the week, to $418,000,000. Loans by the banks for own account were off $12,000,000; loans for the account of out of town banks fell $1,000,000, and loans for the account of others were up $2,000,000.

U. S. Steel Corp. Subsidiary Advances Prices on Sheets

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 2.—(AP)—The American Sheet and Tin Plate company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, today announced advances in prices of sheet steel ranging from $1 to $3 a ton. Prices of most types of steel declined during December and January because of severe competition for orders. In recent weeks efforts have been made by the industry to strengthen the price structure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 2.—Prices of high grade bonds were marked down sharply today in an unusual market, which saw speculative issues spared from extensive selling and displaying good resistance.

A deluge of selling came into the market for all groups of high grade obligations, from United States governments to rails and utilities. The selling was a continuation of the movement by commercial banks to attain liquidity as a result of the bank holiday epidemic.

Volume of offerings today was greater than at any time during the decline, according to traders in the outside market, where most of the selling occurred.

Speculative bonds, either because position in them have already been cleaned out or because these issues do not figure prominently in commercial bank selling, made a relatively better showing.

Federal Issues Decline.

United States government securities, most liquid of all bank investments, were marked down from fractions to a full point, with issues of short maturity coming in for a large share of the selling.

State and municipal bonds, traded in the outside market, also were at low levels for the current decline.

Corporation short term issues, traded in the outside market, were marked down sharply in demoralized trading. Prices no longer reflected prevailing money conditions but to a large extent represented the pressure of liquidation.

Domestic public utility bonds bore the brunt of much institutional selling. Losses included such bonds as Brooklyn Union Gas 5s, Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, New Jersey Power and Light 4½s, American Telephone collateral 5s, and many others.

High grade rail issues were lower in such instances as Atchison general 4s, Chesapeake and Ohio general 4s, Union Pacific first 4s, and others.

PUBLIC ISSUES OFFERED.

Public offering is being made today of an issue of $350,000 Onondaga county, New York, 4¾ per cent direct obligation bonds, due March 1, 1934 to 1943, inclusive, by Halsey Stuart & Co. at prices to yield from 4 to 4.30 per cent, according to maturity.

Western and Southern Life Insurance Company.

May I please have some information on Western and Southern Life Insurance company of Cincinnati?—N. B. J.

Western and Southern Life Insurance company [Cincinnati], a legal reserve stock company, commenced business almost fifty years ago.

The company has had a good growth. On Dec. 31, 1931, industrial insurance in force totaled $508,268,000, against $507,201,000 the year before and $463,009,000 on Dec. 31, 1920. Ordinary insurance in force totaled $257,273,000 on Dec. 31, 1931, against $246,233,000 the year before and $53,000,000 on Dec. 31, 1920.

Policyholders' surplus is considered ample and the reserve basis is strong. Expenses are low and mortality rate is favorable considering the industrial business.

The company finished 1932 with admitted assets of $128,352,000. This included home office building and properties, $813,000; city real estate, exclusive of home office, $2,026,000, and farm properties of $703,000. The city real estate [excluding home office] and farm properties net the company 5 per cent on the book value.

First mortgage loans on city property totaled $92,308,000 and first mortgage loans on farm properties were $1,988,000. Policy loans totaled $8,750,000, cash and United States government bonds $12,883,000, and municipal bonds $5,872,000. Uncollected and deferred premiums were $1,569,000 and accrued interest receivable totaled $1,440,000.

All bonds are carried at amortized values. There has been no default on this class of security.

Reserves for policyholders totaled $105,619,000, premiums and interest paid in advance $687,000, and 1933 taxes and incurred unrepresented items were $1,809,000. There were no other liabilities. Capital totaled $10,000,000 and surplus was $10,236,000.

The company is licensed to do business in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

Fixed Charges.

What is meant by a company's earning its fixed charges two times in 1931, and so on?—R. P. S.

Fixed charges is a term usually taken to mean interest and amortization. In analyzing a bond issue it is important to determine the comparison between earnings and fixed charges to find what the margin of safety is. Thus, if a company earned its fixed charges two times in 1931 it means that it earned enough in 1931 to pay its fixed charges twice. Stated another way, its income could be halved, but would still be sufficient to pay fixed charges.

RALLY AT CLOSE REDUCES EARLY STOCK LOSSES

Shorts Cover on Report of Bank Announcement.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 2.—Nervousness over the further spread of the bank holiday movement in the south and west kept the share market in a bad way again today until a rally appeared in the final hour. Prices sagged 1 to 3 points throughout the list and new lows for the movement were recorded on hourly schedule until the closing pickup.

As dealings turned into the final hour rumors began to fly about that a "highly important" statement having to do with the banking situation was forthcoming and while nobody pretended to have any authoritative information as to the source or nature of the pronouncement, short traders made a concerted rush to cover their commitments in preparation for whatever might be in store. Prices recovered briskly in all departments and the closing gong found more than half of the early losses restored. Net losses averaged less than a point.

Turnover was somewhat heavier than in the preceding session, footing up to around 1,000,000 shares.

Selling from West.

The extension of the bank holiday to California, causing the Los Angeles and San Francisco exchanges to shut up shop for the duration of the moratorium, naturally brought a flood of selling orders over the wires from the west coast and this burden of liquidation had as much as anything else to do with early weakness. Issues enjoying popularity "out west" were the chief targets of selling from this source—stocks like Pacific Lighting, Standard of California, Transamerica corporation, Pacific Gas and Electric, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific. Union Pacific was one of the many issues on the board to be beaten down to a new low for the year.

Railroad shares were under pressure from the opening right up to the last hour rally. Some of them were unable to share in the recovery, one of the unfortunates being Delaware and Hudson which finished 2 points below its previous close; Atchison, Southern Pacific, Illinois Central, New York Central, and New Haven closed with net losses of from a half to a point. Norfolk and Western was off about 2.

A. T. & T. Sags and Rallies.

Among the pivotals, American Telepsone, down nearly 3 points at one time, recovered to within a small fraction of its Wednesday close. United States Steel preferred was driven to a new low of 53 in the early afternoon, but wound up at 54¾, off 1¾. Steel common was fractionally higher —thanks to some pert bidding in its direction in the last few minutes of trading. American Tobacco B gave up a point net after being lower.

Considerable selling came into Auburn Auto on speculation regarding the outcome of tomorrow's dividend meeting of the company's board. The corporation has been operating for some time at a deficit. Since 1929 the stock has paid $4 in cash and 8 per cent in stock.

Talk of prospective renewal of negotiations looking to the merger of Standard of California and Standard of New Jersey accompanied heavy trading in the shares of both issues.

HOGS MOVE UP TO BEST PRICES FOR 16 DAYS

Most of Gain Held Despite Lenten Season.

Hog prices were elevated 5 to 10 cents more, reaching the highest point in 16 days, in the morning rounds of yesterday's comparatively slow session. While the market for the rank and file failed to hold the full strength through the afternoon, only a small part of the gains in top grades was erased.

Slightly higher wholesale pork prices had some effect. The better tone in the pork markets is something the trade had not looked for, since the Lenten season is always accompanied by curtailed orders for meat. Apparently, available supplies have been pared down to meet the restricted demand.

Receipts of hogs at the leading markets this week have been the smallest in more than three months. The four-day total at 11 points at 300,000 head showed a decrease of 56,000, or 15 per cent, compared with two weeks ago.

Current hog quotations are mostly 10 to 20 cents above the close of last week, although the top sale yesterday at $3.75 showed 35 cents gain over last Saturday, when quality was poor.

Most Cattle About Steady.

Best grades of light and yearling steers ruled stronger again yesterday, but the bulk of cattle was slow to sell and finally changed hands at about steady prices. Heavy beeves continued to drag and exhibited further weakness in some spots.

Selected light steers suitable for the fancy eastern trade were acutely scarce and orders for these were filled by picking up a few head here and there until a full carload of shipping kinds accumulated. Ten such steers, averaging 1,073 pounds and 1,087 pounds in two lots, brought $7.

The top for full carloads was $6.50, paid by New York butchers for 1,064 pound cattle. Mixed steers and heifers averaging only 750 pounds brought $6.40. Medium weights averaging 1,206 pounds sold at $6.25, but few of the extreme weights were good enough to bring more than $5. Light and medium weight cattle are closing 25 to 40 cents higher for the week, while the long fed heavy steers are only steady with a week ago.

Lamb Trade Weaker.

Lamb prices weakened under local pressure yesterday. A scattering of selected fed western lambs to shippers and city butchers brought steady prices at the opening, but the bulk went into the later afternoon rounds and sold on a weak to 15 cents lower basis.

Packers obtained the bulk of the supply at $5.40 and under. Shippers paid up to $5.50 earlier, while city butchers hand picked a few lots as high as $5.65. The lamb market has been holding its own in the last few days. Prices are fully steady with last week's close and 25 cents above the low point at the middle of last week.

GOOD RALLY IN COTTON COVERS EARLY LOSSES

Cotton markets were unsettled with a break of 8 to 16 points early as the result of a decline in security markets, grains, and uneasiness over the banking situation throughout the country. A good rally came in the later trading and the close on futures in Chicago were at net loss of mostly 1 to 3 points. New Orleans was closed due to banking conditions, and New York was 2 points lower to 1 point higher on futures and 5 points off on spots, the latter at 6.10 cents; Galveston and Houston were unchanged. Liverpool cables were disappointing this morning and closed 2 points net lower.

MEN—AT ONCE!

We shall set aside a definite time Friday for men who wish to make a permanent connection, without investment or deposit, that will pay them more money as they become more proficient in properly representing this remarkable business, that leads in its field in every one of the many countries in which it operates, and requires seven factories (two in the United States) to supply its products. February closed our 38th consecutive record sales month, and 1933 our third consecutive record sales year, in which men made more money in many instances, than they ever made before in their lives—in good times as well as ordinary times.

Our product is unique. It does not fall under the head of technocracy, because it does not take the place of human effort, but it causes that effort to produce better results than have ever been attained before, bringing about exceptional economies, at the same time lightening that work remarkably. When the best in its class is thoroughly demonstrated and proved by endorsements of the highest type, world-wide, then it must naturally result in a strong corporation, able to meet every demand made upon it.

Men in Electrolux (not refrigeration) make money, not through less effort, but through sustained effort backed by the most effective training that has ever been worked out to simplify the processes of success. We do not mean that a man starts out and makes ton income at the outset. He may work for not over $125 to $165 a month, and do that for two or three months, but after that he should merit a higher income. We do not limit him. Many men in this business make from $4,000 to $7,500 a year regularly, but it requires systematic work and character. These workers come from every walk of life, and all succeed equally if they go into this business with equal determination and consistency.

You will meet men in this organization who are succeeding in a big way. Past experience is of small moment, but seven weeks' study and honest effort are highly important. We prefer men not over 45 years old. A personal interview will be granted Friday, March 3, at 1 p. m. or any other time by calling at Room 329 Madison-Kedzie Bldg., 9 S. Kedzie-av.

GO GETTERS.

This company knows no hard times. With two large American factories and sales worldwide, with abundant capital, making more and more money, putting men into big earnings, never asking a man to wait a day for his checks—this organization has proved what it can do for you if you can meet these simple requirements.

First, you must give three character references, but you do not invest or deposit a penny or buy anything. Second, you must not be over 45, but must be a real worker. Third, you must work in Chicago and suburbs. Fourth, you must be as diligent away from the office as you would be in the office. Fifth, you may use a car if you own one, but do not need a car. Sixth, you must have a permanent address.

Here are other simple but very necessary requirements: You must be courteous and a real worker. It may be necessary at the outset to get along on $25 to $40 a week, but we want men who are capable of advancing to $4,000 and up to $7,500 a year or beyond in 6 to 10 months!

If you wish to make determination and natural ability count, call for personal interview today, Friday, March 3, Room 430 Hyde-Park Bank Bldg., 1525 E. 53d-st.

WHY PAY MORE FOR A USED CAR

THAN STUDEBAKER'S LOW PRICES?

No matter how much you want to spend on a used car—visit Studebaker FIRST because our prices are the lowest in Chicago. 5 days' driving trial goes with each sale.

OLDSMOBILE COUPE. 1930 business model that must be seen to be appreciated. Smart appearance. Has a sweet running motor. Many valuable extras. $275.

HUPMOBILE 8 SEDAN. 1931 De Luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. The finish glistens like a new dollar and the interior is luxurious. Motor is 100%. We just reduced this to $585.

LA SALLE SEDAN. 1930. It never left the Chicago boulevards and at our price it's the most outstanding La Salle buy in Chicago. It's really in new condition. $685.

STUDEBAKER CONVERTIBLE COUPE. 1931 President 8 De Luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. Spacious rumble seat. Free wheeling. Actually driven only a few months. Original cost was approximately $2,500. Reduced to $895.

OAKLAND SEDAN. 1929. It was in storage for 2 years, so now the appearance and performance of this car will actually surprise you. A super-value at $225.

PLYMOUTH ROADSTER. 1932. Has Free Wheeling, spacious rumble seat and extras galore. Here is a very pretty sporty car that will please you in every respect. $345.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. 1930 Commander 8. Was owned by an official of this company and given a thorough checkup every week in our shop. Now it's the last word in appearance and performance. Will not last 24 hours at $395.

FORD SPORT COUPE. 1931, with rumble seat. The finish is bright and shiny and the upholstery appears unused. Has sparkling performance. Many extras. Only $245.

CHEVROLET VICTORIA. 1931 five pass. that was driven very little. As a matter of fact, it would be hard to distinguish this Chev. from a brand new car. $295.

PACKARD SEDAN. 1927. It was given the best of attention and now it will satisfy the most discriminating buyer. A rare Packard value at $165.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. 1928 Commander that's in dandy all around condition. Very fully equipped. We just reduced it to $95 for immediate sale.
